PREFACE.

The Grammar, which is now offered to the learned Public, has been compiled already years ago, but as there were no means of printing it, it was laid aside hopelessly. That it has finally been rescued from oblivion is owing to the enlightened patronage of Her Majesty's Government for India, which liberally granted the printing expenses.

I am afraid, that I have given rather too much than too little by endeavouring to render the Grammar as complete as possible; I trust, however, that this object may have been attained to some extent at least.

A beginner will do well, after he has acquainted himself with the Sindhī system of sounds, to commence at once with the declensions and to turn bye and bye to the formation of themes after he has got a fair insight into the fabric of the language. The Introduction is intended for those only, who wish to penetrate more deeply into the origin and nature of the Sindhī.

The quotations, which I have added, I hope may prove useful to introduce the beginner into the study of the Sindhī literature; most of the quotations are taken from my edition of the Shāha jō Risālō¹), but many others also from manuscripts in my possession, which I collected during my former stay in Sindh. What we need now most is a critically sifted edition of the popular Sindhī tales and songs, which are very numerous and from which a good collection might be made. The next desideratum is an enlarged Sindhī Dictionary, as the late Capt. Geo. Stack's Dictionary, which is very good as far as it goes, is not sufficient for reading older or more difficult pieces. We may fairly expect, that these deficiencies will soon be remedied by Mr. Peile, the present energetic and enlightened Director of Public Instruction in the Bombay Presidency, for which the thanks of the learned Public will be due to him.

The Sindhī is by no means an easy language, it is on the contrary beset with more intricacies and difficulties than any of its Prākrit sisters. But on the other hand it amply repays to the philologist the labours he bestows on it; for the Sindhī has preserved a great many forms, for which we look in vain in the cognate idioms. For the purpose of intercomparing the modern Ārian dialects the Sindhī is therefore invaluable. For this reason we have pointed out, in the form of annotations, the relation of the Sindhī with the Sanskrit-Prākrit on the one hand and with the modern cognate idioms on the other hand, to give some impulse to a comparative study of the North-Indian Vernaculars, which as yet has been totally neglected.

The Sindhī Grammar of the late Capt. Stack is an accurate and meritorious work, but as all first attempts (for the Sindhī Grammar of Wathen does not deserve the name) incomplete and destitute of a Syntax. I sincerely wish, that the deficiencies of his work, from the emendation and enlargement of which he was prevented by an untimely death, may have been made up by the Grammar now offered to the Public.

The English reader will no doubt meet in this Grammar with many an expression, which he will consider as erroneous or ill-chosen. For all such and similar mistakes I must beg his pardon, which the kind reader surely will not withhold, when he is told, that the idiom, into which I endeavoured to clothe my thoughts, is not my mother-tongue.

Whilst this Grammar was passing through the press, I had gone to India for the purpose of translating the Sikh Granth. In order not to delay too long the printing of it, I could only see and correct a proof-sheet once. The unavoidable consequence was, that owing to the letters of this Grammar being loaded with so many dots and distinguishing marks, a number of misprints has crept in, which the student is requested to correct first after the affixed list of misprints.

INTRODUCTION.

THE RELATIONSHIP OF THE SINDHI TO THE SANSKRIT AND PRAKRIT.

The Sindhī is a pure Sanskritical language, more free from foreign elements than any other of the North Indian vernaculars. The old Prākrit grammarians may have had their good reason, to designate the Apabhransha dialect, from which the modern Sindhī is immediately derived, as the lowest of all the Prakrit dialects; but if we compare now the Sindhī with its sister-tongues, we must assign to it, in a grammatical point of view, the first place among them. It is much more closely related to the old Prakrit, than the Marathi, Hindi, Panjābī and Bangālī of our days, and it has preserved an exuberance of grammatical forms, for which all its sisters may well envy it. For, while all the modern vernaculars of India 1) are already in a state of complete decomposition, the old venerable mother-tongue being hardly recognisable in her degenerate daughters, the Sindhī has, on the contrary, preserved most important fragments of it and erected for itself a grammatical structure, which surpasses in beauty of execution and internal harmony by far the loose and levelling construction of its sisters.

The Sindhī has remained steady in the first stage of decomposition after the old Prākrit, wheras all the other cognate dialects have sunk some degrees deeper; we shall see in the course of our introductory remarks, that the rules, which the Prākrit grammarian Kramadīshvara has laid down in reference to the Apabhransha, are still recognisable in the present Sindhī, which by no means can be stated of the other dialects. The Sindhī has thus become an independant language, which, though sharing a common origin with its sister-tongues, is very materially differing from them.

The Sindhī, which is spoken within the boundaries of Sindh proper, is divided into three dialects, which grammatically differ very little from each other, but offer considerable discrepancies in point of pronunciation. The dialect of lower Sindh, comprising the Indus-Delta and the sea-coast, is called right lārī, from right lāru¹), by which lower Sindh is designated. The dialect, which is spoken north of Haiderābad, is called right sirāikī, from right sirō, by which Upper Sindh is designated; the dialect in vogue in the Thar, or desert of Sindh, is called right tharēli, from right thare, the desert.

The dialect of Lāṛ, though employed in most Sindhī compositions, is not the purest; the vowels are frequently contracted and the consonants too much softened down by assimilation. The northern or Sirāiki dialect has remained far more original and has preserved the purity of pronunciation with more tenaciousness, than the southern one. With reference to this superiority of the northern dialect to the southern the Sindhīs like to quote the proverb:

लाड़ जो पढ़ाें सिरे जो ढग़ो

lāṇa jō paṇhyō sirē jō ḍhaḡō. The learned man of Lār is an ox in Upper Sindh.

<sup>1)</sup> हाड़ is not a proper noun, but an appellation, signifying: "sloping ground;" the same is the case with this siro, which signifies the upper country.

The dialect of the Thar is vigorous but uncouth and already intermingled with the Māṛvāṛī; it is spoken by the Shikārīs, Dheḍhs (दे carrier) and other outcast tribes. As far as I know, there are no literary compositions extant in this dialect.

The object of these introductory remarks is to show the relative position, which the Sindhī holds to the Sanskrit and Prākrit; and in order to elucidate this subject, we shall lay down the rules and principles, by which the present Sindhi vowel and consonantal system has been derived from the Sanskrit by the medium of the Prākrit. Thus, we hope, a solid basis also will be gained for intercomparing the Sindhī with its other sister-tongues. By this process alone, which will enable us, to assign to the Ārian stock, what has been taken from it, though much altered now in shape and outward appearance by dint of contraction and assimilation, we shall on the other hand be able to trace out a certain residuum of vocables, which we must allot to an old aboriginal language, of which neither name nor extent is now known to us, but which, in all probability, was of the Tātār stock of languages and spread throughout the length and breadth of India before the irruption of the Ārian race, as all the other vernaculars contain a similar non-Ārian residuum of words, which have been already designated as "provincial" by the old Prākrit grammarians.

The following investigation is destined for such as may be competent, by their previous studies, to penetrate more deeply into the real nature of the modern idioms of India, and for them, I trust, these outlines may prove useful and at the same time incentive, to follow up more deeply the intricate path, which I have pointed out.

I. THE SINDHI VOWEL SYSTEM. 1)

§. 1.

We consider first the single vowels, their change, substitution, contraction or elision in Sindhī.

1) $\Re$ (r) and its permutations.

The Sindhī, like the old Prākrit, has cut off \vec{1} from its system of sounds; for it is either treated as a vowel, in which case it is changed to i, a etc., or as a consonant, in which latter case it coincides with \vec{\vec{1}} (r).

At the beginning of a word  $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$ , if standing by itself, is changed to  $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$  (ri), just as in Prākrit, e. g. Sindhī  $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$  ričhu, bear, Prāk.  $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$  Sansk.  $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$   $\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$ .

But if \( \frac{1}{3}\) be joined to a consonant, the following rules hold good:

- a) r is usually dissolved into i, as: दिस्सु disaṇu, to see, Sansk. हम्म् (but Prāk. दक्स), Hindī देखना; विछूं vičhū, scorpion, Prāk. विमुन्ना (or विजुन्ना), Sansk. कृश्विक; किन्ना kiō, done, Prāk. किट, Sansk. कृत; गिए-हसु giṇhaṇu; to take, Sansk. गृह्य, Prāk. गेरह.
- b) r is dissolved into u, if the consonant, to which it is joined, happens to be a labial, as: बुढ़ा buḍhō, old, Prākrit on the other hand वृद्ध, Sansk. वृद्ध; मुओ muō, dead, Prāk. मुदो or already मुओ (by elision of द), Sansk. मृत. In such instances, as मुण्णु suṇaṇu, to hear, Prāk. पुण, the original root-vowel (Sansk. y) has been preserved.

c) In most instances though r is dissolved into ar, irrespective of the consonant to which it may be joined, as:

मर्णु maraṇu, to die, Prāk. मर्, Sansk. मृ. भर्णु bharaṇu, to fill, Prāk. भर्, Sansk. मृ. धर्णु dharaṇu, to place, Prāk. धर्, Sansk. धृ. सर्णु saraṇu, to move, Prāk. सर्, Sansk. मृ.

In such like instances the Sindhī, as well as all the other cognate dialects, is quite in accordance with Prākrit usage, the Sanskrit verbal noun being taken as the base of the infinitive in the modern idioms. In other instances though the Sindhī is not so liberal in dissolving r, as the Prākrit; it has managed, on the contrary, in many cases to preserve r by changing it to ir or transposing the same, as: [Hcj mirdangu (or: [Huj mirdhangu) a tabor, Prāk. Hṣṇī, Sansk. Hcṣ; fay virkhu, taurus (planet), Sansk. au; [Eu] hirdhō¹), heart, Prāk. [Ey], Sansk. Ecup, but the more Prākritical form [Ey] hīō, is also in use in Sindhī.

In a few cases r has been preserved by being changed to simple r (subscribed), in conjunction with a dental t, d, or a cerebral t, d; as: ज़ार्रो jāṭrō, son-in-law, Prāk. जामाउओ, Sansk. जामातृक; in this form H has been elided, which is rather of rare occurrence, and the dental has passed into a cerebral, the affix क being dropped altogether; similarly मार्रे māṭrē, and its derivatives, as: मार्जो māṭrējō, मार्तो māṭrētō etc., corresponding to the Prākrit form माउओ, Sansk. मातृक.

2) The Diphthongs ऐ ai and ओ au.

Properly speaking there are no diphthongs in Sindhī, as little as in Prākrit; ai is generally pronounced loosely as a-i, and au as a-u. The Sindhī, however, is somewhat tighter in its pronunciation and not quite so effeminate as the Prākrit, so that it will depend more or less on the option of the speaker, if he will contract ai or au into a real diphthong, or pronounce them separately as two distinct vowels. From the manner of writing, no safe conclusion can be drawn, as a fixed system of orthography is still a desideratum. It may however be laid down as a general rule, that the Sindhī ignores diphthongs and pronounces them as two distinct vowels.

a) The diphthong ai.

- β) But generally the diphthong ai is contracted into ē in Sindhī, which is always long, and never anceps, as in Prākrit; e. g. वेह vēru, enmity, prāk. वड्डां (Lassen quotes also a form वं), Sansk. वं; वेज़ vēju, physician, Prāk. वेज, Sansk. वेद्य; संधोलूणु sēndhōlūņu, rocksalt (literally, Sindh-salt), from the Sansk. संधव, Sindhī, and लवण salt (Prāk. लोण).

In a similar manner also अय ay, which in Sindhī is treated in the same way as ai, is frequently contracted into ē, as: नेगु nēṇu, eye, Prāk. गुत्रणं, Sansk. नयनं; सेजा sējā, bed, Prāk. सेजा, Sansk. श्रया.

γ) The original diphthong ai may also be contracted to ī, as: धीर्जु dhīrju, firmness, Sansk. धेर्य, Prāk. धोर. This Sindhī form is so far a proof for the correctness of the Prākrit rule, as धीर्जु can only be derived from धेर्य, and not from धीर itself; similarly Hindī धीर्ज्.

b) The diphthong au.

The same, that has been remarked on the diphthong ai, may also be stated of the diphthong au; it may be optionally pronounced as a diphthong, but is more commonly separated into its component vowels.

a) This diphthong is generally preserved in words borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, as: दोह dauru, a period, arab. ॐ; श्रोत aurata, woman, Arab. also in pure Sindhī words it is used and written, as: श्रोत aukhō, difficult; भेह bhaūru, a large black bee, Sansk. भमर; लोगु laūgu, a clove, Sansk. लवडू. In such pure Sindhī words though the diphthong may also, after the analogy of the Prākrit, be separated into a-u, as: वउड़्णु va-uṛaṇu, to seek, or: वोड़्णु vauṛaṇu; भउण्णु bha-uṇaṇu, to wander about, or: भोण्णु bhauṇaṇu.

At the end of a word no diphthong is admissible, and it must always be pronounced স্থান্ত a-u, for the sake of inflexion, as: মান্ত sa-u, hundred (Prāk. মাসু) নান্ত ja-u, barley, Pers. ৃ

, Sansk. यन; বান্ত ca-u, say, imperative of বান্ত, to say.

β) But very frequently this diphthong is contracted to ō, as: गोरो gōrō, fair, Sansk. गौर; जोभनु jōbhanu, time of youth, Prāk. जोवणं, Sansk. योवनमः मोड़ mōru, a crest, Prāk. मउडं (Sansk. मुनुट); भोणो bhōṇō, or भउणो bha-uṇō, a vagabond. The same rule also is occasionally applied to Arabic or Persian words, as: कोम kōma, a clan, or: कोम kauma, Arab. हें.

γ) The diphthong au may also be contracted to ū, as: सूरिहाई sūrihāī, heroism, Prāk. सोरिशं Sansk. शोर्य; लुणू lūṇu, salt, Prāk. लोग, Sansk. लवगं (अव being treated like au).

§. 2.

3) The vowels a, ā; i, ī; u, ū; ē; ō.

Having considered the diphthongs ai and au in their relative position to the Sanskrit and Prākrit, we submit now the common Sindhī vowels to a nearer examination.

a) The vowels a, ā.

The short vowel अ a, is more tenaciously kept fast in Sindhī, than in the Prākrit, and the Sindhī very frequently recurs directly again to the original Sanskrit, as: पक्तो pakō, cooked, Sansk. पक्त, but Prāk. पिकः; अंगार angāru, coal, Sansk. अङ्गार, but Prāk. दङ्गालो; सुपनो supanō, dream, Sansk. स्वप्न, but Prāk. सिविणः; वलि vale, a creeper, Sansk. वस्त्री, but Prāk. विस्ति. But there is no lack of examples on the other hand, in which original a has been likewise shortened to i, as: विमा khimā, patience, Prāk. वमा, Sansk. समा; मिन mińa, marrow, Sansk. मजा.

In this way a has been shortened to i in all those forms, which are already alleged by the Prākrit grammarian Kramadīshvara in the Apabhransha dialect (compare: Lassen, Instit. Linguae Prāk. p. 454) as: जिंद्र-तिंद्र jĩa-tĩa (Apabhransha: जिध-तिध, instead of जध-तध); जिति-तिति jite-tite, where-there (Apabhransha: जिन्यु-तेन्यु¹), from यच-तच); किति kite, where? (Apa-bhransha: केन्यु, from an original form क्न, instead of क्न, thence the common Sansk. form क्न). The Sindhī adverb इंग्र ĩa or इंग्र ĩa, thus, corresponds to the Prāk. इंग्र, and is regularly derived from the Sansk. adverb इंग्यम् (not from इति, which Lassen has already doubted) with the elision of h (ĩa = iha).

Short a is occasionally, but rarely, changed to u, as: પાਤરુ rā-uru, tax, Sansk. પાਤਕા (but not in the examples quoted by Lassen §. 173, 3).

Long ā is in Sindhī frequently preserved in such forms, where in Prākrit it has been already shortened (owing to the contraction or assimilation of the following compound consonant): as: बेरागी bairāgī, a religious ascetic, Prāk. बेरग, Sansk. बेराग्य; मारिख mārikha, way, Prāk. मगग, Sansk. मार्ग; जाट्रा jāṭrā, pilgrimage, Prāk. जता, Sansk. याचा; वाघु, vāghu, tiger, Prāk. वग्धु, Sansk. व्याघ्र. Long ā has been shortened in कोड्रार kō-dare, spade, Sansk. कुट्राल.

Long ā is weakened to ĭ in the following adverbs, after the analogy of the Prākrit, as: जिंदिं तिर्दि ja-dehē-tadehē, when-then; किंदिं kadehē, when? which are derived from the Sansk. adverbs: यदा-तदा, कदा.

Long ā as a feminine termination of Prākrit nouns is in Sindhī occasionally permuted for ī or even ĭ (e), as: aiş vā-ī, speeck, Prāk. aiৣ, Sansk. aiæ; yīt dhure, origin, Prāk. yt, Sansk. yt. The only example of final m of a masc. theme being changed to i is tiş rā-e, prince, Prāk. tim, Sansk. tim nom.

In a certain number of words, ending in the Sansk. crude state in  $\mathbf{7}$  (but nom. sing.  $\mathbf{7}$ ), final  $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$  has been changed in Sindhī (as now and then already in Prākrit) to u, as:  $\mathbf{7}$  father, Prāk.  $\mathbf{7}$  (by elision of  $\mathbf{7}$ ), Sansk. nom.  $\mathbf{7}$  has bhāu, brother, Prāk.  $\mathbf{7}$  has, Sansk.  $\mathbf{7}$  and by the same levelling process:  $\mathbf{7}$ māu, mother, Prāk. माञ्चा, Sansk. माता; राउ rāu, prince (besides राइ); पंधु pandhu, journey, Sansk. पन्या m.

As regards the vowel changes in the midst of a word, the Sindhī adheres on the average to Prākrit usage, as: पथर patharu, bed, Prāk. प्रच्य, Sansk. प्रसार, Hindī विस्तर्), different from the else identical word पथर stone, Prāk. प्रच्य, Sansk. प्रसार (Hindī प्रच्यू); मया mayā, compassion, Sansk. माया (Hindī likewise मया); देवली dēvalī, temple (in Sindhī with the fem. termination ī), Prāk. देउहा, Sansk. देवालय (Hindī likewise देवल).

b) The vowels i, ī.

Short i is in Sindhī pronounced like short ĕ, when preceded or followed by Ē h, and regularly so, when ending a word, as: इह्डो ĕharō, such a one, मिहिति mĕhĕtĕ, a mosque; गालि gāle, word. Short i corresponds therefore often to the Prākrit Vē, which is considered short, when followed by a compound consonant, whereas vē is in Sindhī always long; e. g. Prāk. गेगह, Sindhī गिगह (गिगहण्), to take; निंड्र nindra, sleep, Prāk. गेह or गिह, Sansk. निद्रा; चिन्हु činhu, sign, Prāk. चेन्य or चिन्य, Sansk. चिहं.

It is a curious phenomenon in Sindhī, that occasionally a short i is interpolated in a syllable, which the effeminate pronunciation finds too harsh for the ear. This is particularly the case, when a syllable closes with a double n or n followed by another consonant (especially a liquida). The consequence of this effeminate pronunciation is, that the n thus separated by the interpolation of i, becomes nasalized, as: Ḥṣਜ਼ sāina, sign, hint, instead of Ḥạn, from Ḥạn; Ḥṣਜ਼া sāisāru, world, instead of Ḥạn; Ḥṣਜ਼ਲ਼ māijala, a day's journey, instead of Ḥạn (Đặc), and is frequently no longer heard at all, especially in the mouth of the Muhammedans, who write: مَثِرَلُ ma-izala, مُثِرَلُ sa-isāru etc.

Lengthened is ĭ in 端 kĩ, what, Prākrit already 南, from the Sanskrit 南井; further in 莉貴 šĩhu, lion, Prāk. 荆夷, Sansk. 祇夷; but not in 氣井 Jibha, tongue, Prāk. 司嗣, Sansk. 句裏I.

Long ī is kept fast by the Sindhī in many instances, where in Prākrit it has been shortened to ĭ, in consequence of the assimilation of consonants, as: तीयु tīrthu, a holy bathing-place, Prāk. तित्य, Sansk. तीये.

Long ī is rarely shortened to ĭ, and this only, when ending a noun, as: ATT nāre, a woman, Prāk. et Sansk. ATT.

Long ī passes into ē in those instances, which have been already marked out by the old Prākrit grammarians, as Prākrit किएस, एरिस etc., Sansk. कीहर, इंद्र्य etc. The corresponding Sindhī forms are: केहरी, kēharō, what? (by transposition of ह, instead of केह kērhu; in the Apabhransha dialect r on the other hand has been dropped, as: केही). The Prākrit form एरिस (Apabhransha एही) has not been taken up by the Sindhī, but other forms have been created from the pronominal bases की, जो, रहो, उहो, अहो, by adding to them the diminutive affix हो rō, as: किहड़ो kěharō, of what kind; जिहड़ो-तिहड़ो jěharō, of this kind, उहड़ो uharō, of that kind.

c) The vowels u, ū.

On the whole the Sindhī has taken up those changes, which these vowels have been made subject to in Prākrit;

but in some special cases it has remained more original, than the Prākrit, as: पुरुष् purusu, man, Prāk. पुरिसो, Sansk. पुरुष; मुखिरी, mukhirī, a bud, Prāk. मउलं, Sansk. मुकुलं.

U is changed to a in: ग्रो garō, heavy, Prāk. ग्रु, Sansk. गुरु; डब्लु dabalu, weak (Prāk. still दुबल), Sansk. दुवेल; or it may be dropped altogether, as: परि pare, on, upon, Prāk. उबरि, Sansk. उपरि.

U is changed to ō only in the following instances, as: मोती mōtī, pearl, Prāk. मोत्त (mŏtta) Sansk. मुक्त; पोथी pōthī, book, Prāk. पोन्थुञ्जो, Sansk. पुस्तक; को-इरि kōḍare, a spade, Sansk. बुराल.

Long ū is preserved more tenaciously in Sindhī, than in Prākrit, e. g. atl nūro, a hollow ring on the ankle, Prāk. Ū૩i Sansk. au.— In such cases, where original u has been depressed to ŏ in Prākrit, the original vowel generally reappears in Sindhī, as: statī ukhirī, a mortar, Prāk. araö, Sansk. araö; ukhirī, power, Prāk. ulīza, Sansk. ure, which is, though identical in form, not to be confounded with ura puṭhe, the back, Sansk. ure, Hindī ula.

d) The vowels ē and ō.

In Sindhī, as well as in Prākrit, ē and ō are no longer looked upon as Guṇa-vowels, but as simple sounds. In Sindhī ē and ō are always long, never anceps, as in Prākrit; for the short Prākritical ĕ short i is substituted in Sindhī, as: fɛʒ hiku, one, Prāk. væ; and for the short Prākritical ŏ short u, as stated already.

Both vowels keep their place very steadfastly and frequently reappear in such cases, where they have been already shortened in Prākrit, owing to the assimilation of consonants, as: प्रेमु prēmu, love, Prāk. पेम्म (pĕmma); जोमनु jōbhanu, time of youth, Prāk. जोव्वणं (jŏvvanam); जोगु jōgu, fit, Prāk. जोग्ग, Sansk. योग्य.

Quite exceptional is the shortening of ō to u in लुहरू luharu, blacksmith, instead of: लोहकार (Sansk. लोहकार), where ā has been likewise shortened to ă; and the change of ē to ī in पीज pīju, draught, Sansk. पेय; खी khī, wellfare, Sansk. सेम; नीह nīhu, love, Prāk. ऐहो, Sansk. सेह; मीह mīhu, rain, Prāk. मेहो, Sansk. मेघ.

When ending a noun ē and ō are frequently shortened to ĕ and ŭ respectively, especially in poëtry; but these changes being peculiar to Sindhī, we shall consider them hereafter separately. The peculiarity of the Apabhransha dialect, as noted by the grammarian Kramadīshvara, is fully borne out by the modern Sindhī; it uses likewise in the locative singular ĕ (i) instead of ē, as परहेहि paradehe, in a foreign country, चरि ghare, in a house etc. In the same way, as the Apabhransha, the Sindhī also changes to a great extent the Prākrit termination ō to u, as: कम kamu, business, Prāk. कम्मो etc. The same may also be said of the ablative sing. termination आदो  $(=\bar{a}-\bar{o} \text{ with elision of } \mathbf{\zeta})$  which is commonly shortened to ādu in the Apabhransha dialect, and in Sindhī further to ā-u: as ঘ(13 gharā-u, from a house. This old Sindhī ablative termination is now-a-days generally contracted to xis au (ā being likewise shortened to a, and to avoid the hiatus, both vowels being nasalized) but ā-u is still very frequently used in poëtry.

§. 3.

The elision, contraction and insertion of vowels.

These three points, so important in the old Prākrit, we may, as far as the Sindhī is concerned, sum up under the following brief remarks:

- a) An elision of vowels takes far more rarely place in Sindhī, than in the Prākrit, because the consonants do not so easily give way; there is however no lack of instances, in which the Sindhī accedes to Prākrit usage, as: दुआरो duārō, temple (different from दुआर door, Sansk. हार), Sansk. देवालय, where ē has been elided; सिआरो siārō, the cold season, Prāk. सीआरो, Sansk. शीतकाल; कुंभर kumbharu, potter, Sansk. कुंभकार; पखाल pakhāla, a pair of leather-bags, Sansk. परःख्य; रिणु riņu, the desert (the Rin), Sansk. इरिणं; धिआ dhia, daughter (prākrit already धीआ, see Lassen p. 172, note); वि bi, also, Prāk. वि, Sansk. आपि.
- b) As regards the contraction of vowels, the Sindhī coincides more fully with the Prākrit, though in some instances I have noticed a deviation from Prākrit analogy, as: चोषां čōṭhō, the fourth, Prāk. चउन्य, Sansk. चतुर्थ; मोर moru, peacock, Prāk. मोर, Sansk. मयुर; लूगु lūṇu, salt, Prāk. लोग, Sansk. लवग; मोन sōnu, gold, Sansk. सुवर्ग.
- c) With reference to the insertion of vowels the Sindhī agrees on the whole with the Prākrit.
- a) An original compound consonant is separated by the insertion of a vowel, to render its pronunciation more easy for a Sindhī organ. The insertion of a respective vowel depends on the sequence of vowels or the varga of the consonant, which is to be separated from the preceding one, though this rule is by no means strictly adhered to.

a is inserted in cases like the following: মথাই sarāha, praise, Prāk. মাতাই, Sansk. আঘা; মতাৰু salōku, a šlōka, Prāk. মিতাস, Sansk. আৰু.

i is inserted, as: इस्त्री istrī, woman, Prāk. इत्थी, Sansk. स्त्री; वरिंह varĕhu, year, Prāk. वरिंसो, Sansk. वर्ष; मिल्यु milaṇu, to be obtained, Prāk. मिलाग्, Sansk. root म्रे.

u is inserted, as: सुपनो supanō, dream, Prāk. सि-विण, Sansk. स्वप्न; सुमर्णु sumaraṇu, to remember, Prāk. सुमर्, Sansk. स्मर् (root स्म).

β) On the other hand the Sindhī very frequently has gone a step farther and dispensed with the insertion of a vowel by pushing the root-vowel between the compound consonant and dropping the final consonant, as: सेणु sēṇu, friend, Prāk. संग्रह, Sansk. सह; or more commonly it drops simply one of the compound consonants, as: नह nuhu, daughter-in-law, Prāk. सोग्ह, Sansk. सुषा; सञ्जा saghaṇu, to be able, Prāk. सञ्जाम, Sansk. सङ्गाम.

Sandhi, Hiatus and Euphony.

The Sindhī, as well as the Prākrit, dispenses totally with the rules of Sandhī, and vowels may therefore meet, without being subject to the laws of euphony. To separate however in some measure concurring vowels, the Sindhī very liberally employs the use of Anusvāra, whereby a certain nasalizing pronunciation has been imparted to the language, which is in some measure disagreeable to our ear; e. g. viš āū, I; quis sukhāū, nom. plur. of qui, vows; qiqu khāiņu, to burn; vows; qāū, cow etc. The Anusvāra is further inserted, to facilitate the lengthened pronunciation of a vowel, as: मीह mihu, rain, Sansk. मेध; this is particularly the case, when a noun ends in a long vowel, as मी prī, friend, मं bhū, earth etc.

STATES XLV

On the other hand there are also examples to be met with, where original Anusvāra has been dropped in Sindhī, as: मामु māsu, or माहु māhu, meat, Sansk. माम.

II. THE SINDHI CONSONANTAL SYSTEM.

In comparing the Sindhī letters (see below the Sindhī alphabets) with the Prākrit alphabet, we see at the first glance, that the Sindhī has retained the letters  $\mathfrak{A}$  š,  $\mathfrak{F}$  ń,  $\mathfrak{A}$  ń and  $\mathfrak{A}$  n, as single letters, which have disappeared already from the Prākrit alphabet, except when preceding a consonant of their respective vargas.

š, is in Sindhī by no means a palatal sibilant, as in Sanskrit, but a simple dental sound, equally unknown in Sanskrit and Prākrit, which has become naturalized in all the modern idioms (with the exception of the Gujarātī), and which corresponds to our common dental sh. It is derived from various sources:

a) from the Sanskrit palatal sibilant श, as: शब्दु šabdu, word, Sansk. शब्द; श्रीह šarīru, body (besides स्रोह sarīru), Sansk. श्रीर; शुक्क šukru, friday, Sansk. शक्क.

b) from the Sanskrit dental sibilant स s, as: श्रीह šīhu, lion, Sansk. सिंह; शाह šāhū, rich (by the Musalmāns generally pronounced साज sā-ū) Sansk. साधु; the s of Persian words is also now and then changed to š, as: शीख šīkha, a spit, Pers. سيم

c) from the Sanskrit cerebral sibilant ष š, as: कश्यु kašaņu, to pull, Sansk. कृष् (Hindī कसा); किश्यु kišņu, Krishṇa, Sansk. कृष्ण; विशु višu, world (besides विसु) Sansk. विषय.

The letter ش of Arabic and Persian words is always rendered by য়, as: शहर šaharu, town, Pers. شُهُر; शाह šāhu, king, Pers. شاه.

This is a very remarkable deviation from the principles of the Prākrit, where the letter  $\mathfrak{A}$  has been changed to  $\mathfrak{A}$ , and further to  $\mathfrak{E}$ .

In Sindhī the use of the letter  $\overline{\mathbf{v}}$  is confined to a limited number of indigenous vocables (those, which have been borrowed from foreign sources, not being taken into account), but that it is still to be considered more or less exceptional, may be concluded from the circumstance, that the Prākrit rules concerning its permutations ( $\overline{\mathbf{v}} = \mathbf{H} = \mathbf{E}$ ) are still in full force in Sindhī, as:  $\mathbf{H} = \mathbf{V} = \mathbf{V}$

The same law holds good with reference to the cerebral ष š, which like ম, passes into स or ह, as: नुहु nuhu, daughter-in-law, Sansk. सुषा; विसु visu, world, Sansk. विषय; वेसु vēsu, disguise, Sansk. वेष.

ম and ম are in Sindhī also frequently changed to জ ch, as: কিন্তু kicharī, rise and pulse boiled together (Hindī বিন্তু), Sansk. কুমা; কুঁজন chancharu, Saturday, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha, or জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha, or জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha, or জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha, or জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha, or জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; কু cha chaha, six, Prāk. জা, Sansk. মানিয়া; ক্লাই chaha, six, Prāk. জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জাই chaha, six, six, Prāk. জাই chaha, six, Prāk. জাই chaha,

The cerebral \(\begin{aligned} \bar{\bar{\pi}} & \text{is occasionally written in Sindh\(\bar{\pi},\) but only by Brāhmans, and even with them its use depends on their relative knowledge of Sanskrit. We may therefore as well leave out this letter from the consonantal system of the Sindhī, as its actual pronunciation is completely ignored. In Capt. Stack's Sindhī Dictionary some words are given with the cerebral \(\mathbf{q}\), such as: विषई višaī, voluptuary, दुष्टु duštu, bad, न्यू kaštu, wretchedness etc., but the letter itself as well as those words are only known to the Brähmans.

The guttural s n, as well as the palatal s n, keep their place in Sindhī as single letters, e. g. > sig anu, body (Hindī ऋंग् or आंग्), Sansk. ऋङ्गः मङ्गु mananu, to ask (Hindī मांग्ना), Sansk. मार्गेण (r. मृग्); मजणु mańanu, to heed (Hindī माना), Sansk. मानन. In the kindred dialects both these nasals are only used in conjunction with a letter of their varga, and never as single consonants (the Panjābī alone being excepted).

The cerebral un has not supplanted the dental ज in Sindhī, as in Prākrit, but both are sharply kept asunder; U n is also used as a single consonant, in the same way as so in and so in, and is of very frequent occurrence, in which respect the Panjābī alone agrees with the Sindhī, the other dialects using un only before letters of the cerebral class, with the exception of the Hindūstānī, which is destitute of a cerebral nasal.

§. 6.

1) Single consonants at the beginning of a word.

At the beginning of a word the following consonants occur in Sindhī:

- 1) Gutturals: 南 k, 碣 kh; 可 g, घ gh; 長 h; — ग g. 2) Palatals: च č, 豉 čh; 丙 j, 丸 jh; य y; 取 š, 蛃 j. 3) Cerebrals: 乙 t, 乙 th; 弖 d, 邑 dh; 亨 r; — ᆯ d. 4) Dentals: 丙 t, 꾀 th; 己 d, 뵙 dh; 畐 n; 【r; 己 l; Ң s; —
- 5) Labials: பp, फph; बb, Hbh; Hm; बv; ඉb.

This scheme deviates from that of the Prākrit in some essential points, which we have partly already noticed.

Peculiar to the Sindhī is the cerebral  $\xi$  r, beginning a word, which is not found in any of the other dialects. It is, however, also in Sindhī confined to the two interjections  $\xi$  rē and  $\xi$  rī; the former is used in calling out to a man, the latter in calling out to a woman. There can be no doubt, that we have in both forms the Sansk. interjectional adverb  $\xi$  (which form is also used in Sindhī) which has been vindicated by Dr. Caldwell (Comparative Grammar of the Drāvidian languages, p. 440) to the Drāvidian idioms of the south, and the original signification of which is: o slave! The correctness of Dr. Caldwell's statement is borne out by the Sindhī, in which besides  $\xi$  and  $\xi$ , also  $\xi$  and  $\xi$  also  $\xi$  and  $\xi$  is used, corresponding to the Drāvidian adā.

All those consonants, as arrayed above, hold their place at the beginning of a word, when standing single; but when a noun happens to be compounded, then the first consonant of the second noun is no longer considered initial, and may therefore be elided, as: Hआरो siārō, the cold season, Prākrit already मोआरो, Sansk.

1) A k is not subject to aspiration, as in some examples of the Prākrit, e. g. पुजा, Sansk. A and in the case of the genitive affix and in the case of the genit and in the genitive

The k of Arabic-Persian words on the other hand is now and then aspirated or even changed to يُر , as: يُلِيَّانِ khutābu, school, or خُتَابُ يُعْانُ khutābu, school, or كُتَابُ يُعْانُ ;كُتَّابُ sukhānu, a rudder, Arab. سُكَهَانُ ;كُتَّابُ

- 2) न g is aspirated in the single instance of घर gharu, a house, Prāk. घर (instead of नहे), Sansk. नह.
- 3)  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  t is very frequently changed to the corresponding cerebral  $\mathbf{Z}$  t. The tendency of the dentals, to surrender their place to the corresponding cerebrals, has so much got the upper hand in Sindhī, that its consonantal system differs therein quite materially and significantly from the old Prākrit; e. g.  $\overline{\mathbf{Z}}$   $\overline{\mathbf{I}}$   $\overline{\mathbf{I}}$

The cerebral Z (Z) with its media Z (G) comprises the most non-Ārian elements of the language; nearly  $^{3}/_{4}$  of the words, which commence with a cerebral, are taken from some aboriginal, non-Ārian idiom, which in recent times has been termed "Scythian" ), but which we would prefer to call Tātār. This seams to be a very strong proof, that the cerebrals have been borrowed from some idiom anterior to the introduction of the Arian family of languages; the Sanskrit uses the cerebrals very sparingly, but in Prākrit, which is already considerably tinged with so-called "provincial" (i. e. non-Ārian) elements, they struggle already hard to supplant the dentals.

4) c d, as well as its tenuis n t, is very frequently changed to the corresponding cerebral s d, and, as even d did not seem hard enough at the beginning of a word, it was changed in most cases to the peculiar Sindhī s d (the pronunciation of which see under the Sindhī alphabets), as: s dolī, a kind of sedan chair, Prākrit already s on, Sansk. c of sedan chair, Prākrit already s of sedan chair, Prākrit sus, Sansk. ट्राइ; ड्रिअणु तृंंaṇu, to give, Prāk. ट्रिम, Sansk. root दा; ड्रिमणु तृंंsaṇu, to see, Prāk. ट्रक्स Sansk. हम्. But if r be joined to the cerebral media, the simple cerebral (ड) must be used, as ड्र तृं is already by its own nature a double cerebral, e. g. ड्रासा तृंतिkha, grape, Sansk. ट्रासा (Hindī टास). The simple cerebral ड तृं is very seldom to be met with at the beginning of a word, and must be carefully distinguished from ड तृं, as: डिठा तृंंति, obstinate, but डिठा तृंंति, seen, participle past of डि्सणु to see.

ই d, is changed to its aspirate ધ dh in the single instance of ঘিয় dhia, daughter, after the precedent of the Prākrit ঘারা or ঘায়া.

- 5) Initial प is aspirated in some instances, as: until phāsī or until phāhī, a noose, Sansk. until (Hindī until); now and then it passes also to the semi-vowel a (by the medium of a b) as: antil vājhō, a Hindū schoolmaster, Sansk. 3until (initial un having first been dropped).
- 6) The semi-vowel य y has become now very scarce in Sindhī at the beginning of a word, as: यभणु yabhaṇu, coire; यटो yaṭō, stout; यारंहं yārāhā, eleven. After the analogy of the Prākrit initial य is generally changed to ज, as: जो jō, who, Sansk. यो; जसु jasu, fame, Sansk. यश.

In words, borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, y is always preserved, as: যাহ yāru, friend, Pers. এ. etc.

The only instance, where initial ય has been changed to ত l in Sindhī is ত a the, a walking-stick; the same is the case in Prākrit, ত, Sansk. যছি.

§. 7.

2) Single consonants in the midst of a word.

According to a common Prākrit rule the following consonants:

when standing single in the midst of a word, may either be retained or elided. This rule we find corroborated by the Sindhī, but not without some essential restrictions, the consonants being on the whole more frequently retained than elided, as the effeminacy of pronunciation has not yet reached that degree of indistinctness in Sindhī, which so peculiarly characterizes the Prākrit. We shall therefore find, that in many instances the Sindhī has followed the already beaten track, but has more frequently preserved the old harder form, or chosen its own way of elision and contraction. The semi-vowels are but rarely totally elided in Sindhī; they either keep their place or are dissolved into their corresponding vowels.

Examples of elision: मुई suī, needle, Prāk. मूई, Sansk. मूची. किन्नो kiō, done, Prak. किटो, Sansk. कृत; राज rāu, prince, Prāk. राज्ञा, Sansk. राजा; चउमासो ča-umāsō, the rainy season, Sansk. चतुमास; सरउ sara-u, autumn, Prāk. सरदो, Sansk. शरद; पिउ piu, father, Prāk. पिञ्जा, Sansk. पिता.

This process of elision is extended even to foreign words, as: नाषुत्रों nākhuỗ, a ship-master, Pers. نَاخُذُا

But more frequently the consonants keep their place, as: सागह sāgaru, the sea, Prāk. साञ्चरी, Sansk. सागर; नगह nagaru, town, Prāk. गुज्ञरी, Sansk. नगर; वचनु vačanu, promise, Prāk. वञ्चरां, Sansk. वचनं.

It is quite characteristical, that the Prākrit does not elide the cerebrals, for which it shows already such a predilection, but, wherever possible, it changes the dentals into cerebrals, to guard them thus against elision. This process we find in full operation in the modern dialects, which have sprung from the Prākrit; the common dentals have become too weak for the mouth of the people, a circumstance, which receives a particular light from the manner, in which the modern Indians write and pronounce European words; every dental is without mercy changed by them into a cerebral, which proves at least so much, that the cerebrals are more familiar to them, than the dentals.

Let us now briefly glance over the exceptions, which have been noted down by the Prākrit grammarians.

1) According to the rule, laid down at the head of this paragraph, the letters  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  k,  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  g,  $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$  č,  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  j are, when not elided, retained. The exceptions from this rule in Prākrit are not borne out by the Sindhī, and seem therefore to have been more of a local character. The only exception, which is corroborated by the modern idioms, is the Prākrit form  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$ , sister, Sansk.  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$ , which must be explained by an original form  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  and Sindhī, by transposition of the aspiration,  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  which  $\overline{\mathbf{n}}$  bhēṇu.

क k, may pass into its corresponding media ग, as: भग्त bhagatu, a worshipper, Sansk. भक्त; सग्ति sagate, strength, Sansk. शक्ति. On the contrary there is a transition of ग to क (and by the influence of following r to kh) in खड़ khaḍa, a pit, Prāk. गइ, Sansk. गते.

2) The cerebral  $\mathbf{Z}$  thand its aspirate  $\mathbf{Z}$  thand from their corresponding media, as:  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  thand from a necklace (besides  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  and  $\mathbf{\hat{z}}$ ), Sansk.  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  this is fully borne out by the modern dialects, especially the Sindh, which goes already a step further in this downward course, and changes  $\mathbf{\hat{z}}$  do  $\mathbf{\hat{z}}$  rand  $\mathbf{\hat{c}}$  dhand to  $\mathbf{\hat{c}}$  rh; e. g.  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  baru, the Indian fig-tree, Sansk.  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  is  $\mathbf{\hat{z}}$  troranu, to break, Sansk.  $\mathbf{\hat{a}}$  is  $\mathbf{\hat{z}}$  rapparatum, to read, Sansk. पर्; पीढ़ी pīrhī, throne, Sansk. पीठी;

लुढ़ेणु lurhanu, to roll down, Sansk. लुद.

To this permutation also the original Sanskritical s d is subject in many instances, as: g y juranu, to be joined, Sansk. g; ul; up pīranu, to press, Sansk. ul; g; jaru, inanimate body, Sansk. manner also the Sansk. dh may be changed to rh, as: Hē, mūrhu, ignorant, Sansk. Hē.

But by far the greatest number of words, in which

r or rh is to be found, is of non-Ārian origin.

3) त very often passes into its media द, as: खाँदि khānde, patience, Sansk. सानि. The Sansk. participial termination अन (अत्) is always changed in Sindhī to अंदो andō, as: हलंदो halandō, going, कंदो doing. त is even changed to an aspirated cerebral, but only in such cases, where the aspiration has been caused by an elided r, as: वरु vathu, taking, Sansk. वृति. त is preserved in many instances, where in Prākrit it has passed into the media द, as हित rute, season, Prāk. उद्ज, Sansk. ज्तुत. In words borrowed from the Arabic (or Persian) त is occasionally aspirated, as: हिस्सथ himmatha, Arab.

4) प only rarely passes into its media व, as वि bi, also, Sansk. ऋषि; रज्वूत rajbūtu, a Rajput, Sansk. रा-

जपुन; Prāk. उबरि upon, but Sindhī परि.

Final  $\mathbf{q}$  is now and then changed to  $\mathbf{u}$  ( $\mathbf{p} = \mathbf{b} = \mathbf{v} = \mathbf{u}$ ), as:  $\mathbf{n} = \mathbf{q}$  tau, heat, Sansk.  $\mathbf{n} = \mathbf{q}$  Hindī  $\mathbf{n} = \mathbf{q}$  taō.

5) The substitution of ত in lieu of š has been preserved in the case of: নতাৰ talāu, a tank, Prāk.

तलाञ्चं, Sansk. तहाग. In other examples however the course, taken by the Prākrit, has again been abandoned, and a new one struck out; e.g. the Prākrit डाल्मि, pomegranate, sprung from the Sanskrit दाडिम (by the substitution of ठ for ड) becomes in Sindhī ड्राइं त्रें त्रिंगे (Hindī दाडिम), the initial dental द being first changed to ड त and then hardened to ड त, and ड त passing into इ r with an additional aspiration (which is rather unusual).

The modern idioms deviate in this respect from the Prākrit, that they change $\vec{\mathbf{S}}$ \tilde{\mathbf{Q}}$ to $\vec{\mathbf{S}}$ r, instead of substituting $\vec{\mathbf{O}}$ for $\vec{\mathbf{S}}$ is therein also lies a hint, how the substitution of $\vec{\mathbf{O}}$ for $\vec{\mathbf{S}}$ has been possible. The change must have been effected by the medium of $\vec{\mathbf{S}}$ r (not of $\vec{\mathbf{L}}$, as Lassen supposes), which approaches $\vec{\mathbf{O}}$ very closely in sound. This explains sufficiently such like cases as: $\vec{\mathbf{Q}}$ \tilde{\mathbf{O}}$ pīlō, yellow, Sansk. $\vec{\mathbf{Q}}$ in the change must have passed through the following stages, as: $\vec{\mathbf{Q}}$ in $\vec{\math

6) The substitution of \(\mathbf{\text{r}}\) for \(\mathbf{\text{\text{t}}}\) in those numerals, which are compounded with \(\mathbf{\text{\text{N}}}\), has been retained in Sindhī, as well as in the cognate dialects, e. g. Prāk. \(\mathbf{vait}\), Sindhī \(\mathbf{viit}\), Sindhī \(\mathbf{viit}\), Sindhī \(\mathbf{viit}\), Sindhī \(\mathbf{viit}\), thirteen; \(\mathbf{\text{c}}\) however must be standing by itself, for Prāk. \(\mathbf{vait}\), Sindhī \(\mathbf{viit}\), fourteen.

3) Single Aspirates in the midst of a word.

On the average the aspirates are in Sindhī more frequently preserved, than elided, though the Prākrit laws, concerning their elision, are also in force.

remains. This phenomenon is so far of great importance, as the Prākrit seems to indicate thereby, that it considers the aspirates as compound consonants, like gh, bh etc., the base of which is dropped and the spiritus  $\xi$  alone retained. The aversion of the Prākrit against the aspirates seems to point to a Tātār under-ground current in the mouth of the common people, the Drāvidian languages of the south being destitute of aspirates. Against this tendency of clearing away the aspirates the modern idioms react far more strongly than the old Prākrit, their pronunciation proving in this respect much tighter, than that of their immediate common mother-tongue.

Examples of elision: मुंहुं műhű, face, Prāk. मुहं, Sansk. मुख; but मुखु mukhu is also in use in Sindhī; मीहु mĩhu, rain, Prāk. मेहो, Sansk. मेघ; in Sindhī also मेघ; मही sahī, friend, Prāk. मही, Sansk. मिख; कहणु kahaṇu, to say, Prāk. कह, Sansk. कथ; लहणु lahaṇu, to obtain, Prāk. लह, Sansk. लभ.

In some instances the Sindhī advances beyond the Prākrit by dropping  $\xi$ , which has been severed from its base, as;  $\xi$  sāū, upright, Prāk.  $\xi$  Sansk.  $\xi$

- b) But more commonly the aspirates in question are retained, as: मुखु sukhu, pleasure, Prāk. मुख; ऋधीरो adhīrō, hasty, Prāk. ऋधीरो; मुघड़, sugharu, shrewd, Sansk. मुघट.
- c) The aspirates छ čh, रूjh, ढ ṭh, ढ ḍh, फ ph are retained unaltered; e. g. इछा ičhā, wish, Sansk. इछा; अछा ačhō, white, Sansk. अछ; कंठी kanṭhī, a kind of necklace, Sansk. करठीय; ढूंढणु ḍhūnḍhaṇu, to seek, Sansk. ढूंढण; सफलु saphalu, fruitful, Sansk. सफल.
- d) The aspirate उ th may also pass into its corresponding media, as: मुंडि sundhe, ginger, Sansk. गुर्ने, Hindī मोंट; कंडी kandhī, a kind of necklace (besides कंठी); गंढि ganḍhe, a bundle, Prāk. ग्राहि, Sansk. यन्थि.

The cases of a media passing into its corresponding tenuis are very rare, as: भूतो suṭhō, pure, Sansk. शुइ, Hindī again सूध्.

e) The aspirated dental य th passes in some instances into its corresponding media ध, as: पंधु pandhu, journey, Sansk. पन्या m. The aspirated dentals may also be exchanged for their corresponding cerebrals, as: बुढ़ो buḍhō, old, Prāk. वृद्ध, Sansk. वृद्ध; मूढ़ mūḍhu, a fool, Prāk. मुद्ध, Sansk. मुग्ध.

The transition of an aspirated dental to its corresponding non-aspirate is very rare, as  $\mathbf{H}\mathbf{\zeta}$  madu, liquor, Sansk. मधु (Hindī मद् and मधु).

4) Single nasals.

The dental  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  n, is now and then changed to the palatal  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  ń, as:  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  thańu, woman's milk, Sansk.  $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  Hindī  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  (udder).  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  is changed to the cerebral  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{u}}$  n in  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{b}}$  und  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{u}}$  dhēnu, a milk-cow, Sansk.  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{b}}$  In the case of  $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{c}}$  Himu, a nimb-tree,  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  has been exchanged for  $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{c}}$ , Sansk.  $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  Hindī  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{a}}$  and  $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{c}}$   $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{b}}$   $\overleftarrow{\mathbf{e}}$ .

The palatal  $\exists$   $\hat{n}$  is in some instances substituted for  $\exists \hat{n}$   $\hat{j}$  (= Sindhī  $\exists \hat{n}$   $\hat{j}$ ), as  $\hat{n}$  minu, marrow, Sansk.  $\hat{n}$  mij; but besides  $\hat{n}$  the form  $\hat{n}$  mija, is also in use. Similarly  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  may supplant  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$ , as:  $\hat{n}$  punī, virtuous, Prāk.  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  may supplant  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  sunō, empty, Prāk.  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  Sansk.  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  It only rarely happens, that a cerebral  $\hat{n}$  is changed to a dental one, as:  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  (= punnō) accomplished, participle past of  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$  Sansk.  $\hat{n}$   $\hat{n}$

A single H m in the midst of a word is now and then elided, as: मांई sãँ, lord, Sansk. स्वामी (= स्वा- मिन्); but the form मामी sāmī has likewise been preserved.

म m is further elided in the affixes मन् (= इमन्) and मय, as: अञ्चारिष ačhāṇe, whiteness, from अञ्चा ačhō, white; लोहांओं lōhãō, made of iron; further in the affix मन्, as: भयेनु bharyatu, a carrier of burden, from भरी, a load. These forms we shall explain further on in the formation of themes.

§. 10.

5) The semi-vowels u y, and a v.

1) In Prākrit य y has lost its hold in the midst of a word; it is either dissolved into the vowel i, or changed to ज j, or dropped altogether. In Sindhī on the contrary य may keep its place in the midst of a word; it is even frequently inserted, to avoid a hiatus, as: आयो āyō, come, भयो bharyō, filled, though these forms may also be written and pronounced: आड्यो ā-i-ō, bhar-i-ō, which is frequently done in poëtry, to gain a syllable. The cases, where य has been dropped altogether in Sindhī, are rare, as: वाउ vā-u, wind, Prāk. already वाऊ, Sansk. वायु; य is frequently contracted, as: नेणु nēṇu, eye, Prāk. णञ्जणं, Sansk. नयनं; at the end of a word the elision of य is more common, as: विश्व višu, world, Sansk. विषय. After the precedent of the Prākrit य is exchanged for ज in cases like the following: सेज sēja, bed, Prāk. सेजा, Sansk. श्रया; पीज pīju, draught, Sansk. पंयं etc.

य as a sign of the passive verb is in Sindhī, as already in Prākrit, always changed to ज j, a method, by which the Sindhī has gained a regular passive voice, whereas all the kindred dialects are compelled to make up the passive by compositions; e. g. द्विसज्यु disijaņu, to be seen, active द्विसयु disaņu, to see, Hindī देखा जाना etc.

2) a v is, after the analogy of a, either preserved or dissolved into u; but if the laws of euphony require it, it is again reinstated between two vowels, and very rarely dropped altogether; e. g. जीउ jīu, life, formative जीव jīva (instead of जीअ jīa), Prāk. जीअं, Sansk. जीव; देवी dēvī, goddess; on the other hand देउ dēu, a demon, formative देव dēva; पवनु pavanu, wind, Prāk. पउगु, Sansk. पवन. It is also now and then totally elided; as: जिञ्रणु jianu, to live; ड्रीह वैंतिष, day, Prāk. दिञ्रहो, Sansk. दिवस, especially when compounded with another consonant, as we shall see hereafter. It may also be contracted, as: पूर्ण pūṇu, to fall, instead of पवणु; चूर्ण čūņu, to say, instead of चवण. In the prefix अव it may also be contracted to श्री au, as: श्रीसाह ausāru or अवसार avasāru, want of rain; श्रीतार autāru or अवतारु avatāru, an Avatār.

A euphonic insertion of ব takes place in the word হোব chāva shade, to keep the two vowels ā-a asunder; in Prākrit already, for similar reasons, ই has been inserted, হোহা (comp. Varar. II, 18), Sansk. হোৱা.

§. 11.

- 6) The liquidae ₹ r and ♂ l; the sibilant ₦ s and the spiritus ₹ h.
- 1) र r and ल l are not elided in Sindhī, but keep their respective places; ल is frequently exchanged for र in Sindhī, as: केलो kēlō or केरो kērō, name of a flower; चुंबुली burbulī, a nightingale, from the Persian نُلْبُر; सिञ्जाह siāru, a jackal, Hindī सिञ्जाल, Sansk. श्रुगाल;

डुबिरो वैप्य केंग्रिंग (weak, instead of: डुबिलो वैप्य केंग्रिंग) which is also in use, Sansk. दुबेल; स्राह sarāha, praise, Prāk. सलाहा, Sansk. खाघा. The only example, in which that been changed to ज = ज़ is पुज्या pujaņu, to be accomplished (Hindī likewise पूज्ना) from the Sansk. पूर्या.

2) The sibilant H (be it original or a derivative from N and H) either keeps its place or is changed to E, as: ch dēsu, country, more generally: g dēhu, Sansk. c n; H māsu, flesh, or H māhu, Sansk.

मांसं.

In the case of t̄ hanju or t̄ hanjhu, a wild goose, original H has been exchanged for ¬ or ¬ (in Hindī t̄ or t̄ nor t̄, Sansk. t̄ Similarly t̄ hanja or t̄ hanjha, tear, Sansk. yy, Prāk. ȳ (initial h being in Sindhī of a euphonic nature in this case); in the same way the Sindhī demonstrative pronoun t̄ ijhō seems to have sprung from UH = UH, and J no ijhō from the remote demonstrative base u, and sō (= sa).

3) ξ h remains unaltered in Sindhī; in some instances however it is dropped for euphony's sake, as: सर्हो sarahō, joyful, Sansk. सहस (= सहरसो = सह-रहो साऊ sā-ū or साहू sāhū, the same as:

साधु or साध् honest.

Remark. The final consonants, their respective changes and permutations we may here as well pass over, as the modern Indian vernaculars have already so much receded from the old Prākrit, that partly quite new formations have been introduced, which preclude any nearer comparison with the Prākrit. The particular changes or elisions, to which the final consonants are subject in Sindhī, we shall supply in their proper places.

§. 12.

7) Compound consonants.

For a thorough insight into the nature of the North Indian vernaculars this point is of the greatest importance; for thus only we can trace out the changes, which the Sanskrit has undergone in the mouth of the common people, if we follow up the laws, according to which the Sanskrit sounds have been decomposed into the Präkrit and its modern daughters, or weakened at least to such a degree, that they are now scarcely recognisable. We can perceive a principle pervading this process of decomposition similar to that, by which out of the old Latin the modern Romanic tongues have been derived, and the mutual congruity is often surprising.

We meet here again with the same principle, which we have seen operating in the decomposition of the vowels and the single consonants. The effeminacy of pronunciation, which absorbs every hard and rough sound, and which consequently rather bears up with vowels, though they may form a displeasing hiatus, than with consonants, which are elided wherever possible, can in a far less degree endure compound consonants. All means are therefore employed, either to smooth them down or to assimilate them, in order to adjust them for a Prākrit mouth, a consonant compounded of letters of different vargas being incompatible with Prākrit rules of euphony. It is understood, that in such an idiom a conjunction of three letters is quite out of question; the utmost which the Prākrit can endure, is the same letter doubled, as a kk, a tt etc.; I and a alone cannot be doubled.

Another means, to do away with a compound consonant, is to dissolve the same into its component parts by the insertion of a vowel, a method, to which recourse is had very frequently in Prākrit and the modern vernaculars.

But even such a doubled consonant is as yet thought too hard; we perceive therefore already a tendency, as well in the old Prākrit as in its daughters, to clear away the doubling of a consonant by prolonging the preceding vowel, to restore thereby again the quantity of the syllable, as: आग् āge, fire, Prāk. अगि, Sansk. अगि, Hindī आग; Hindī भीत wall, Sindhī भिति, §. 13.

A) Assimilation of the first four consonants of the five vargas.

These are the following:

 研 k, 概 kh;
 可 g, 更 gh.

 可 č, 变 čh;
 可 j, 友 jh.

 乙 t, 乙 th;
 c d, 它 dh.

 而 t, 如 th;
 c d, ध dh.

प p, फ ph; ब b, भ bh.

The ground-law of the Prākrit is this: when two consonants form a compound, the former must give way to the latter, by being assimilated to the same; thereby originates the only conjunction of consonants, which is suffered in Prākrit, the doubling of the same consonant. In the dental class this doubling of a consonant does not prevent it from passing over into the cerebral class; in the other vargas the transition of a so doubled consonant to another varga is rare, as the consonant gains more strength by being doubled. The only example of such a transition to another varga is Hay sarvagu, omniscient, Prāk. Hay, Sansk. Hay, where the doubled palatal has been changed into a double guttural (I = II), a transition, which is natural enough in a single consonant, but which is very seldom to be met with in a doubled consonant. Hay saghaņu, to be able, Prāk. HayIII, Sansk. NashII have escaped my notice.

On the whole the Sindhī, as well as the kindred dialects, agrees with this ground-law of the Prākrit¹), without making it an immutable rule of its proceedings: for it may also assimilate the following consonant to the preceding. In many instances the Sindhī is more original, than the Prākrit, by preserving such like conjunctions of consonants, as are usual in Sanskrit.

Examples of assimilation.

मुतो sutō, asleep, Prāk. मुत्तो, Sansk. मुप्त; उपनो upanō, created, Prāk. उप्पर्गा, Sansk. उत्पद्ध; भतु bhatu, boiled rice, Prāk. भत्त, Sansk. भत्त (Hindī भात्, by prolonging the preceding vowel); लघो ladhō, received, Prāk. लड, Sansk. लख. But on the other hand: जुनो kubō, hump-backed, Prāk. खुन्जो, Sansk. जुन.

But an original compound consonant may also be preserved unaltered in Sindhī, as: शब्दु šabdu, word, Prāk. सह, Sansk. शब्द; मुक्तो, mukto, free, Prāk. मुत्त, Sansk. मुक्ता.

It depends however more or less on the option of the speaker, if he will pronounce a compound consonant as such, or separate the same by the insertion of a vowel, as: neg šabdu, or neg šabidu, the inserted i being pronounced so rapidly, that it is scarcely perceptible. The Musalmāns therefore, when writing with Arabic letters, never place the sign jazm (a) above a consonant, destitute of a vowel, but always add the kasr, which is nearly equal to jazm, it being scarcely heard at all in pronunciation. The next vowel, thus inserted, is usually i (kasr), but a or u may also be employed, according to euphony or the sequence of vowels, as: भग्त bhagatu, a worshipper, Sansk. 兴新; मग्ति sagate, power, Sansk. H新 (Hindī 共新元 f.).

<sup>1)</sup> It must be stated here, that according to the common method of writing the Sindhī, a double consonant is not expressed generally, but only in such instances, where two words, written else in the same way, are to be distinguished, as if una, by him, and in una, wool.

§. 14.

B) Assimilation of the nasals.

a) A nasal, preceding a consonant, generally keeps its place as: अंतु antu, end, Sansk. अन्त. A preceding nasal may be dropped altogether, if the preceding vowel happen to be a long one, as: माम māsu, flesh, Sansk. मांसं; गाड्डो gāḍō, a cart, Sansk. गन्ती (Hindī गाड़ी), the doubled consonant being cleared away in the latter instance by the prolongation of the preceding vowel.

The compound न nm is severed by the insertion of a vowel, as: जनमु janamu, birth, Sansk. जन्म.

b) In a compound consonant the following nasal is assimilated to the preceding consonant, as: স্থানি āge, fire, Prāk. স্থানি, Sansk. স্থানি; ন্তন্য lagō, applied, Prāk. ন্তন্য, Sansk. ন্তন্য, bhagō, broken, Sansk. মন.

The compound consonant however may also remain unaltered, or be taken asunder by the insertion of a vowel, as: Top ratnu or Top ratanu, jewel; Holling jujānu, wise, Prāk. Hom, Sansk. Hom, Sansk. Hom, Sansk. Hom, Sansk.

The nasal may also be pushed forward, to escape being assimilated: as: नंगो nangō, naked, Prāk. नगो, Sansk. नग.

On the reverse a following nasal may also assimilate a preceding consonant, as: सइन sa-ina, hint, Sansk. संज्ञा; राणी rāṇī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी. The nasal may also assimilate a preceding consonant in such a wise, that it draws the same over at the same time to its own varga. The only example of such an assimilation (if it be not to be explained in some other way) is the reflexive pronoun un pāṇa, self, Prāk. Şuri, Sansk. Şiri; in Hindī we have the form Şiu, which has sprung from Şuu, instead of Şir (= Şiri); compare on this head: Lassen §. 67.

c) The nasals may assimilate a preceding or following semi-vowel, as: पुत्री puńī, virtuous, Prāk. पुरास, Sansk. पुरास; सुत्रो suńō, empty, Prāk. सुरास, Sansk. श्रास; उन्न unna, wool, Sansk. उर्स; चउमासो ča-umāsō, the rainy season, Sansk. चतुमास.

On the other hand notice पूरो pūrō, full, Sansk. पूर्ण; चूरु čūru, pulverized, Sansk. चूर्ण, where the semi-vowel r has assimilated the nasal, r being stronger in sound, than n.

म mr in the Sanskrit आम āmra, is changed in Sindhī to mb, as: अंबु ambu, mangoe, Prāk. अस् (Hindī आम्); but in the case of the Sindhī word ट्रामा trāmo, copper, Sansk. ताम, Prāk. तस (Hindī तांबा or तामा) the semi-vowel r has been pushed forward to t = t, as r may easily hold its place in conjunction with a dental or cerebral.

C) Assimilation of the semi-vowels.

a) The semi-vowel य y.

α) If the semi-vowel 4 happen to be joined to a preceding consonant, it is assimilated to the same, as:

जोगु jōgu, fit, Prāk. जोग्ग, Sansk. योग्य, Hindī जोग; वाघु vāghu, a tiger, Sansk. व्याघ; वद्मु va-isu, a Vaishya, Sansk. वेश्य (Hindī बेम्). It may, however, also hold its place, as: वास्यु vākyu, a sentence, Sansk. वास्य, though this is very rarely the case.

- β) य, when compounded with a preceding  $\mathbf{t}$ , is elided, as: तुरी turī, a small trumpet, Prāk. तुरं, Sansk. तूयं; धीर dhīra, firmness, Prāk. धीरं, Sansk. धेरं; आर् āru, sense of honor, Sansk. आर्थ, Hindī आर्ज्. But  $\mathbf{u}$  may also be preserved by being changed to  $\mathbf{u}$ , as: धीर्जु dhīrju, the same as: धीर; सूरिजु sūriju, the sun, Prāk. सूरो or सुज्जो, Sansk. सूर्थ; अचुर्जु ačurju, wonderful, Prāk. अच्छरिआ, Sansk. आश्चरे.
- γ) य joined to a preceding dental is either simply dropped, as: नितु nitu, always, Prāk. निञ्च, Sansk. नित्य; आदित् āditu, the sun, Sansk. आदित्य, or it may also, though rarely, be preserved, as: मठ्यां mathyã, falsely, Prāk. मिछा, Sansk. मिथा. But the more usual way is that य, being first assimilated to a preceding dental, draws the same over to its own (i. e. palatal) class, so that त्य is changed to च, थ्य to छ, द्य to ज and थ्य to उठ्ठ (for which double consonants, as remarked already, the simple bases are only written in Sindhī); e. g. विज्ञा vijā, science (ज = ज), Prāk. बिजा, Sansk. विद्या; अज़ aju, to-day, Sansk. अद्य (Hindī आज); बाज़ khāju, food, Sansk. खाद्य; मठू, manjhu, the midst, Prāk. मज्जो, Sansk. मध्य; वृद्धणु bajhaņu, to be bound, Sansk. वध्य; वाज़ो vājhō, a Hindū schoolmaster, Sansk. उपाध्याय; हचा hačā, murder, Sansk. हत्या.
- ১) य joined to a preceding ह is changed to চ্ jh, as: गुरु gujhō, concealed, Prāk. गुरुहान्नो, Sansk. गुरु
- s) य is assimilated to a preceding ल, but final ल, instead of being doubled in consequence thereof, is aspirated, e. g. क्ह kalha, yerterday, Prāk. क्झ, Sansk. क्यं (Hindī कल); मुन्ह mulhu, price, Sansk. मूल्य; in the midst of a word य is simply assimilated to ल (the doubling not being expressed in Sindhī), as: पलगुं palangu, a bedstead, Sansk. पर्मु (r being exchanged for l); पलगुं palāṇu, a pack-saddle, Prāk. प्राण, Sansk. पर्मण.

b) The semi-vowel $\mathbf{\zeta}$ r.

a) र is assimilated to a preceding or following consonant, as: अगु agu, the front, Prāk. अगो, Sansk. अगः गूजरी gūjarī, name of a Rāgiṇī, Sansk. गुजरी; गुजणु gajaṇu, to thunder, Sansk. गुजन (but Hindī गरजना); कमु kamu (= kammu), business, Prāk. कमो, Sansk. कमेन (Hindī काम्); मुंढी munḍhī, head, Sansk. मुईन; मु sapu, snake; Sansk. मपे; सिघो sighō, quick, Sansk. शीघे (Hindī शीघर); चकी čakī, a mill, Sansk. चक; निभाग nibhāgu, misfortune, Sansk. निभाग.

On the other hand र, preceding or following a consonant, may just as easily hold its place, without being assimilated, as: चर्ची čarco, silly talk, Sansk. चर्चा; प्री prī, friend, Sansk. प्रिय; पर्भ parbhu, a festival, Sansk. पर्व (व = ब, and ब aspirated by the influence of र); गर्व garbu, pride, Sansk. गर्व; युक्त šukru, Friday, Sansk. युक्त; सुर्गु surgu, heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; धर्मु dharmu, religion, Prāk. धरम, Sansk. धर्म.

Very frequently such a compound is again dissolved into its constituent parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: पिरी pirĩ, friend, or प्री prĩ; पिरिमाति piribhāte, break of day, Sansk. प्रमात; or r is transposed for euphony's sake, as: पतापु partāpu, splendour, Sansk. प्रताप; पतु partu, leaf (of a book), Sansk. पच; ड्रिघो drighō, long, Prāk. रिग्ध, Sansk. रीधे; किति kirte, trade, कित् kirtu, action, Sansk. कृति and कृत; ट्रकु ṭraku, a spinning wheel, Sansk. तक्.

It very rarely happens, that r is totally elided in a compound, as: arg vāghu, tiger, Sansk. arg; that rāte, night, Sansk. that (Prāk. that by ejection of ā); had, brother, Sansk. hall. The ejection of r in these and such like examples is caused by the preceding long vowel, which precludes the possibility of assimilating the compound consonant, or by the consonant, with which r forms a conjunction, being initial. In such cases, as the Prākrit has preferred to drop the long vowel, in order to make room for assimilation.

β) When compounded with a preceding dental, r is in most cases assimilated to the same in Prākrit, though it may also keep its place; in Sindhī on the other hand r is, when following a dental, mostly preserved, and the assimilation takes place only in the dialect of Lar (Lower Sindh), whereas in the dialect of the Upper country (Sirō) the original compound is preserved, the dental only being commonly changed to a cerebral (or even to an aspirated cerebral, by the influence of r); e. g. putru, son, Prāk. पुत्त, Sansk. पुत्र (in Lār: पुरू puttu, according to the analogy of the Prākrit); Hz mitru, friend, Prāk. मित्र, Sansk. मित्र (in Lāṛ: मिट्टू miṭṭu); चंद्रु čandru, the moon, Prāk. चन्द, Sansk. चन्द्र; खेट्र khēṭru, a field, Sansk. श्लेच; मंट्रू manṭru (or with transiton to the media) मंद्र mandru, an incantation, Sansk. मन्त्र; ट्रे trē, three, Sansk. चि; डुढू dadhru, or डुढु dadhu, a cutaneous disease, Sansk. दद्; द्वापगु dhrāpaņu, to be satiated, Sansk तपेस (by transition of the tenuis into the media). In those adverbs, which are compounded with the adverbial affix \(\frac{1}{3}\), \(\frac{1}{3}\) is, after the precedent of the Prākrit, changed in Sindhī to य, as: किंग्रे kithē, where; जिये jithē, in which place; तिये tithe, in that place etc.

R, when preceding a dental, may likewise be assimilated to the same, as: कत्या kataņu, to spin, Sansk. कर्तन; कता katara, scissors, Sansk. कर्ती; वटि vaṭĕ, a wig, Sansk. वर्तिका; खड khaḍa, a pit, Prāk. गड़ी, Sansk. गते. On the other hand the compound may also be retained unaltered, as: अधांगु ardhāngu, palsey, Sansk. अधाङ्ग; अर्थु arthu, object, Sansk. अर्थ; तीथु tīrthu, a holy bathing-place, Sansk. तीथ; or the compound may again be dissolved by the insertion of a vowel, as: मूर्ति mūrate, image, Sansk. मूर्ति; कीरित kīrate, glory, Sansk. कीर्ति, Prāk. किति; तीर्थ tīrathu = तीथु.

γ) वे rv is either assimilated, as: समु sabhu, all, Sansk. सर्वे, Hindī सव् (the aspiration of b being caused in Sindhī by the influence of elided r); or the compound may be retained unaltered, as, सर्वसग्ति sarvasagate, omnipotent; or the compound may be dissolved again by the insertion of a vowel, as: पूर्व pūrabu, the east, either be assimilated, as, मुद्रो suō, heard, Prāk. मुद्रो (= मुत्रो), Sansk. श्रुत; समु sasu, mother-in-law, Sansk. श्रुश्च; or, the compound may be retained, as: श्री šrī, prosperity; or more commonly, the compound is dissolved by the insertion of a vowel, as सिराधु sirādhu, funeral obsequies, Sansk. श्राह्म (Hindī श्राह्म). The Sanskrit श्रुश्च, tear, Prāk. already श्रुम् (instead of श्राम्) has become in Hindī श्राम्; the Sindhī form is हंज hanja or हंद्र hanjha (with initial euphonic h), s being changed in this instance to ज or रू; Panjābī likewise anjhu.

Sansk. पूर्व.

The same holds good with reference to the compound

स्र sr, as: सहसु sahasu, thousand, Prāk. सहस्र, Sansk. सहस्र.

The compound श्री rš and षे rš are assimilated in Sindhī as well as in Prākrit, as: वस्णु to rain, Sansk. वर्ष; पासो pāsō, side, Sansk. पाश्चे (Hindī पास); सिसो sisī, head and neck, Sansk. शीषे (Hindī मीस); or they are preserved (of course with transition of श्व and ष to स), as: दसेन darsanu, interview, Sansk. दशेन; तसेणु tarsanu, to wait, Sansk. तषेण; the compound ष rš may also be dissolved into रस, and this again into रह, as: सहो sarahō, happy, Sansk. सहषे (compare §. 11, end).

c) The semi-vowel $\overline{c}$ l.

- a) ल forming a compound with another consonant at the beginning of a word, is severed from the same by the insertion of a vowel, as: सराह sarāha, praise, Prāk. मलाहा, Sansk. ख्राधा (r = 1 in Sindhī); किलेमु kilēsu, fatigue, Sansk. क्रेग (Hindī कलेम्); मलोकु salōku, a Slōka, Sansk. ख्रोक.
- β) In the midst of a word  $\overline{\mathcal{O}}$  is assimilated to any consonant, save  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$ ,  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  and  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$ , as:  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  bakaru, vegetables, Prāk.  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  Sansk.  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  or it is severed again from the compound by the insertion of a vowel, as:  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  hot wind, Prāk.  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  Sansk.  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  the initial vowel  $\overline{\mathbf{U}}$  being thrown back to serve in place of an inserted vowel.

d) The semi-vowel a v.

a) व, joined to a preceding consonant at the beginning of a word, is either dissolved into u, as: सुर्गु surgu, heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; दुआर duāru, door, Prāk. दुआरो, Sansk. हार; सुआउ suāu, taste, Sansk. स्वाद; or it is totally elided (i. e. assimilated to the preceding consonant) as: जलण jalaņu, to burn, Sansk. जलन; सर्गु sargu (besides सुर्गु), heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; साई sāī, lord, or सामी sāmī, Prāk. सामि, Sansk. स्वामिन; सहुरो sahurō, father-in-law, Sansk. श्रुगुर; ससु sasu, motherin-law, Sansk. श्रुगु. व v may also be severed from the compound by the insertion of a vowel (a or u), as:

सवाड savāḍu, taste, flavour (besides सुश्राउ), Sansk. स्वाद;
दुवार duvāru, door (besides दुश्रार). व very rarely assimilates a preceding consonant, as: व ba, two, Sansk.
ह (= vva = bba = b̄).

β) ব v being joined to a preceding consonant in the midst of a word, is assimilated to the same, as:

uan pakō (= pakkō) cooked, Prāk. (uan, Sansk. uan;

सतु satu, strength, Prāk. सत्त, Sansk. सत्त.

In the abstract affix \bar{\mathbb{q}}, \bar{\mathbb{q}}, the dental on the other hand is assimilated to the semi-vowel \bar{q}, which latter is first changed to the labial \bar{q}, and then to the corresponding tenuis \bar{q}, so that we have in Sindhī the forms \bar{q} pa, \bar{q} p\bar{\bar{p}}, \bar{q}, \bar{q} pa\bar{\bar{q}} or \bar{q} \bar{\bar{q}} pa\bar{\bar{p}}\bar{\bar{q}}, as: \bar{q} | \bar{\bar{q}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{p}} \bar{\bar{q}} \bar{\bar{q}

The regular form of assimilation however is also in use, but only in a few examples;  $\overline{A}$  is in this way assimilated to  $\overline{A}$  tt =  $\overline{Z}$  tt, and the double consonant again cleared away by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as:  $\overline{Z}$   $\overline{$ नह čhōkaru, a boy.

The semi-vowel may also be dissolved into u, as: परमेसुर paramēsuru, supreme lord = God, Prāk. already परमेसुर, Sansk. परमेश्वर; or it may be retained, as: दा-नेस्वरी dānēsvarī, liberal, besides: दानेसुरी dānēsurī.

§. 16.

D) Assimilation of the sibilants.

- a) The palatal sibilant \(\mathbf{y}\) š.
- a) য š, when preceded by च č and ত čh, is assimilated to them, as: স্বুৰ্বু ačurju, wonderful, Prāk.

সক্তামে, Sansk. সাম্বর্ফ (long ā being shortened in Prākrit and Sindhī, and in compensation thereof the following consonant doubled, to restore again the quantity of the syllable); ম্নিৰ্হ šaničaru, Saturday, Sansk. ম্নিম্বর্থ (Hindī মনীব্য).

- β) The compound ষ čč (which however is rendered in Sindhī, as all double consonants, by its simple base) arising from the assimilation of ষ, is, after the analogy of the Prākrit, frequently aspirated in Sindhī, on account of the inherent tendency of the sibilant towards aspiration (મ = ξ), as: বিহু vičhū, scorpion, Prāk. নিচ্ছুসা, Sansk. বৃষ্ণিক; पञ्जाउ, pačhutāu, repentance, Sansk. पश्चाताप, final प being changed (by b = v) in Sindhī to u.
- γ) श followed by म, assimilates the same, as: सी rasī (= rassī), a rope, Prāk. रासि, Sansk. राश्रम, but not necessarily; for: कश्मीह kašmīru, Kashmīr.

b) The cerebral sibilant \(\mathbf{q}\) \(\xi\).

- a) The compound Eq šk (of Eq I have hitherto not met any instances) is assimilated in Sindhī to q (= 素), and not to q kkh, as in Prākrit; e. g. ฐ南i dukālu, famine, Sansk. दुःका (Hamī, useless, Sansk. दिःकम; सूको sukō, dry, Sansk. गुःक (Hindī, as in Prākrit, सूका).
- β) The compounds  $\mathbf{E}$  št and  $\mathbf{E}$  šth, are assimilated in Sindhī to tth, as:  $\mathbf{g}$  d̄thō, seen, Prāk.  $\mathbf{c}$  Sansk.  $\mathbf{e}$   $\mathbf{e}$ ;  $\mathbf{n}$  gōthu, a village, Prāk.  $\mathbf{n}$  Sansk.  $\mathbf{n}$  sansk.  $\mathbf{e}$  nitharu, obstinate, Prāk.  $\mathbf{n}$  Sansk.  $\mathbf{n}$   $\mathbf{e}$  mithō, sweet, Sansk.  $\mathbf{n}$   $\mathbf{e}$   $\mathbf{e$

The compound is also retained unaltered, as: āuṣṭu, bad; but this is only done by Brāhmans, who understand Sanskrit; the common people ignore it completely. The cerebral 3, which has sprung from 3 or 3 by assimilation, may also pass into its corresponding media 3 dh, and this again to 4 rh, e. g. 3 kōrhu, leprosy, Sansk. 3 (the preceding vowel u having been lengthened in Sindhī to ō, to clear away the double consonant the or ddh).

γ) The compounds εu šp, εu šph are assimilated to u in Sindhī, as: વાપ bapha, steam, Prāk. વાપા, Sansk. વાદ્ય (Hindī વાપ, and even with aspiration of વ: માપ્ત).

In compound words EU is simply assimilated to U p (= pp) as: fay$\overline{\text{T}}$ niputr\(\overline{\text{o}}\), without a son, Sansk.

निष्प्रच.

- ɛ) The compound ध्य šy (and ध्व šv) is in Prākrit assimilated to स्त ss, but in Sindhī to ख kh (= kkh) as: सिंखु sikhu, a disciple = Sikh, Sansk. शिंद्य.

c) The dental-sibilant \( \mathbf{H} s.

- a) The compound स्क sk is assimilated in Prākrit to ख kh, in Sindhī however to क k, as: कंधु kandhu, shoulder, Prāk. खंधो (खंदो), Sansk. स्कन्द (Hindī कंध).
- β) The compounds स्त st and स्थ sth are assimilated to थ (= tth) and त्स ts to छ čh (= ččh), as: अनु thańu, woman's milk, Sansk. स्तन; थियो thiō, become, Sansk. स्थित; थंभु thambhu, post (Prākrit on the other hand षम्भो), Sansk. स्तमः; वयु vathu, thing, Sansk. वसु; हयु hathu, hand, Prāk. हत्यो, Sansk. हस्त (Hindī हाय्); यागो thaṇō, place, Sansk. स्थान; अय atha, is, Prāk. अत्यि, Sansk. अस्ति; विश्व vačhe, a buffalo calf, Prāk. वस्त्रो, Sansk. वस्त.

The compound t st however may also, instead of being assimilated, be dissolved into its constituent parts by the insertion of a vowel, and when the compound happens to be initial, by prefixing a vowel, as: श्रात astute, praise, Prāk. श § Sansk. द्धा; इ दिन्दी istirī, woman, Sansk. द्धी.

γ) स्प sp is assimilated to  $\mathbf{U} (= \mathrm{pp})$ , स्फ sph to  $\mathbf{U} (= \mathrm{pp})$ , respectively as: फुट्रगु phuṭaṇu, to be broken, Sansk. स्फुट्: फुट्रती phuṛtī, activity, Sansk. स्फूर्ति; ल्पी lapī, a dish of coarse wheaten flour, Sansk. लिप्पता; but स may also remain unassimilated, as: लिप्पता:

In compound words स्प sp may be preserved, as: विस्पित, vispate, Thursday, Sansk. वृहस्पित; or the compound, especially at the beginning of a word, may be dissolved into its constituent parts, as: पास pārasu, the philosopher's stone, Sansk. स्पर्श (मिश्रा), Hindī likewise पारस.

ठे) The compound स sn, when beginning a word, is either dissolved into its consistuent parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: सनानु sanānu, bathing, Sansk. सान; सनहो sanēhō, a message of love, Sansk. सह; or the preceding स is cast off altogether, as: नीह nīhu, love, Sansk. सह (Hindī नह), Prāk. also ऐहो; नह nuhu, daughter-in-law, Prāk. गोगह, Sansk. स्त्रधा.

ε) The compound स sm is assimilated to स s (= ss) as: विसाई visāī, stupor, Sansk. विस्मय; or dissolved again by the insertion of a vowel, as: सुमर्णु sumaraņu, to remember, Sansk. सृ; विसामणु visāmaņu, to be stunned, Sansk. विस्मि (विस्मय, Prāk. विम्ह्ञ्रो); or s is changed to h and placed after म (similarly to म), as Prākrit म्ह = स्म, in the pronominal forms तुम्हे, ञ्रस्मे (cf. Lassen p. 331, 4; p. 329, 5), In Sindhī the म of the conjunct म्ह is also changed to v, as तव्हीं tavhī, you, instead of तुम्हीं tumhī.

ζ) The compound ৼ sy is assimilated to ৼ s (= ss) and thence farther to ৼ h, as: मृंहिं mũhĩ, तृंहिं tũhĩ etc., which must have sprung from an original form मस्य, १२ तृस्य etc., Prāk. already मह, तृह (thence also the other Prākrit forms मङ्फ्, तृङ्फ् = मह्म, तृह्म = मस्य, तृस्य); १२ तांहिं tãhẽ, of that (nom. sing. मा sō) Prāk. तस्म, Sansk. तस्य.

d) The compound 🛛 kš.

This compound letter is assimilated in Sindhī:

α) To ख kh (= kkh), as: ऋषि akhe, eye, Sansk. ऋषि; खोर khīru, milk, Sansk. ऋषि; खारो khārō, brackish, Sansk. ऋषः खेतु khetu, field, Sansk. ऋषः खिमा khimā, patience, Sansk. ऋमा; खी khī, wellfare, Sansk. ऋम; रखणु rakhaṇu, to keep, Sansk. रक्षण; खां-दि khande, patience, Sansk. ऋषि.

All these instances are against Prākrit usage, according to which a ought to have been assimilated to the control of the control of the similated to the course, independently of the Prākrit.

β) হা is also assimilated to হা čh, after the precedent of the Prākrit, as: বিহু ričhu, a bear, Sansk. হায়; হুবা čhurī, a knife, Sansk. হায়; হিন্দু čhinaņu, to pluck, Sansk. হায়ে ; সহায় lačhaņu, sign, Sansk. হায় but সম্মু lakhaņu is also in use in Sindhī.

According to Prākrit rule every consonant (the nasal n excepted), which is joined to \(\mathbb{Z}\), must be dropped; but the Sindhī so far deviates from the Prākrit, that it separates any such consonant by the insertion of a vowel, as: Prāk. लखी, but Sindhī लखिमी lačhimī, the wife of Vishņu, Hindī likewise लखमी, Sansk. लक्ष्मी. On the other hand the Sindhī assimilates the nasal in the compound हुए kṣṇ to ख (kh = kṣ), whereas the Prākrit changes the same to एह, as: Sindhī तिखो tikhō (= tikkhō), quick, Prāk. तिएह, Sansk. तीहरण.

A change of which (= kš) to the spiritus the is found in Hindī, after the analogy of the Prākrit, as: Hindī दाहिना right (opposed to left), instead of the more common दिन्स्सा, but not in Sindhī, which simply clears away the doubling of the letter in Prākrit by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as: द्वासियों देंākhiṇō, right, southerm.

§. 17.

F) The spiritus $\xi$ h.

a) In the compounds हू hn, स hm, ह is put after the nasal, a euphonic transposition, which is already common in Prākrit, as: बाहि bāhe, fire (instead of बाहि bāhe), Prāk. वगही, Sansk. वहूं; चिन्हु činhu, mark, Sansk. चिह्; the hardened Prāk. form चिन्ध or चेन्ध is not used in Sindhī.

The compound म्ह (instead of स hm) is in Sindhī, on account of the preponderance of the labial, already exchanged for मा mbh, as: बांमणु bāmbhaṇu, a Brāhman, Prāk. वम्हण, Sansk. ब्राह्मण.

b) ह्य hy is assimilated to रू jh (by transposition: hy = yh = jh), as: गुरो हुujhō, concealed, Prāk. गुरुगञ्जो, Sansk. गुरुवन.

c) ह hv is assimilated to भ in Sindhī (hv = vh = bh), whereas in Prākrit the following semi-vowel is simply elided, as: ज़िम jibha, tongue, Prāk. जीहा, Sansk. जिहा, (Hindī जीभ).

E) Assimilation of three conjunct consonants.

In Sindhī, as well as in Prākrit, a compound, consisting of three consonants, can only then be tolerated, if the first consonant happen to be a nasal: as: if andru, moon, incantation.

As regards the assimilation of three conjunct consonants the preceding rules come into operation. If no assimilation takes place, the one or the other of the consonants thus joined together, is severed from the rest by the insertion of a vowel, as: श्राद्विशे šastirī, a Shāstrī, learned in the Shāstras (a usūal title of a Brāhman), from the Sansk. शास्त्र. In reference to the assimilation itself the following rules are to be observed.

a) If one of the consonants happen to be a semivowel, it is dropped, and the assimilation of the remaining two consonants is effected according to the usual method, as: मराठी marāṭhī, a Marāthī man (or. adj.), Sansk. महाराष्ट्र: अग्यों agyō, the foremost, Sansk. अग्य; पासो pāsō, side, Prāk. पास, Sansk. पार्श्व.

b) When of three conjunct consonants the two former or the two latter can be assimilated, preference is given to the stronger assimilation, as: H actually machu, fish, Prāk. H assimilated to S (čch), the assimilation of it being stronger than that of E to E.

§. 19.

G) Elision of a double consonant.

The doubling of a consonant renders the same so much stronger, that even a long vowel, preceding it, must give way and is weakened to its corresponding short one. On the other hand a double consonant, as noticed already, may again be rendered simple; but in this case the preceding vowel, to make up for the quantity of the syllable, must be prolonged, as: The rate, night, Prak. The Sansk. The kamu (= kammu), business, Prak. The Hindi on the other hand ann.

It is quite against the genius of the language, to elide totally a double consonant; notwithstanding this some few examples of this kind are to be met with in Sindhī, as: 夏知代 中華, illness, 夏知代, adj. 中華, ill, Prāk. 夏朝, Sansk. 夏朝, ill, miō, friend (corroborated already by the Prākrit, which however preserves also the original from [中華]). In these and such like examples the process cannot have been such, that a double consonant is elided at once, but it must first have been reduced to its simple base by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as: 中南 mitō, instead, of 中南; from this base has sprung again, according to the usual laws of elision, the form 中南 miō, in which, against the ordinary process, long ī has been shortened to ĭ, 中南.

In the forms इज़ारि and इज़ारी, original double be must have been changed to vv (both letters, b and v, being already identical in Prākrit) previous to its elision; but it is quite an extraordinary phenomenon, that the following vowel has been lengthened instead of the preceding one.

Far more easily may one of the compound consonants be elided, when preceded by a long vowel, which renders the assimilation impossible, especially if one of the compound consonants be a semi-vowel, as: arg vāghu, a tiger, Sansk. arg; trul rāṇī, queen, Sansk. urā. Thus even two semi-vowels may disappear, as: urh pāsō, side, Sansk. urā.

H) A double consonant at the beginning of a word.

A compound consonant at the beginning of a word is subject to the same laws of assimilation, as in the midst (or end) of a word. But as a double consonant would not be utterable at the beginning of a word, one of the assimilated, i. e. doubled consonants is simply cast off, so that only the simple base of the consonant remains, as: जल्म jalanu, to burn, instead of: जल्म jjalanu, Sansk. जल्म; वाघु vāghu, tiger, instead, of वाघु vvāghu; क्युं kandhu, shoulder, instead of क्युं kkandhu. But if a word be compounded, the common laws of assimilation are applied (to the second), as: इंक्ट्र dubalu, weak, Prāk. दुब्बल.

Those compounds, which are not susceptible of assimilation, are dissolved into their component parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: किस्स kilēsu, weariness, Prāk. किस्स, Sansk. काइ, समाणु sumaraṇu, to remember, Prāk. सुमा, Sansk. सार् (सृ); or the first letter of the compound is cast off, which is particularly the case, if this happen to be a sibilant, as: नीइ nîhu, love, Prāk. सणह saṇēha, Sansk. सह; but if the sibilant be followed by a semi-vowel, the latter, as the weaker, is dropped, as: साइ sāhu, breath, Sansk.

च tr and द dr, which in Sindhī are commonly changed to the corresponding cerebrals, keep their place as well at the beginning as in the midst (or end) of a word, as: ट्रे एंग्ह, three; ह्राख लेग्बेkha, grape, but Hindī दाख, Sansk. द्राक्षा.

THE SINDHI ALPHABET.

§. 1.

Up to the present time various alphabets have been in use in Sindh, the Muhammadan portion of the community using the Arabic characters, loaded with many dots, to express the sounds peculiar to the Sindhī, and the Hindū population employing different alphabets of their own, which vary very much, according to the locality, in which they are used, though all of them are originally derived from an old Sanskrit alphabet. These latter alphabets, which are known in Sindh by the name of the Banyā characters, are utterly unfit for literary purposes, as they have become greatly mutilated in the course of time and are very deficient in the vowel and consonant system, so that the Hindū merchants themselves, after a lapse of time, are hardly able to reproduce with accuracy what they have entered in their ledgers. No alphabet suits the Sindhī better, than the Sanskrit alphabet, the Sindhī being a genuine daughter of Sanskrit and Prākrit. But appropriate as the Sanskrit characters are to the Sindhi sounds, they will under the present state of society in Sindh be hardly in their right place, religious prejudices preventing the great majority of the population from using them in their writings. Sindh has been the first Indian country, which has succumbed to the fury of the Moslim invaders, and Hinduism and the culture of Sanskrit literature has been so completely swept away from its borders, that it is now, as has been stated, "a country without castes and Brahmins."

The Muhammadans of Sindh, as soon as they tried to employ their native idiom for literary purposes, detected, that the Arabic system, which had been forced upon them as a necessary consequence of the Islām, was deficient in many sounds, and they endeavoured to make up for this deficiency by dotting the nearest corresponding Arabic letters. The manner, in which they have done this, has not been very satisfactory. They were not led by any system and therefore the emendation, they attempted at, stopped half-way.

In the guttural class the Arabic base  $\mathcal{S}$  (k) was indiscriminately used to express the sounds k, kh; g, gh,  $\bar{g}$ ; the aspiration (kh, gh) was left unnoticed, and for the media g not even the corresponding Persian letter ( $\mathcal{S}$ ) was supplied; the guttural  $\dot{n}$  was expressed by the compound  $\dot{\omega}$  (nk).

In the palatal class the aspirate  $\check{c}h$  was happily distinguished by an additional dot (= =), and  $\check{j}h$  marked likewise =; also the peculiar Sindhī  $\check{j}$  (dy) was not forgotten and marked by =; the palatal  $\acute{n}$  (ny) was again expressed by the compound =, so that in this class all sounds were provided with distinguishing marks.

In the cerebral class, which is completely wanting in the Arabic system, the bases of the dentals were retained and the dots distributed in such a way, as to distinguish them from the corresponding dentals, viz.:  $\dot{\boldsymbol{\omega}}=\dot{\boldsymbol{t}};\;\dot{\boldsymbol{\omega}}=\dot{\boldsymbol{t}}h;\;\dot{\boldsymbol{\sigma}}=\dot{\boldsymbol{d}},\;\dot{\boldsymbol{\sigma}}=\dot{\boldsymbol{d}}h,\;\dot{\boldsymbol{\sigma}}=\dot{\bar{\boldsymbol{d}}},\;a$  method, which is not without ingenuity; but the cerebral r and the cerebral r were again completely forgotten (i. e. they were expressed by the corresponding dentals r and  $\boldsymbol{\omega}$ n) and left to the knowledge of the reader.

The dental class did not offer many difficulties; only the aspirates had to be provided with diacritical marks, which was done in the following way: =th, =dh.

The same was the case with the labial class, where the aspirates only were to be pointed out by peculiar marks; but here their skill seems to have left them. In order to express ph, refuge was taken to the peculiar Arabic and Persian letter  $\dot{\omega}$  (f), which was provided with two additional dots  $=\dot{\omega}$ , bh having been expressed already by  $\dot{\omega}$ ; the peculiar Sindhī  $\dot{b}$  was dexterously rendered by  $\dot{\omega}$ .

The Sindhīs had in this undertaking apparently the Sanskrit alphabet before their eyes, where the aspirates are written and treated as one sound. Accordingly they tried to express the aspiration of a letter by additional dots, which overloaded the few Arabic bases with diacritical signs.

The necessity further, to provide marks for the cerebral class, compelled them, to distribute afresh the dots for the dental aspirates, so that the eye finds only with difficulty a resting-place in the confuse mass and position of diacritical marks, as:  $\mathbf{c} = \mathbf{t}$ ,  $\mathbf{c} = \mathbf{t}$ ;  $\mathbf{c} = \mathbf{t}$ ;  $\mathbf{c} = \mathbf{t}$ .

This attempt to adapt the Arabic characters to the sounds of a Prākrit language is very interesting, though the method applied has followed a wrong track and has not been extended to all the sounds of the language. The way, in which this has been done in Hindūstānī, is far more correct, in fact, the only course, which can be taken in adapting the Arabic letters to an Indian language. The Arabic system knows no aspirates, and consequently the aspiration must be expressed by an additional  $\infty$  h, if the original character of the Arabic alphabet is to be preserved in any way; else a quodlibet will be made out of it, which may be designated by any name but Arabic.

It was therefore soon found, when European scholars began to pay attention to the Sindhī, that the common Sindhī characters would not do for scientific purposes. New characters were in consequence composed by a Bombay civilian and unfortunately introduced into the government schools of Sindh, without being first submitted to the examination of competent scholars.

This new system, instead of striking at the root of the previous confusion, merely endeavoured to make up some deficiencies of the old, while retaining all its errors, so that it cannot even boast of the compactness of the old system.

The alterations and emendations were the following: In the guttural class, where the old system was most deficient, as we have seen, the Persian letter & g has been justly taken in, and from the Hindūstānī, the aspirate & gh, of which we fully approve. We should now reasonably expect to find the compound & kh corresponding to sh; but to our utter surprise we find the old error repeated, and 'kh' again rendered by the simple base & k. So it has happened, that all the prints published in this character are disfigured by the letter  $\leq$ , which is now used throughout as the simple base for k, whereas it is well known, that = is only used at the beginning of a word, when connected with a following letter and in the midst of a word only, when unconnected with the preceding and connected with the following letter, and that it is in no way differing, as regards its pronunciation, from 5; as a final letter the shape of  $\leq$  has never been seen before.

The guttural n, which in the old system was consequently rendered by in (nk), has been expressed in the new system by if, which is quite inappropriate; for the base is not 'g', but 'n', pronounced with the guttural organ, and in the Arabic consonantal system it can only be rendered by a compound letter (if ng). The peculiar Sindhī g is marked if, we have only to point out the inapplicability of two dots beneath if and the frequent confusions, to which it will give rise.

In the palatal class we meet with the same inconsequence; the aspirate ch has been taken over from the old system (a), whereas for jh the Hindūstānī compound has been borrowed. In the other letters of this class only the dots have been differently distributed; j (in the old system marked has been expressed by and the palatal has been expressed by which is less to the point than the old has as correct as it could be rendered.

In the cerebral class only the dots have been differently arranged as:  $\dot{t} = \dot{\omega}$  (old system  $\dot{\omega}$ ),  $\dot{t}h = \dot{\omega}$  (old system  $\dot{\omega}$ );  $\dot{d} = \dot{\varphi}$  (old system the same),  $\dot{d}h = \dot{\varphi}$  (old system the same),  $\dot{d}h = \ddot{\varphi}$  (old system  $\ddot{\varphi}h = \ddot{\varphi}h$ ); the cerebral  $\dot{q}h = \ddot{\varphi}h$ , which had not been marked at all in the old system, has been borrowed from the Hindūstānī ( $\ddot{\varphi}h$ ), and the cerebral  $\ddot{q}h = \ddot{\varphi}h$  above it ( $\ddot{\varphi}h$ ), which is highly inconvenient in writing, and has therefore been justly discarded in Hindūstānī, where formerly the cerebrals used to be marked by the same letter.

In the dental class the old system has been retained unaltered.

In the labial class the base ن was retained for ph, with additional dots (= ت; old system ن); bh was rendered by پ, as in the old system.

We fully allow, that the old Sindhī system of writing did not answer its purposes, quite abstracted from its deficiency; but instead of emendating the old system by a different distribution of dots and inserting a few Hindūstānī letters, we consider it far more advisable, to adopt the whole Hindūstānī consonantal system, and to mark those sounds, which are peculiar to the Sindhī, by convenient dots.

The Sindhī language is restricted to the comparatively small province of Sindh; we cannot therefore see any reason, why the Hindūstānī alphabet, which is known throughout the length and breadth of India, and which is a compact system in itself, should not be preferred to such a motley composition?

The number of the Indian alphabets should not be augmented, but rather, wherever possible, be restricted, as they only serve as barriers to mutual intercourse. If therefore the old system of writing proves unfit for literary purposes, we consider it for the best, to substitute one universally known, instead of emendating imperfectly a local alphabet, which has no chance to spread beyond its narrow borders.

As under the present circumstances it is not likely, that the Hindū portion of the community will adopt the Hindūstānī alphabet, owing to religious scruples on their side, we have chosen for them the Hindī characters, with some slight deviations from the system employed by Capt. Stack, which were imperatively necessary, and which will be noticed further on. We may say the same of the Hindī alphabet, what has been remarked on the Hindūstānī; it is well known throughout India, and the common vehicle of literature amongst the whole Hindū population. An emendation of the old Banyã characters would have been far more useless, than that of the Arabic system current amongst the Moslims.

This method of computation is called abjad, from the first four letters, which are pronounced as a group. The following technical groups are:

The Arabs have borrowed this whole system from the Hebrews and have therefore also followed the order of the Hebrew alphabet; the first nine letters represent the units 1—9; the nine following the tens, the nine following the hundreds and the last  $\dot{z}$  a thousand.

The order of the Hebrew alphabet goes only as far as  $\omega$  (400); from thence the Arabs have gone their own way, by using those letters, which are peculiar to their own language.

1) The Gutturals.

The gutturals k, g are pronounced in the common manner; their aspirates, kh, gh, as all other aspirates, form, according to the Sanskrit system, one sound, and must therefore be pronounced by a strong breathing of the respective simple base. Peculiar to the Sindhī is the guttural n, which is throughout used as an independent sound (like the english ng in "sing"), and never precedes the letters of its own varga or class, in which case Anusvāra or simple n is employed (see Introduction §. 5). In the Hindī alphabet it is expressed by 5, it being an original Sanskrit sound, but the Arabic system, which knows only one dental n (...), offers great difficulties in this as in other respects. In Hindūstānī an independent guttural n is not to be met with; we have therefore been compelled to circumscribe it by the compound in ng, which comes nearest to it, following therein the track of the old Sindhī alphabet. But one difficulty still will remain, that the guttural simple in can thus not be distinguished from the guttural n preceding a letter of its own varga, as: أَنْكُ (য়েই) anu, body, and ixi, or more properly: 双雾) angu (aṅgu) a limb. In the alphabet, now in use, an attempt has been made, as has been adverted to, to obviate this difficulty (viz.:  $\ddot{\mathcal{E}} = \dot{n}$ ), but we cannot agree, that the problem has been solved satisfactorily, a false base having been chosen for the guttural nasal. Practically the difficulty will be easily surmounted by any careful student, as there are only a few nouns in the language, in which simple guttural n is found.

We subjoin here an alphabetical list of all those words, in which the simple (unconnected) guttural nasal is to be found:

أَنكَارِي m. anu, body; اَنكَارِي m. anārō, Tuesday. اَنكَارِي f. anārī, a disease of the gums etc. اَنكَارِيوْ

a bruise in the sole of the foot; اَنگُرُ n. anaru, coal; m. anuru, a finger's breadth. آنگُرِ f. ānure, a finger; toe; اَنگُوتْهُو m. ananu, courtyard; آنگُوتْهُو m. ānūthō, the thumb; آنگۇتىچى f. ānūṭhī, a thumb-ring. بىھانگۇ m. bhānō, share, and its derivatives, as: بهَانگَاتِتو adj. bhānāitō, in shares; بهَانگِيروُ m. bhānērō, a sharer. پهينگُنوُ m. phēnaņō, the orbicular excrement of camels (يهينگذي f. phēniṇī, the orbicular excrement of sheep etc.). جَانگُوروْ m. jānūrō, the wild Beru fruit; جَانگُوري f. jānūrī, the wild Beru tree; چنگز adj. čanō, good, and its derivatives. دهنگائيي m. dhināī, a manufacturer of saltpetre; دُانگُوْرَنُ v. a. d̄ānōraṇu, to flog; تُنكِري adj. d̄uniṭō, stout; تُنكِري f. duniri, a stick to beat clothes with (in washing); m. ḍhuṇṇō, name of a fish. زنگ m. raṇu, colour; v. a. rananu, to dye, and its derivatives; زنگن m. ranō, a carpenter's chalk-string. سَانگاهَ f. sānāha, or: سَانگاهِتو f. sānaha, care, and its derivatives (as: سَانگَاهِتو adj. sānāhitō, careful, سَانگَاهُو adj. sānāhū, ditto); سَانگَاهَنُ v. n. sānāhaņu, to be careful. سَنْکُ m. sanu, connexion by marriage, and its derivatives; سنگ m. sinu, born, and its derivatives; سِنگَارِي f. sinārī, name of a fish (or: sīnārī); سَنگُرُ m. sanaru, the seed-pod of the thorntree; سَنگُن v. a. sananu, to point out; سَنگُن f. sīna, bow. قَانگو m. ḡānō, or گَانگو f. ḡānī, name of a fruit and shrub (Grewia betuloefolia). كُنْكُ m. lanu, lameness adj. lanō, lame); لِنكُ m. linu, limb; لِنكُ f. lina, a trip in carrying; لِنَكَّا m. linō, time, turn (besides: مُنكُ f. linā, ditto). لَنكُ f. maṇa, a betrothed girl; لِنكَّا m. muṇu, a grain of mung; مُنكُرُ m. maṇaru, fire; مُنكُرُ v. a. maṇaṇu, to ask, to beg, and its derivatives; مؤنگُو adj. mōṇo, having the colour of mung; نِنكُنْ adj. & adv. niṇunō, entirely, wholly. وَنكُنُ m. vāṇaṇu, the eggplant, and its derivatives; هِنكُنْ f. hiṇu, Assafoetida; هِنكُرُوْ m. hiṇirō, name of a fruit of an aquatic plant.

Another letter peculiar to the Sindhī is J, J, g; it is not found in Hindī or Hindūstānī, nor in any of the cognate dialects, and we have therefore been compelled to provide it with a mark of its own. After the precedent of the Paštō we have added a hook below the under parallel line, which marks off this letter strongly enough, without giving rise to any confusion or misconception. The pronunciation of g is quite peculiar; it is that of the letter g uttered with a certain stress in prolonging and somewhat strengthening the contact of the closed organ, as if one tried to double the sound in the beginning of a word, as gga. The pronunciation is so far quite in accordance with the origin of this and the other three letters, peculiar to the Sindhī, though they are now treated to all intents and purposes as simple letters; e. g. ুর্টা āgu, the front, Prāk. স্থান, Sansk. अप (compare Introduction §. 15, b); اَلَكُوْ lagō, applied, Prāk. लगा, Sansk. लग (see Introduction §. 14); יָּבֶּאָ, bhagō, broken, Prāk. איז, Sansk. איז. In other instances, where an original doubling of g cannot be proved etymologically, the use of this harsh g must be explained by the influence of the following letters, as: रूँ gōṭhu, a village, Prāk. गोर, Sansk. गोष्ठ; in this, as in similar cases, the weight of the double tth, which in Sindhī has been reduced to its simple base by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, seems to have been thrown forward on g. Such an influence is especially exercised by a following r, as: 호蒙 ḡarō, heavy, Prāk. 可表现, Sansk. 到表.

Both letters, g and \(\bar{g}\), must be carefully distinguished in pronunciation, as the signification of a word varies considerably according to the use of one or the other letter, as: \(\bar{g}\) gar\(\bar{o}\), mangy, but \(\bar{g}\) \(\bar{g}\) gar\(\bar{o}\), heavy etc.

2) The palatals.

The palatals & j and & č, and their respective aspirates جه jh, and جه čh, are pronounced in the common Indian way as simple sounds, and are grammatically treated as such, though they are, according to their present pronunciation, compound sounds. Originally they cannot have been pronounced, as they are at present, for else the grammatical rules of Pāṇini would be incomprehensible. In our days 7 is pronounced as english j, and as english ch, that is to say, as dž and tš respectively; how these sounds, if they are to be treated as simple ones, should be aspirated or doubled by any human organ, is past our conception. The old pronunciation of these letters 1) must have gone through great variations, till they have become the compound sounds of the modern Indian idioms.2) In the Roman transcription they have therefore not been marked by the palatal stroke (__), but by the same sign, with which the sibilant sh (= š) is provided, to point out their modern pronunciation.

<sup>2)</sup> The pronunciation of the Marāṭhī \(\bar{\pi}\) and \(\bar{\pi}\) as ts and dz respectively before the vowels a, \(\bar{a}\), u, \(\bar{u}\), ai, \(\bar{o}\), does not fall under this head, as this is owing to Drāvidian influences and only occurs in words of non-Arian origin.

The Sindhī has preserved the palatal nasal ń (3) as an independent sound, which never precedes the letters of its own varga, for which purpose anusvāra (and in Hindūstānī writing simple (b) is used. The Hindūstānī being destitute of a palatal nasal, we had to provide a new character. Following the analogy of the old Sindhī alphabet we chose for it the compound r, which comes nearest to it, for the palatal n of the Sindhī is properly a compound sound, and is pronounced ny. The proper circumscription by would not do for this reason, that the palatal n is still considered by the Sindhī as a simple sound and rendered in Sanskrit writing by 3; it ought therefore to be pointed out, as near as possible, as such, for which purpose the compound نج answers much better, than نج, which latter would give rise to many misconceptions. In the Romanized transcription it has simply been furnished with the palatal line =  $\hat{n}$ .

The sign chosen for it in the alphabet at present in use viz.: , is not to the purpose, as the base is not , but the nasal , with a subsounding y.

The sibilant , , which we have inserted in Peculiar to the Sindhī is , , , , . It is now treated as a simple sound, but it has in most cases, as etymology proves, sprung from a double jj (= , and is still pronounced as a compound sound = dy; e. g.: أَ āju (= adyu), to-day, Prāk. अज, Sansk. अद्य (on the assimilating process see Introd. §. 15.); بَوَا بِيرَةِ, science, Prāk. विजा, Sansk. विद्या; بُونِي vēju, physician, Prāk. विजा, Sansk. वद्या. In other nouns though an original doubling of cannot be traced etymologically, as: جَتْ بَعِنا بِهِ بَاللَّهِ عَلَيْهِ بَاللَّهُ الْمُعَالِيْةِ الْمُعَالِيِّةِ الْمُعَالِيْةِ الْمُعِلِيِّةِ الْمُعَالِيْةِ الْمُعَالِيْهِ الْمُعَالِيْةُ الْمُعَالِيْةُ الْمُعَالِيْةُ الْمُ

3) The Cerebrals.

The cerebrals  $\ddot{\omega}$  t and  $\ddot{\ddot{\omega}}$  d, and their respective aspirates,  $\ddot{\ddot{\omega}}$  th and  $\ddot{\ddot{\omega}}$  dh are common to all the North-Indian vernaculars; they are pronounced by turning the tip of the tongue towards the roof of the mouth whilst sounding the dental bases, t, d, etc. respectively.

The Sindhī has likewise preserved an independent cerebral  $\vdots$ ,  $\mathbf{U}$ ,  $\dot{\mathbf{n}}$ , which is not bound to the letters of its own varga as:  $\dot{\boldsymbol{z}}$  vanu, a tree (Sansk.  $\mathbf{A}$ ) thanu, the teat of an animal, Hindī  $\mathbf{U}$ , Sansk.  $\mathbf{U}$ . It is pronounced very hard and resembles much the compound  $\mathbf{u}$  in Paṣtō it is therefore very frequently rendered by  $\mathbf{u}$ .

In Sindhī it exchanges therefore occasionally its place with the cerebral ṛ, as: مَا رَّهُون māṇhū, man, or: مَا رَّهُون māṇhū. The cerebral ö d, which in Prākrit already frequently supplants the dental d, has in Sindhī given birth to two other cerebral sounds, viz.: ɔ, ¸ ¸ d, and ¸ , ¸ ¸ r, and this again aspirated, ¸ ¸ ¸ ¸ rh.

 $\ddot{\mathcal{S}}$ ,  $\mathbf{\bar{g}}$   $\ddot{\mathbf{q}}$  is pronounced in a similar way as  $\bar{\mathbf{g}}$ ; the cerebral  $\dot{\mathbf{q}}$  ( $\ddot{\mathbf{s}}$ ) is uttered with a certain stress in prolonging and somewhat strengthening the contact of the closed organ, as if a double  $\dot{\mathbf{q}}$  was to be pronounced.

Originally it is, as \(\bar{g}\), a double \(\dot{d}\), as may be still proved in most cases by etymology; e. g.: غُرُ عِلَةً, va\(\dot{d}\), great, Pr\(\delta\)k. \(\delta\) \(\delta\) \(\delta\) \(\delta\) \(\delta\) \(\delta\), the fourteenth, Pr\(\delta\)k. \(\delta\) But the Sindh\(\delta\), which is very fond of hard cerebral sounds, often employs this letter \(\drev{d}\), where no original doubling of the cerebral has taken place, especially at the beginning of words, where the full stress of the voice can be laid upon it, as: \(\delta\) \(\delta\

It has therefore been a great mistake of Capt. Stack, that he has not distinguished  $\mathbf{\vec{s}}$   $\mathbf{\vec{q}}$  from  $\mathbf{\vec{s}}$   $\mathbf{\vec{q}}$ , and marked both sounds by the same discritical dot (=  $\mathbf{\vec{s}}$ ), though he has been aware of their different pronunciation. A Sindhī will never confound  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$   $\mathbf{\vec{q}}$  with  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$   $\mathbf{\vec{q}}$ ; they are in his mouth thoroughly distinct from each other and have been differently marked already in the old Sindhī alphabet (viz.:  $\mathbf{\dot{q}} = \mathbf{\dot{s}}$ , and  $\mathbf{\bar{q}} = \mathbf{\ddot{s}}$ ). We were therefore compelled in this respect to deviate from Capt. Stack's Sanskrit alphabet, retaining for the simple cerebral  $\mathbf{\ddot{q}}$  the original Sanskrit letter  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$ , and marking the sound of  $\mathbf{\bar{q}}$  by a line beneath  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$  (=  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$ ), the dot beneath  $\mathbf{\ddot{s}}$  being reserved for some other sound, which we shall presently notice.

 taken from some aboriginal tongue, which is now lost, and wich must have had a great predilection for cerebral sounds (as the Drāvidian idioms of the south) and to the influence of which the preponderance of the cerebrals in the north Indian vernaculars must be ascribed.

The two peculiar letters ζ (ṭr) and ϛ (ḍr), which Capt. Stack in his Sindhī Grammar has advocated for the Sindhī under the cerebral class, are found, on nearer investigation to be compound sounds (see Introduction, §. 15.) and may therefore be safely discarded from the alphabet, as they ought to be written ζ ṭr and ζ ṭr espectively, as: Ϥζ puṭru, son, Prāk. ϤϠ, Sansk. ϤϠ; ϛૉϤ ḍrākha, grape, Sansk. ζίξι. A subscribed r is also found in some nouns with the aspirate ਫ ḍh, as: ϛૉϤϢ ḍhrāpaṇu, to be satiated, and its derivatives, as: ϛૉϤϢ ḍhrāiṇu, to satiate; ϛૉਓ ḍhrāu, satiety, all of which are sprung from the Sansk. root ϝ૫ (πϞϢ); ϛϗ ḍaḍhru (also written: ϛϗ ḍaḍhu), a cutaneous disease, Sansk. ζζ, Hindī ζῖζ (compare Introduction §. 15. b. β).

We have not inserted the cerebral § ¶ in the Sindhī alphabet, though in Capt. Stack's Sindhī Dictionary a few words are written with ¶. This letter is completely ignored by the common people and left unnoticed in the old Sindhī alphabet; only a Brāhman now and then uses it, to show his knowledge of Sanskrit (compare Introduction §. 5).

4) The dentals.

The dental row offers nothing particular;  $\mathbf{\zeta}$  r, which is considered a cerebral in Sanskrit, has become a pure dental in the modern idioms.

5) The labials.

It is to be noted, that ", Th ph, is to be pronounced as the aspirate of ", T p, and never as f, which is of Arabic or Persian origin, wherever found.

Peculiar to the Sindhī is the letter ب, ﴿ أَهُ أَنَّ أَنْ it is pronounced in the same way as ḡ and d̄, being originally a double b, as: إِنَّ b̄a, two, Sansk. ﴿ (= vva = bba; see Introduction §. 15. d. a); كَبْرُ kubō, hump-backed (see Introd. §. 13); ثَبَلُ d̄ab̄alu, weak, Prāk. ﴿ adoubling of b cannot be traced out, and the language seems to use بَابِوْ b̄abō, father, but, بَابِوْ b̄abō, father's brother, both nouns being derived from the Turkish بَابِا father.

The nasal of this class is m; but when preceding a letter of its own varga it is supplanted by simple n (or anusvāra), as in all the other rows; e.g.: اَذْبُ (अंद्) ambu, a mango; کُنْبَهَارُ (कुंभार) kumbhāru, a potter.

§. 3.

On the purely Arabic letters.

The Sindhī, as well as the Hindūstānī, has, in consequence of the forced introduction of the Islām, been considerably mixed up with Arabic elements, and though the vulgar pay no attention to the particular pronunciation of the genuine Arabic sounds, the original Arabic orthography has been generally adhered to.

Under the guttural class we find the letters: و, ح, ف, ف, ف, the Roman transcription of which we have conformed to the Standard alphabet, though these letters are somewhat differently pronounced in Sindhī. و, which is in Arabic treated as a consonant, is generally ignored and only its accompanying vowel articulated, as: عَقْلُ aqulu, intelligence, is sounded: akulu. In the midst of a word و is either passed unnoticed (i. e. only the respective vowel is uttered) as:

niṣamata) or ¿ with its accompanying vowel is pronounced as a long syllable, as: is a ferrier, is sounded like: nālbandu (properly: naṣlbandu) and by ignorant people also written accordingly; or the ¿ with its respective vowel is dropped altogether; as: is food (taṣāmu) is commonly pronounced: tāmu. The same is the case at the end of a word, where ¿ with its vowel is contracted by the vulgar to a long syllable, as: is receipt-account (jamaṣa) is pronounced like jamā, and mostly written accordingly; only the Mullās, who pretend to a knowledge of Arabic, affect the deep guttural articulation of the Arabic. In Sanskrit writing ¿ is therefore simply rendered according to its accompanying vowel, and not dinstinguished by any particular mark or dot.

The Arabic or Persian ἐ γ is pronounced in Sindhī as simple g, and very frequently exchanged for ω in writing, as: ἐἰς bāγu, garden, is sounded as: bāgu; ἐἀ γamu, grief, as: gamu etc.

The deep guttural تو q of the Arabic is articulated in Sindhī like simple k, as: قَوْمَ qōma, a tribe, clan (Arabic قَوْمَ), is pronounced like: kōma; قَوْمَ qaulu, word, like: kaulu etc. The Hindūs ignore all these foreign letters in their writings and render them by the nearest Sanskrit consonants, as has been adverted to.

The lingual letters, which are peculiar to the Arabic, are not distinguished in Sindhī pronunciation from the corresponding dentals; غ ن is sounded like common t, and م s like z; غ الله and غ z likewise as z. The Hindūs on the other hand pronounce ف and الله j, and render these letters promiscuously according to their actual pronunciation, which is frequently done by the Musalmāns likewise, especially the unlearned.

The Arabic letters, which figure under the dental row, viz.: $\odots \delta$, $\odots \delta$, and $\odots \text{z}$ (the two latter of which are also common to the Persian) are pronounced in Sindh (and India generally) as follows: $\odots$ like $\odots$, $\odots$ and $\odots$ like $\odots$, whereas the Hindūs pronounce these two latter consonants like $\odots$ and render them also accordingly by $\odots$, which is not unfrequently done by the Moslims also.

The Arabic and Persian if is sounded by the Muhammadans as f, but by the Hindūs as ph, and rendered in their writings by .

II. The Sindhi vowel system.

We next subjoin a tabular survey of the Sindhī vowel system.

1) Simple vowels:

١١,	ĩ	1	اِي	i	أر
अ ,	आ	ξ i (e)	ई	उ
a,	ā	i (e)	ī	u	ū
		اي	اۋ
		प्र	ऋो
		ē	ō

2) Diphthongs:

اَيْ	ا آو
ए	ऋो
ai	au

1) Simple vowels.¹) The Sindhī uses all the vowels, common to the Sanskrit and Prākrit; but it is to be noted, that i, when preceded or followed by h, or when closing a word, has the sound of short e (see Introduction §. 2. b).  $\bar{\mathbf{E}}$  and  $\bar{\mathbf{o}}$  are in Sindhī, as already in Prākrit, simple (and not Guṇa) vowels (see Introduction §. 2. d), and consequently always long (and not anceps, as in Prākrit).

As the Arabic is destitute of the sounds ē and ō, a great difficulty arises in Sindhī as well as in Hindūstānī, how to distinguish ī from ē, and ū from ō. The Indian grammarians have therefore invented the term of يَادَى عَجُهُولُ yā-e majhūl, or the unknown وَالْوَ عَجُهُولُ yā-e majhūl, or the unknown وَالْوَ عَجُهُولُ vave majhūl, or the unknown وَالْوَ عَجُهُولُ vave majhūl, or the unknown ومنافع ومنافع were taken, to mark off ē and ō by any diacritical sign, and the reader was left to help himself, <sup>1)</sup> As we shall further on employ only the Hindūstānī characters, we cannot enter here more minutely on the Sanskrit vowel system, and we refer therefore the student for nearer information to any Sanskrit grammar. We shall only make use of the Sanskrit characters in the course of this grammar, as occasion may call for.

In Arabic writing the short vowels a, i, u are not expressed in the body of the consonants, but by mere marks, placed above or beneath the consonant, after which they are to be sounded; if the consonant happen to be an aspirate, the vowel mark is placed on the accessory ... The mark for a is -, and is called خَتْک fathah (in Persian زَنر zabar); the mark for i is , and is called کَسْرَه kasrah (in Persian زير zīr, pronounced in India: zēr); the mark for u is -, and is called بیش zammah (in Persian بیش pīš, pronounced in India: pēš) e. g. فَنَ fana, فِن fini, فُنُ funu. But if a noun commence with a short vowel, I (alif) must serve as base for the these vowels, the vowels themselves being considered only as auxiliary signs for the consonants, as: ana, ان ini, أن unu. In Arabic initial is in these cases always provided with hamzah, as: أُن ,إِن أَلَ but in Hindustani it is dispensed with, to which practice we shall also adhere in Sindhī.

The three long vowels: ā, ī, ū are expressed in the body of the consonants by the letters 1, e, with the addition of the respective vowel points; in this case sākin, or quiescent, because they are not moved by a vowel of their own; e. g.: hārī, a peasant; مَارُر mārū, a beater; مَارُر mūrī, capital (in trade) مُارُد čīkāṭu, creaking. The same holds good with reference to the vowels ē and ō, which are not (originally) distinguished in writing from ī and ū, as: چهير čhērō, whetting. ¹)

Long a, when initial, is expressed by I and the sign ~ placed above it, as: عَنَّ قَdaru, courtesy. This sign is called عَنَّ maddah, i. e. extension, and is properly an alif placed above horizontally. Long i and u, when initial, must be preceded by alif, to support the respective vowel point, as عمل بله themselves are quiescent; e. g.: اِيهُوْ آأَرُهُوْ آأَرُهُوْ آأَرُهُوْ آأَرُهُوْ آقَرَةُ آقَرَةُ, so large, اِيكُوْ آقِرَةً, near.

and when quiescent, should be provided with the sign jazm (-), to indicate thereby, that they are not moved by a vowel of their own, as: أُرْهِوْ, إِيْهِوْ, pīru; but this practice is generally neglected in Hindūstānī, as superfluous. If on the other hand and be moved by a vowel put above or beneath them, they are no longer quiescent, but regular consonants, as: يَازُ yāru, friend; نيَانُ niyāṇu, a tank; نِيَانُ vaṇu, tree; نِيَانُ vaṇu, wind.

2) The diphthongs ai and au.

The diphthongs ai and au are expressed in Arabic by a preceding fathah and a following quiescent و or و or , which should be provided in this case with jazm, to prevent mistakes, as: اَيْتَةُ aiṭru, spinning wheel; بَيْرَا لِي bairāgī, an ascetic; عَوْدَهَارِي auṭhō, impure; خَوْدَهَارِي čau-dhārī, round about. At the end of a noun no diphthong is admissible in Sindhī; compare Introduction, §. 1, 2.

3) The nasalized vowels or Anusvāra.

We have noticed already, that the simple dental n (ن) is now used in Sindhī before the letters of any varga indiscriminately, which in Sanskrit writing is commonly expressed not by the dental न, but by the sign called Anusvāra (一) e. g.: كَنْكُانُ (कंगालु) kangālu (properly: kangālu) poor; كَنْكُورُ (गंजा) ganjō, scald-headed; كَنْدُهُورُ (गंजा) nanḍhō, small; كَنْدُ (गंजा) randu, path; كَانْبَهُ (गंजा) bāmbha, hag.

But besides this full nasal the Sindhī also uses the proper Anusvāra, which only communicates to the respective vowel a nasalizing touch, very extensively, and as both, full n and the nasalizing touch, which is communicated to a vowel, are expressed in Sanskrit writing by Anusvāra, and in Hindūstānī by the dental n (.), some confusion necessarily arises from this practice, to obviate which the following remarks should be carefully attended to.

a) Anusvāra (or ن) preceding another consonant must always be pronounced as a full nasal, if the vowel of the syllable be short, as: أَوْنَا لَهُ عَنْا لَهُ اللّٰهُ pandhu, journey; but if Anusvāra precede 'h' in a short syllable, it is always to be pronounced as such, i. e. only a slight nasalizing touch is thereby communicated to the vowel,

- as: jāhē; jāhē; jāhē; mūhu, mouth; in a few words, where full n precedes h, it must be rendered in Sanskrit writing by a, not by Anusvāra, as: tinhu, a sign; vary thanhanu, to compress. In Hindūstānī writing no such distinction can be made, as there is only one (a) at hand, which must serve as full nasal or Anusvāra, as the case may be; nothing is therefore left to the student, but to commit these few words to memory. We must repeat here, what has been remarked already, that the use of the Arabic characters offers great difficulties when applied to a Prākrit language of India.
- c) At the end of a word Anusvāra always retains its proper nasalizing touch, be the final vowel short or long, as: بَارِين prī, friend; بَرُون بُهُون bhū, earth; بَهُون بُهُون friend; بَهُون بُهُون أَلَّهُ bhū, earth; عَبُون بُهُون بُهُون أَلَّهُ bhū, buzzing. This rule is based on the fact, that in Sindhī every word must needs end in a vowel (which however may be nasalized).

d) Anusvāra, placed between two vowels, be they short or long, always retains its proper nasalizing sound, as: अंदं, مَانِئَن مَآ, and; मांड्णू, مَانِئِن mãiṇu, to measure; عَانِئُن بُون بُقَانِتُون قَلْ, it has been done by them (compare: Introduction §. 4).

The same holds good with reference to Anusvāra, following a diphthong (see: Introduction §. 1, 2), as:

رَنْسُونَ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنِهُ بَعْنِهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنِهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنَاتُ مُعْتَعُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنَاتُهُمُ بَعْنِهُمُ فَالْع

In the Romanized transcription, which we shall add throughout this grammar, the two different sounds of Anusvāra are rendered in this way, that the sound of full n is always expressed by n, whereas the nasalizing touch, which is communicated to a vowel by Anusvāra, is marked by the sign — placed above it, as:

अंतु, نَتْ = antu; but आंऊं, آنْتُ = ãũ.

We have already adverted to the great difficulties, under which the Hindūstānī labours to mark the original sound of Anusvāra, as it has only one n (and this the dental n) at its disposal. The difficulty is already great in Hindūstānī, and still greater in Sindhī, which is so much addicted to the use of nasalized vowels. In addition to what has been stated already, we beg to turn the attention of the student, as far as the Hindūstānī characters are concerned, to the following points:

Final الله has always the sound of Anusvāra proper (see under c) and need therefore not perplex the student, as: وَالْوِن māṛhū, man; وَالْوِن zālū, women; اِكَان iā, from this place, تِنَان tiā, from that place.

Anusvāra, separating two short or long vowels (see under d) is rendered by ,, and can be recognized as such by its position; in this case, to obviate all misconceptions, we have furnished the second vowel with hamzah, to point out thereby, that the following vowel is not to be read together with the preceding, but that closes the first syllable, as: إِنَا (दंश) آ-a, thus; يَنَا (तंश) وَمَنْ (गंड) gãũ, cow. If the second vowel chance to be a long one, و (without dots) provided with hamzah must precede the same, to serve as basis for the vowel point (see further on under: Hamzah), as: هَانَتُونُ دَقَقٌ (साँड) lord; عِنَانُ دَقَقٌ بِنَانُونُ دُقَقٌ, it has been said by them.

In such like instances, as exhibited under a and b, the Hindūstānī alphabet offers no means of distinguishing the full nasal from Anusvāra proper, as: بَانَهُ bānhī, a slave-girl, بَانَهُ bāha, arm, and these difficulties can only be overcome by practice. In the old Sindhī alphabet and in that now in use no notice whatever is taken of these and such like intricacies.

On the other orthographic signs.

- 1) The sign = (عَنَّ maddah, prolongation) is placed on initial alif, to render it long, as: أَنَّ ātharu, pack-saddle. In the midst and at the end of a word maddah is not placed on alif, if the preceding consonant be moved by fathah, in which case alif is called سَاكِن mā-lā, garland; but if the preceding consonant is provided with jazm (i. e. not moved by a vowel), alif must have the sign of maddah, as commencing a syllable, e. g.: عُرَانَ qur-ānu, Qorān, not qu-rānu.
  - 2) The sign (جَزْم jazm, abscission), placed above a consonant denotes, that the consonant thus marked is not moved by a vowel, as: بالماني vel-hō, idle; نائي vel-hō, idle; نائي war-du, man; نائي sar-gu, heaven. In old Sindhī writings the use of jazm is hardly to be met with, as they preferred to provide such a mute letter with kasrah, the sound of which was hardly heard in pronunciation, as: مَانِي maṛi-du, instead of مَانِي maṛ-du, and served quite the purposes of jasm. We cannot adopt this system, as in many cases it will give rise to confusion and misconceptions.

- 4) The sign (عَبْرَةُ hamzah, i. e. punction) is used in the midst and at the end of words as a vicarious base for I; when two vowels, short or long, meet in a word, the second vowel must be supported by the base وورق بالمنافق إلى المنافق إلى ال

A final short vowel, preceded by ā, ū, ō is usually supported by the sign hamzah alone, as: فَهَاءُ bhā-u, brother;

pō-e, after; هُوهِ hū-e, sound. But if, be radical in a word, hamzah with its accompanying vowel is placed upon, as: نَانْوُ nãu, fame, Formative نَانُوْ nãva; مَا تِهُونَ gãũ, cow; مَا تِهُونَ māṛhũa, Formative of: مَا تَهُونَ māṛhū, man.

In the Formative Singular of such nouns, which end in ī, hamzah is dropped for brevity's sake, as: هَنْدِي handā, a pot, Formative: هَنْدِيَ handia (instead of هَنْدِيَ handia (instead of هَنْدِيَ but in nouns like سَانتِين sāī, lord, hamzah must be retained in the Formative, to prevent mistakes, as: سَانتُنَا sãīa.

Note. The sign ~ (عُدْلُ أَرْمَالُ vasl, conjunction) only occurs in Arabic phrases and constructions; it joins two words, the latter of which begins with alif, the accompanying vowel of which is dropped and the final vowel of the preceding word drawn over or rather joined to the following; e. g.: عَبْدُ ٱلْمَلِكِ عَبْدُ الْمَلِكِ abdulmaliki (instead of: عَبْدُ الْمَلِكِ ); قَالَ السَّمَعُ bismi-llāhi.

SECTION I.

THE FORMATION OF THEMES IN SINDHI.

Chapter I.

The termination of Sindhi nouns.

§. 6.

In the formation of themes the relative position, which the Sindhī holds to the Sanskrit-Prākrit on the one side, and to its modern sister-tongues on the other side, is most clearly delineated.

The peculiarity of the Sindhī, and at the same time the great advantage, which is possesses over the kindred idioms consists therein, that every noun, substantive, adjective, pronoun, participle and infinitive ends in a vowel. By this vocalic termination the Sindhī has preserved a flexibility, and at the same time a sonorousness, of which the other modern vernaculars are completely destitute.

After what has been remarked on the nature of the diphthongs in Sindhī (see Introduction §. 1), it may be easily gathered, that no Sindhī noun can end in a diphthong. A Sindhī noun may therefore end in a, i (e), u; ā, ī, ū, ō; no noun ever ends in ē, and those, which seem to do so, are not in the Nominative, but in the inflected case. A final vowel may also be nasalized, as: مَاتِكُونُ māṛhū, man, عَوْتُكُونُ čothō, the fourth; برين prī, friend, which is especially the case, if a word terminate in a long vowel, but this constitutes, after what we have said on the nature of Anusvāra, no exception to the general rule.

In the formation of themes the Sindhī has in the main followed the course pointed out by the Prākrit, but it has created many new formations, independent and irrespective of the Prākrit. The levelling process of the modern idioms has already gained the ascendancy, and terminations, which the Prākrit, though seized already by the same tendency, has as yet kept asunder, have been thrown together into one class in Sindhī.

The Sindhī has lost the neuter, which has been already discarded in the Apabhransha dialect of the Prākrit, the immediate predecessor of the modern Sindhī. This, as it seems, has been the first step, to break the fetters of the old compact mother-tongue, and to initiate the levelling process of the present idiom.

Inasmuch as the Sindhī requires a vocalic termination for every noun, the distinction of the gender is not so perplexing as in the other dialects, which offer great difficulties in this point to the student. The terminations, which have been already fixed for the Prākrit, have been mostly retained in the Sindhī, with the exception of neuter nouns, which have been, for the most part, transferred to the masculine terminations, less to the feminine.

I. The termination u.

1) Masculine themes in u.

By far the greatest number of nouns end in Sindhī in u, and are, with a few exceptions, masculine. This short final u corresponds to the Prākrit termination  $\bar{o}$ , which, according to the testimony of the old Prākrit grammarians, has been already shortened to u in the Apabhransha dialect. 1) To this class belong in Sindhī:

<sup>1)</sup> In Marāṭhī final  $\overline{\mathbf{M}}$  (= Sindhī u) has on the whole become already quiescent; the same is the case in Bangālī, except when final a is preceded by a double consonant, in which case it is heard. In Panjābī, Hindī and Hindūstānī final a has quite disappeared; for nouns like piu, father, māū, mother etc. are in Panjābī exceptional cases.

b) such nouns, as end originally in u, as: الله vāu, wind (Sansk. वायु n.; مُدُ madu, liquor, Sansk. मध्) n.

e) such nouns, as end in Sanskrit in tā (crude form tr), Prāk. ā (by elision of t), or which add in Prākrit the termination āro, as: إلله piu, father, Sansk. पिता, Prāk. पित्रा; إلله bhāu, brother, Sansk. भाता, Prāk. already भाद (in Sindhī again with elision of d); bhatāru, husband, Prāk. भतारो, Sansk. भता (see Varar. V, 31).

2) Feminine themes in u.

These are, comparatively speaking, few in number; to this class belong such nouns, as end in Sanskrit in u, and are feminine as: عَنْ f. thing, Sansk. عَمْنُ dhēṇu, a milk-cow, Sansk. عَمْنُ sasu, mother-in-law, Sansk. عَمْنُ vijū, lightening, Prāk. विज्ञू, Sansk. विद्युत.

In a few themes original ā has been shortened to u, the Sindhī following herein the levelling process no-Trumpp, Sindhī-Grammar.

II. The termination o.

Besides the nouns ending in u, those ending in ō are the most numerous in Sindhī; they are all without exception masculine. The old Prākrit termination  $\overline{x}$  (ō) has been split in Sindhī into two classes, in one of which ō has been shortened to u and in the other of which it has been retained unaltered.

A strict rule seems not to have been attended to in settling these two terminations, but usage alone seems to have decided for the one or the other; in many instances both terminations are promiscuously used. It is worthy of notice, that many nouns, which end in Sindhī in ō, have retained the corresponding termination ā (masc.) in Hindī and Hindūstānī and to a great extent also in Marāthī, Bangālī and Panjābī, and similarly those nouns, which terminate in Sindhī in u, have dropped the corresponding vocalic termination (i. e. N, a) in the dialects quoted.

Examples: تَروُ tarō, the sole of a shoe (Sansk. तरुं n.) گلوْ galō, the throat (Sansk. नरुं m.), whereas on the other hand گُلُ galu, cheek, corresponds to the Sansk. الْوَكُ يَارُو يَارُونُ يَارُو يَارُونُ يَالِمُ يَارُونُ يَارِيُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَارِيُونُ يَارُونُ يَالِمُ يَارُونُ يَعْمُونُ يَالِيُونُ يَارُونُ يَارُونُ يَالِيُونُ يَارُونُ يَالِمُ يَالِمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يَالِيْرُونُ يَالْمُعُلِمُ يَعْمُونُ يَالِيْكُونُ يَالِمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يَالِيْكُونُ يَالْمُعُونُ يَعْمُونُونُ يَالِيْكُونُ يَعْمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يَالِيْكُونُ يَعْمُونُ يُعْمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يُعْمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يُعْمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يُعْمُونُ يَعْمُونُ يُعْمُونُ يُ goldsmith (Sansk. सुवर्णकार); on the other hand हैं। luhāru, blacksmith (Sansk. लोहकार).

In some instances the language has made use of these two different terminations to derive words of somewhat different meanings from one and the same base, as: رُقْتُ čūrū, powder, filings, and چُوْرُ čūru, adj. powdered (both from the Sansk. عَنْ mathō, the head, and عَنْ māthu, the top (both from the Sansk. المنافعة المنافع

We may however lay down some rules, by which the Sindh $\bar{\imath}$  seems to have been guided in retaining the original Pr $\bar{\imath}$ krit termination  $\bar{o}$ :

1) Adjectives, derived directly from the Sanskrit-Prākrit, have on the whole retained the ending ō, as: وَعَنْ دُمْنَ, good (Sansk. عَهَارُ شَابُهُوْ miṭhō, sweet (Sansk. الله); مِنْ للهُ khārō, bitter (but كَهَارُ khāru, s. m. potash, both being derived from the Sansk. الكهوْ تُوكُونُ rukhō, hard (Sansk. الهُ اللهُ اللهُ

Adjectives derived by secondary affixes from other themes generally retain the termination ō, as: بَانِكُوْ بَاءِ بَمْ أَنْ بَانِكُوْ بَانِكُونَ بَانِكُولُونُ بَانِكُونُ بَانِكُونُ بَانِكُونُ بَانِكُونُ بَانِكُونَ بَانِكُونُ بِعِيْنِ بَانِكُونُ بَانِكُو

2) Verbal nouns, which are derived from the root of verbs by lengthening the root-vowel, take the termination  $\bar{o}$ , as:

ghāṭō, decrease, from گَهَتَنُ to decrease. گَهَاتُنُ to decrease. چَاڙِهوْ čārhō, increase, from چَاڙِهوْ

The termination u however is also in use, especially with such themes, in which the root-vowel is not lengthened, as:

مَرْکُنُ marku, boasting, from مَرْکُنُ to boast. غَوْمَنُ jhaṭu, snatching, from مَجْعَتُنُ to snatch.

3) Nouns of agency, which are derived from verbal roots by prolonging the root-vowel (if it be short) take likewise the termination ō, as:

vāḍhō, carpenter, from وَقَهَنُ to cut. وَقَهَنُ to b̄ō, diver, from وَتُهَنُ to dive. تُوبُو to split. خِيرَنُ to split.

- 4) Some nouns of foreign origin change (original) final ā or ah to ō in Sindhī, as: بَابؤ bābō, father, Hindūst. (turkish) كَرْوَارَة ; بَابَا darvāzō, door, Pers. كَرْوَارَة ; بَابَا
- 5) All participles present and past end in ō, as: مَارِينْدُو halandō, going; مَارِينْدُو haliō, gone; مَارِينْدُو mā-rīndō, beating, مَارْيو māryō, beaten.
- 6) It is seldom the case, that an original final ā (fem.) has been changed to ō, and rendered thereby masculine, as: تَارِقَ tārō, star (Sansk. नारा fem.); Hindī likewise नारा masc. (Paṣṭō: ستوْرَيُ stōrai m.); in Marāṭhī it is both masc. and fem.

Note. If we turn to the cognate dialects, we find, that the Gujarātī comes nearest to the Sindhī in this respect; for nearly all the nouns, which end in Sindhī in ō and u, have retained the termination  $\bar{o}$ . As the Gujarātī has preserved the neuter, it forms a regular neuter ending in  $\dot{\vec{s}}$   $\tilde{u}$  from masc. themes in  $\bar{o}$ , as:  $\bar{g}_{\vec{n}}\dot{\vec{c}}$  a dog (in general), but  $\bar{g}_{\vec{n}}\dot{\vec{c}}$  a male dog. This neuter termination we consider identical with the Sindhī vocalic termination u, with the only difference, that Anusvāra, as the sign of the neuter, has been added.

In Marāṭhī, Hindī and Panjābī, final ō of the Sindhī and Gujarātī has been changed to ā. The Panjābī and Hindī (Hindūstānī) have lost the neuter, but the Marāṭhī, which has preserved it, forms from the masc. termination ā a regular neuter ending in ē (v), which is in its origin nothing else but another masc. termination with the addition of final Anusvāra, just as in Gujarātī (compare on this point: Lassen, Instit. linguae Prāk. p. 429, 14); e. g.: 南京 n. a plantain, Hindī: 南京 m., 南京 inf. (properly a neuter verbal noun, as in Sanskrit), Sindhī 文 karaņu (m.), Hindī 南京 karna (m.), Gujarātī: 南京 (n.), as in Marāṭhī.

In Bangalī the termination ā (= ō of the Sindhī) is only to be met with in a few nouns, as: gādhā, ass, ghōṛā, horse etc. (nouns like: pitā, kartā, do not come properly under this head, as they are Sansk. Nominatives); as a masc. termination of adjectives ā is unknown in Bangālī.

III. The termination $\bar{u}$ (masc. and fem.).

Nouns ending in ū correspond generally to the Sanskrit-Prākrit termination u, which in Prākrit is lengthened in the Nom. Sing. to ū; those nouns, which end already in Sanskrit ū, retain this termination unaltered in Sindhī. Some feminine nouns, ending in ū, shorten their final ū again to u, adding at the same time one of the feminine terminations i (e) or a; e. g.: عَلَى sāū, upright (Prāk. साउ, Nom. Sing. साउ, Sansk. साधु), Hindī साधू or साधु; تَارُبِي bhū f. earth (or: جَنِي bhuē), Sansk. جَرِي jū f. louse (or; جُنِي jūa), Sansk. यूज (with eli-sion of final k in Sindhī); آبِرُو ābirū, honor (or قَبِرُو ābirūe) Pers.

In some nouns ending in ū, a more complicated contraction has taken place, as: سَاتِعُون māṛhū, man, Prāk. माणुमो, Sansk. मानुष (n of the Prākrit interchanging with r, and H being exchanged for h); تُارِّعُون أَوْمَا بَالْمُ اللهُ ال

IV. The termination ā.

Nouns ending in ā correspond generally to the Sanskrit-Prākrit termination ā (आ) and are all feminine, as: چُنتا čintā, anxiety, Sansk. चिना; چُنتا ٻُغَةُ hačā, murder, Sansk. हत्या; جَاتَرَا بُغَةَلَ بُعَةً بُقَارَا بُعَانَا بُعَانِيا بُعَانَا بُعَانِيا بُعَانَا بُعَانِيا بُعَانَا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنَا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَانِيا بُعَنَا بُعَانِيا بُعْنِيا بُعْنَا بُعَنْ بُعْنَا بُعْنَا بُعْنَا بُعْنَانَا بُعَانِيا بُعْنَا بُ

There exists a small number of masc. nouns, now ending in ā, which must not be confounded with the preceding fem. nouns, as they are of quite a different origin; they are derived from Sansk. themes ending (in their crude forms) in an (अन्) and r (क्), and in the Nom. Sing. in ā, as: اَشَا atmā, soul; kartā, the agent (in grammar). There are also a few foreign words, ending in ā, as: اَشَنَا āšnā, an acquainstance, Pers. اَشَنَا.

A few adjectives end likewise in ā (or ā) as: اَقُاتَا data, liberal; تَالَان tālā, exhausted etc.

V. The termination ă.

The vocalic ending ă is shortened from the preceding fem. termination ā, just as u has been shortened from ō. To this class belong in Sindhī:

1) such nouns, as end in Sanskrit and Prākrit in ā, as: جِبَةِ jibha, tongue, Prāk. जीहा, Sansk. जिहा; أَنْهُ nũha (besides نُنْهُ daughter - in - law, Sansk. नुषा; قِيع dhia (besides: المرقيع), daughter, Prāk. धीदा or धीस्रा; sa-ina, sign, Sansk. सजा; مَنْمَ mińa, marrow, Sansk. मज्जा. Further a great quantity of nouns, the formation of which is peculiar to the Sindhī, and which may be derived from every verbal root. This formation corresponds exactly to the Sanskrit affix अङ् (ā), which is added to the verbal root, to form fem. nouns, as Sanskrit: भिदा, breaking, from भिद् etc. In Sindhī the derivation of such nouns from verbs is quite general, and the language acquires thereby a great facility to form verbal nouns, as: جَوْكَهَ čōkha, investigation, Infin. كُتُّنُ (root: چُوكهُ guḍa, pounding, Inf. كُثُنَى ; (root: عُثَّ). The Sindhī always falls back on the Prākrit, especially in such nouns, as differ already from the Sanskrit, by dropping either a final consonant in Prākrit or affixing a new vocalic ending, as: asīsa, blessing, Prāk. आसिस, Sansk. आशिस्.

2) The feminines of such adjectives, as end in the masc. in u, as: خبخ kubha, fem. of خبخ kubhu, unfortunate; خبخ sujāṇa, fem. of خبخن, well-knowing.

Only a very small number of adjectives ends originally in a, which remain unchanged in gender, number and case, as: جَارَ jāla, or جَارَ jāra, abundant; جَامَ jāma, much, many.

3) Many nouns fluctuate, as regards their termination, between a or i (e), as both short vowels form the common fem. terminations in Sindhī, e. g.: اَ مَارَ nāra or اَ أَلَ nāre, woman; اَ āre affection; چَهَنَ nāre, woman; رَيَّ are, affection; رَيَّ rīra or رَيَّ rīre, quarrel. From the adjectives, ending in u, the feminine may be formed in final a or i (e), as: اَتُوْرُ تَعْ عَرْيَتْ وَمْرِيَتْ وَمْرِيَتْ وَمْرِيَتْ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمُرْيَتْ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمُرْيِتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَيْتِ وَمْرَيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَاتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَدُ وَمْرُونِ وَمْرُونِ وَمْرَاتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَاتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَاتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرَاتِ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتِ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمْرُعُمْرُ وَمْرِيْتُ وَمُعْرِيْتُ وَمْرِيْتُ

This accounts easily enough for the phenomenon, that such nouns, as end in Prākrit in ī, have adopted in Sindhi the termination ă (simply exchanging one fem. termination for another), as: بهين bhēṇa (besides: بهين), sister, Prāk. बहिणी Sansk. भिगनी; على dhure, origin, Prāk. धुरा, Sansk. धुरा. But, though the respective fem. terminations are often exchanged, the original gender is commonly strictly adhered to in Sindhī, and the case is very rare, that an original masc. noun has been changed to a feminine, as: بَانِهَ b̄apha, fem. steam, Sansk. वाष्प masc. (in Hindī it has become likewise a fem.).

Note. As regards the cognate dialects, the Bangālī has throughout preserved the original fem. termination ā; the Marāṭhī too has remained more faithful to the Prākrit, but it has already in many cases shortened ā to a, and then dropped it altogether (in pronunciation at least) as: The jībh, tongue, Trat, way etc. In the other dialects long final ā has either been preserved, or it has been thrown off altogether (after having first been changed to ă).

As in Sindhī every noun must needs end in a vowel, such fem. nouns, as are borrowed from the Hindūstānī, frequently adopt the fem. termination 'a' in Sindhī, as: Hindūst.

earth, Sindhī رَمِينَ zamīna; Hindūst. مِلْک (f.) property, Sindhī مِلْک milka. In a few nouns the gender has been changed, as: Hindūst. كِتَابُ kitāb (fem.), Sindhī كِتَابُ kitābu, masc.

VI. The termination ī. (masc. et fem.)

Themes in ī are in Sindhī of both genders; they are either masculine or feminine.

1) Masc. themes ending in ī.

The termination ī in masc. nouns corresponds:

- a) To the Sansk. affix ī (= in), as: هَرْمِي dharmī, religious (Sansk. धिमेन्), Nom. Sing. धर्मी; سرامِي svāmī, lord (Sansk. स्वामिन्); هَاتِهِي hāthī, elephant (Sansk. हिस्सन.
- b) To the Sansk. affix ika (﴿عُهُ = ﴿مَ), by eliding k and lengthening i to ī; e. g.: هَارِي hārī, a peasant, Sansk. عَارِي ōṭhī, a camel-rider (from نَعْبَيْرِي ṭhēkirī, a seller of earthen ware (from تَهِيكُرِي, earthen ware).
- c) To the Sansk. adjectival affix य y, by changing य to ī, as: پرین prī, friend, Sansk. प्रिय; اَبِهَا کِي abhāgī, unfortunate, Sansk. अभाग्य.
- d) To the Sansk. affix ﴿ آبِي بَهِم بَهِ وَالْفَارِي وَ الْفَارِي الْفِي الْمُعْرِي الْفَارِي الْفَالْمِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي الْفَارِي
  - e) To Sanskrit masc. crudes, ending in i, which generally have final i lengthened to ī in Sindhī, as: كَرِي kavī, poët, Sansk. किंव; كَلِيكَالُ kalī-kālu, the Kāli-period; in some nouns though original short i has been preserved, as: مُعْبَ hare, Vishņu (Hindī: हिर्दे and हरी); يَحْبَى pa-e, lord, master (= पित्त).

There remains a number of words in ī, which are masculine, the origin of which is unknown, as: بيلي bēlī, servant; باندهي bāndhī, a log of wood floating in the river; مَانِجِهي mānjhī, a brave man.

Note. The Bangālī and Marāṭhī agree with the Sindhī in this respect, as Bang. svāmī, Marāṭhī hattī etc. On the other hand both idioms have retained the masc. termination i, as Bang. pati, lord, Marāṭhī kavi, poët. In Panjābī, Hindī (Hindūst.) final i of masc. themes is occasionally preserved, but more generally dropped, as har = hari; kav = kavi; or lengthened to ī, as in Sindhī, as kalī = kal, kali.

- 2) Feminine themes ending in ī.
- a) Feminine nouns, which end in Sanskrit and Prākrit in ī, remain unchanged in Sindhī, as: نَدِي nadī, river, Sansk. नदी; سَتِي satī, a virtuous woman, Sansk. सती; رَانِي rāṇī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी.

b) The fem. termination  $\bar{i}$  corresponds to the Sanskrit-Prākrit affix  $\bar{i}$ , by which feminines are formed from masculine themes. In Sindhī this termination is used to derive feminines from masc. bases ending in ō and u, as: يفلي bhalī, fem. good, from the masc. base piنبهني gōlī, a slave-girl, from گولئي عنايي a slave; بهائي bāmbhaṇī, the daughter or wife of a بَانْبهَنْي or Brāhman.

- c) The fem. termination ī is frequently applied to express littleness, smallness, neatness, as: كَاتِي kātī, a small knife, from مَاتِي kātī, a small jar, from مَاتَّةُ māṭō, a large jar etc.
- d) The fem. affix ī, which corresponds to the Sansk. abstract affix i, derives abstract nouns from adjectives and substantives, as: چَوْرِي čōrī, theft, from چُوْرِي čōru, a thief; جَوْرِي bhalī, goodness, from بَهَاءُ bhalō, good; دَوْسَتُ dōstī, friendship, from دُوسِتُي dōstu, friend.

VII. The termination i (ĕ) fem. (m.)

The ending 'i', which, with a few exceptions, denotes fem. nouns, corresponds to the Sanskrit-Prākrit termination ī; in others again is has been shortened from ī, in the same way, as final a from ā; e. g.: بُنْ فِي budhe, intelligence, Sansk. वृद्धि; مَتْ mate, opinion, Sansk. मिति;

The termination i (e) is generally used to derive feminines from adjectives and substantives ending in u, as: سَدهَر أَحِيتُ ačēte, thoughtless, masc. عَدْتُ gaḍahe, a jenny-ass, from تَريتُ a jack-ass; بَريتِ parīṭe, a washerwoman, from تَريتُ a washerman.

In some few nouns the original gender has been changed, as: ্র্টা āge, fire (fem.), Prāk. স্কান্সি (m.), Sansk. आपि m.; إلى dēhe (fem.), body, Sansk. देह (m. and n.); in the cognate dialects both are alike fem.

It is further to be observed, that in Sindhī final i (e) very frequently interchanges with final ă, both vowels constituting the regular fem. terminations, e. g.:

Jāre or Jāra, fondness; Jāra gōre or Jōgōra, thunder etc. Among these we must also reckon forms like changed for i (e).

In Sindhī, as well as in the cognate dialects, some few masc. nouns have retained the original Sansk. termination ĭ, as: مُرَسْيَتِ hare, Vishnu, رَسْيَتِ viraspate, the planet Jupiter (Thursday) يَتُى pa-e, lord, husband (= पति); in others again ĭ has been shortened from ī, as: كِيهُ kēhare, lion, Sansk. केशिन, Hindī केहा and केहा; مَهَاتِي sahāe or سَهَاتِي sahāī, a helper.

To some nouns of foreign origin the termination i has also been added, as: غَنَاءِ xudāe, God (Pers. إِذْنَا); sēṭhe, a Hindī wholesale merchant (Hindūst. سِيتُهِ xiðire, nom. prop. of a Pīr and fabulous prophet.

Chapter II.

Primary themes.

§. 7.

With reference to the formation of themes the Sindhī conforms on the whole to the system of the Prākrit, inasmuch as Prākrit themes are directly received into the Sindhī with such modifications, as are peculiar to the Sindhī; but besides this the Sindhī has set up new formations of themes, whereby the inherited stock of vocables, be they of Ārian or non-Ārian origin, is peculiarly remodelled. As regards the themes taken directly from the Prākrit, we must refer to the Sindhī system of sounds in our Introduction, which alone can give the necessary clue as to the origin or derivation of a theme from the Prākrit; in the following we shall only treat of those themes, which have been formed either by modifying the old inherited stock, or by new rules altogether, irrespective of the Prākrit. Nouns of Arabic or Persian origin we shall exclude from our present investigation, as they have nothing in common with the genuine Sindhī forms, but are intruders, without which the Sindhī may well exist; they partake so far of the general laws of the formation of themes, that a vocalic termination is affixed to them, according to their respective gender, to render them susceptible of inflexion.

Whe shall divide the Sindhī formation of themes after the precedent of the Sanskrit into two classes, viz: that of primary and secondary themes, that is, such themes, as are directly derived from verbal roots, and such, as are derived from primary nouns, by means of affixes.

§. 8.

I. Formation of abstract nouns.

- 1) Themes in ă, ĭ (ĕ); u, ō (ī fem.)
- a) Themes in a are formed from the simple root of the verb (which in Sindhī, as well as in Sanskrit, is always monosyllabical, derivative verbs excepted) by dropping the Infinitive (verbal) affix anu. In this way an abstract noun may be formed from every Infinitive of the language, exhibiting the abstract idea of the verb.

The affix a corresponds to the Sansk. affix આ, which is added to the root of the verb (as: Sansk. पूजा, worship, from पूज to worship) to form abstract nouns; in Sindhī final ā has been shortened to ă; see §. 6, V. e. g.:

jāga, wakefulness, Inf. جَاكَنُ to be awake. مَرْهَنُ marha, pardon, Inf. مَرْهَنُ to pardon. مَرْهَنُ pīṛa, pressure, Inf. پِيةِنُ to press.

sagha, strength, Inf. سگهن to be strong.

In some roots 'a' is prolonged to ā and 'u' to ō, as:

jhāṭa, snatching, Inf. جهَاتُن to snatch.

to err. بهُلَنُ bhōla, error, Inf. بهوْلُ

b) Themes in i (e) are formed in the same way as the preceding (i being only a variation of  $\check{a}$ ), with this difference, that the root-vowel must always be prolonged (viz:  $a = \bar{a}$ ;  $u = \bar{o}$ ;  $i = \bar{e}$ ), e. g.:

گهَاتِ ghāṭe, descrease, Inf. گهَنَّنُ to descrease. ghōme, vagrancy, Inf. گهُنَّنُ to wander about. گهُنَّنُ vēṛhe, quarrel, Inf. ويڙهِ to quarrel.

c) The termination 'u' corresponds to the Sansk. affix , which derives abstract nouns from verbal roots, with or without prolonging the root-vowel; the same is the case in Sindhī, where the root-vowel either remains unchanged, or is prolonged. E. g.:

marku, boast, Inf. مَرْكَنُ to boast. أَمُونُ to boast. أَوْنُ lāhu, descent, Inf. لَهُنُ to descent. أَلُهُ نُ to descent. ويُهَرُنُ bhōru, crumb, Inf. بهورُنُ to crumble. بهيرُنُ phēru, turn, Inf. بهيرُنُ to turn (v. n.).

d) Themes in  $\bar{\rm o}$  are identical with those in u, both terminations interchanging very frequently (see §. 6, I. II.).

ghaṭō, deficiency, Inf. گهَاتَنُ to decrease. گهَاتَنُ čāṛhō, increase, Inf. چُڙهُنُ to rise. پُرَهُنُ jhagiṛō, quarrel, Inf. جَهُرِّرُنُ to quarrel. جَهُرِّرُنُ d̄ēkhārō, showing, Inf. دُيكهَارُنُ to show.

The masc termination  $\bar{o}$  is occasionally exchanged for the fem. termination  $\bar{\imath}$ , with some slight alteration of meaning, as:

خَارِهِي čāṛhī, ascent, Inf. چَڙهَنُ to ascend. چَڙهَنُ đēkhārī, showing.

- 2) Themes in anu, ano, anī, ane.
- a) Themes in anu coincide in Sindhī with the form of the Infinitive, which, according to the testimony of the old Prākrit grammarians, has already been the case in the Apabhransha dialect, the Infinitive of which terminated in NU (compare: Lassen, Instit. ling. Prāk. p. 469, 5).

The old Sanskrit Infinitive in TR (the Latin supinum) has been lost in the modern vernaculars (the Gujarātī Infinitive, which ends in ʒ, is properly a neuter Gerundive, and the Bangālī infinitive, which ends in tē, is a past participle, used as a verbal noun) and in its place the verbal noun in अनं is substituted, which in Marāthī has remained neuter (v ē), but which in Sindhī and the other dialects has been classed under the masculine termination. The affix anu is added directly to the verbal root in Sindhī, and forms abstract nouns, corresponding to our Gerunds; as:

َٰذِسْ disanu, seeing, root: ثِسَنْ

هَلْنُ halaṇu, going, root: هَلْنُ maraṇu, dying, root: مَرْنُ

The naked verbal root, as pointed out, is in Sindhī nowhere to be met with, but always ends in the Imperative, where alone its crude form comes to light, in a vowel, which is either u (in intrans. verbs) or i (e) (in transitive verbs). According to the final vowel of the Imperative the junction vowel of the Infinitive or verbal noun varies in Sirō, as: عَارِينَ māriņu (to beat), المِنْتُنُ lēṭaṇu, to recline, but in Lār no regard is had to this circumstance, and all Infinitives (itrespective of their transitive or intransitive signification) terminate in aṇu.

b) Themes in aṇō (which is originally only a variation of aṇu) express in Sindhī more a lasting action, occupation or state; e. g.:

māṇiṇō (or maṇaṇō) betrothal (literally: asking [for a bride]).

Note. It is remarkable, that all the other dialects, with the exception of the Bangālī and Gujarātī, have retained this termination of the Infinitive, as: Marāṭhī कार्ण (ē being originally identical with ō, see Lassen §. 144, 2), Hindī (Hindūst.) कार्ना, Panjābī: karnā.

c) More frequently than the termination ano, the feminine ending anī is used in Sindhī, serving at the same time to express smallness, neatness etc. of a state or action:

خُونِي čavaṇī, saying, Inf. چُونِي to say. halaṇī, going, gait (comely), Inf. هَلَنِي to go. فَكَنُ bhariṇī, embroidery, Inf. بِهَرِنِي to fill.

to cut. وَقَهَنُ vaḍhaṇī, carpentering, Inf. وَقَهَنُ

Occasionally the termination ani is shortened to ani (anĕ), as:

رَّهَنِ gehane, swallowing (besides: گِهَنِي), Inf. گِهَنِي to swallow.

The affix anī (or inī) joined to roots of causal verbs, signifies: expense for, wages for, as:

khaṇāṇī, expense for carrying or lifting up (porterage), Inf. کهناځي to cause to carry.

چَارَنْ čārāṇī, expense for grazing cattle, Inf. چَارَنْ to cause to graze.

دهُمَّارِنِي dhuāriṇī, expense for washing, Inf. دهُمَّارِنِي to cause to wash.

3) Themes in ti.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix  $\widehat{\mathbf{n}}$ , by which abstract nouns are derived from verbal roots, besides those, which are taken over directly from the Sanskrit. The junction vowel in Sindhī is ă, as:

khapate, expense, Inf. کَهَپَنْ to spend. کَهَپَنِ to pleasure, Inf. وَنَٰنُ vanate, pleasure, Inf. وَنَٰتِ

تَوْتِ جَارَتِ avate jāvate, income, expense (literally: coming, going); as Infinitives they are not used in Sindhī, but in Hindī.

چَهَدُّنُ chaḍate, remission, Inf. چَهَدُّنُ to remit. چَهَدُن halate, behaviour, Inf. هَلَتِ to go.

4) Themes in aṭu, āṭū (ā—ū), āṭī (fem.).

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. Unādi-affixes  $\overline{\mathbf{x}}, \overline{\mathbf{y}}, \overline{\mathbf{q}}$  which Bopp has justly referred to the Infinitive affix  $\overline{\mathbf{q}} = \overline{\mathbf{q}}$ . This is borne out by their signification, which in Sindhī nearly coincides with that of the Infinitive, as:

قهيرَنُ ghēraṭu, surrounding, Inf. گهيرَنُ to surround. خُهِيرَنُ čhimkāṭu, jingling, Inf. چهِ مُكَانُ to jingle.

الْهُذِكَاتُ bhuṇikātu humming, Inf. بَهُذِكَانُ to hum. humming, Inf. بَهُذِكَانُ to hum. (by elision of ṭ.)

phērāṭī, giddiness, Inf. پهيرَاڐِي to cause to turn.

Note. A feminine may thus be derived nearly from all masc. bases.

5) Themes in atru (or: itru).

The Sindhī affix aṭru (or iṭru) corresponds to the Sansk. affix ₹₹, and denotes an instrument, wherewith any thing is done or executed. In Lār this affix is assimilated to aṭu (= aṭṭu) whereas in Sirō the original compound is preserved (only with transition of t into ṭ); the root-vowel is lengthened in some themes; e. g.:

أَجَةُرُ vajaṭru, a musical instrument, Inf. وَجَنْ to sound. وَهَذُ vahiṭru, a beast of burden, Inf. وَهَذُ

6) Themes in ikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix য়ঀ (the junction vowel 'a' having been changed to i in Sindhī), which in Sanskrit forms nouns of agency, but in Sindhī also abstract nouns; as:

§. 9.

II. Formation of appellatives and attributives.

7) Themes in ō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix হার (final h being commonly elided in Sindhī), and forms attributives from verbal roots, which imply habitual action or possession. The root-vowel, if it be short, must be prolonged, as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

vāḍhō, carpenter, Inf. وَقَعَنُ to cut. وَقَعَنُ to split. چَيروُ čīrō, sawyer, Inf. چِيروُ to split. چَيروُ to dive. تُبَنُ to dive. گهوْرَنُ ghōrō, seeker, Inf. گهوْرَنُ to seek.

In some few instances the full Sansk affix has been preserved, as:

gāiku, singer, Inf. گَائِنُ to sing.

8) Themes in ū.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix 34 (final 44 beeing elided in Sindhī and u lengthened) and forms verbal adjectives or attributives, implying a habitual or characteristical action or state. The root-vowel, if short, is commonly prolonged before the accession of this affix; as:

vādhū, increasing, Inf. وَدَهُنُ to increase. تَرَنُ tārū, a swimmer, Inf. تَرَنُ to swim. تَرُنُ vēṛhū, a quarrelsome person, Inf. ويرَّهُنُ to quarrel.

يهْ پَرُوْرُ phōrū, a robber, Inf. پهُرَنُ to rob. پهُرَنُ ghōmū, a vagabond, Inf. گهُمُنُ to stroll about. Without prolongation of the root-vowel:

rahū, inhabitant, Inf. رَهُن to stay. رُهُن sahū, patient, Inf. سَهُن to bear.

9) Themes in āku, ākū, āū.

This affix denotes the same idea of a habitual state or action, as the preceding. It corresponds to the Sansk affix श्राकु which is added to the verbal root either unaltered, or with final 'u' lengthened, or with elision of  $\mathbf{a} = \bar{a} - \bar{u}$ . In some instances the root-vowel is prolonged. E. g.:

rahākū, inhabitant, Inf. رَهَاكُوْ rahā-ū, inhabitant, Inf. رَهَاكُوْ piāku, drinker, Inf. پِئُنْ to drink. virčāū, wearisome, Inf. وِرْچَانُو vēkāū, for sale, Inf. وِرَچَانُو vēkāū, for sale, Inf. پِتَنْ to be sold. pēṭāū, ill-wishing, Inf. پِيتَانُو

10) Themes in andō (and īndō).

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix 377, Prāk. 377 (in Sindhī with change of the tenuis into the media), and forms in Sindhī, like as in Sanskrit and Prākrit, present participles. According to the final vowel of the Imperative the participle ends in andō (Imperative u) or īndō (imperative i); some participles are formed irregularly.

lagandō, applying, Imper. اَكُنْ بَالَةُ to apply. أَكُنْ أَوْسُ lagandō, applying, Imper. وَسُنْ أَلِهُ أَلْهُ وَالْمَا الْهَا أَلْهُ وَالْمَا الْهَا الْهَالِمُ الْهَا الْهَا الْهَا الْهَا الْهَا الْهَا الْهُا لَهُ الْهَا الْهَا الْهُا لَا الْهَا الْهُالِمُ الْهَا الْمُعَالِمُ الْهَا الْهَا الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِّذِي الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِّمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعِلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعِلِمُ الْمُعِلِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَالِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْمُعَلِمُ الْ

تَهِمَّنُ thīndō (irreg.), Imper. تَهِمَّنُ to become.

Note. We advert to the fact, that all the other dialects have dropped the nasal in the Prak. affix affix the Panjabī has preserved it in a few forms, as: hunda, being, janda, going, but in the regular present participle the affix is always da, with change of the tenuis into the media, just as in Sindhī. In Gujarātī the present participle ends in to, as: उस्ती lakhto, writing; in Hindī (Hindūst.) in tā, as: likhtā, hōtā, being etc. Hinduī tu, as: लिखन likh-tu, writing. The Marāṭhī has formed two present participial affixes from the Sanskrit affix ञ्रात; one in ta, corresponding to the Hindi form, as: लिहिता, writing, with which affix the terminations of the substantive verb coalesce into the forms to, tos etc.; the other in at or it. The Bangālī has discontinued the use of the present participle (with the exception of a few Sanskrit participles ending in at) and only employs the same in conjunction with the substantive verb āchī, as: dēkhitēčhi, I am seeing; but dēkhitē is by no means to be confounded with the Infinitive, as it is commonly represented in Bangālī grammars, it is the Locative form of dēkhit, and signifies literally: I am in seeing (the Locative of the present participle is similarly used in Sindhī and Hindī).

11) Themes in āru, ārū, ārō.

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix সাই, and form in Sindhī verbal nouns, which imply a habitual action or occupation; their number is not very considerable; as:

to worship. پُوجَن pūjārō, a worshipper, Inf. پُوجَارؤ to worship.

pīńārō, a cotton carder, Inf. پینجارو to card cotton.

to beg. پنَنُ pēnāru, a beggar, Inf. پنَنُ to beg.

12) Themes in ibō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix તચ, incredible as this may appear. In Sindhī ત has been elided and vv (= ચ) hardened to b (= bb). It forms now in Sindhī present participles passive, though its original use and signification has still been preserved in the formation of the future passive; as:

نَّهُ بُوسَاتَنُ bَusāṭibō, being choked, Inf. بُوسَاتَنُ to choke. أَرْهِبُو d̄rōhibō, being cheated, Inf. تَرْهِبُو to cheat. يُرْهِبُو jhalibō, being seized, Inf. جَهَلَنُ to seize.

13) Themes in inō.

We have in Sindhī two themes in inō, which are quite of different origin and signification.

a) The affix inō, added to such verbs, as end in the Imperative in u, corresponds to the Sanskrit affix স্থান, which forms attributives and appellatives; in Sindhī the affix ana has been changed to inō; e. g.:

هُلُنْوَ haliṇō, going, Imper. هُلُنْوَ شَلِنُوْ murkiṇō, laughing, Imper. مُرْكِنُوْ شَرِكِنُوْ čhirkiṇō, shying, Imper. چَهِرْكِنُوْ chirkiṇō, crumbling, Imper. چَهُرُكِنُوْ بُهُرِنُوْ bhuriṇō, crumbling, Imper. بَهُرُ piniṇō, begging, Imper. پَيْنُوْ

Some of these attributives are also used substantively, and as such they are also susceptible of the fem. termination, as:

čhinkinō, rattle, i. e. that which rattles.

phiriṇō, spooling-wheel, i. e. that which turns round.

دَهَنْوَنِ dhãvaṇe, a pair of bellows, i. e. that which blows (the fire).

b) The other affix ino or ano corresponds to the Sanskrit affix श्रानीय, by which the future passive participle is formed in Sanskrit. Thus in Sindhī a Gerundive may be derived from every transitive verb by means of this affix, as:

dhuaṇō, what is to be washed, Inf. دهنَّنْ to wash. وهنَّنْ raṭhaṇō, what is to be taken, Inf. وَتَهَنْوَ to take.

In the same way a gerundive is derived form causal verbs, as:

وَرَائِنُوْ varāiṇō, what ought to be returned, Inf. وَرَائِنُوْ to return (act).

دهُمَّارِنْو dhuāriṇō, what ought to be caused to wash,
Inf. دهُمَّارِنْ to cause to wash.

Note. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the Gerundive coincides with the Infinitive, with this difference, that the Gerundive is properly a masc. substantive, and therefore only a Gerund; very rarely the Infinitive is employed as a Gerundive proper (i. e. future passive participle), agreeing with its governing noun in gender, as in Sindhī. The Panjābī on the other hand quite agrees with the Sindhi in this respect, using the Infinitive as a regular Gerundive, agreeing with the governing noun in gender, number and case, like an adjective. The Marāṭhī forms the Gerundive by the affix आवा (आवी, आवं), which corresponds to the Sansk. affix तथ, Prāk. तवः in Marāthī त has been elided and in its place 'a' lengthened, as: करावा faciendus, HISIAI dirumpendus. In a similar way the Gerundive is formed in Gujarātī by the affix अवो (= तव) as: लखवो scribendus. In Bangālī occurs no proper formation of a Gerundive, but the Infinitive (in distinction from the verbal noun) is generally employed to express the idea of a Gerund, like in Hindi, as: amākē jāitē hai, mihi eundum est; but many original Gerundive forms are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit, as: kartavya etc., the affix anīya is also in use.

14) Themes in iō or yō.

The affix iō or yō is used to derive perfect participles; it corresponds to the Sanskrit affix 7, Prākrit already ₹, and frequently altogether elided, for which reason y or i is inserted in Sindhī, to prevent the hiatus.

The perfect participle of transitive verbs always implies a passive signification, whereas that of intransitive verbs only expresses the idea of the Præterite.

In many instances the Sindhī has preserved the original Sanskrit-Prākrit forms of the perfect participles, modified according to the laws of elision and assimilation current in Sindhī.

pasyō (or پَسَّنُ pasiō) seen, Inf. پَسَئِوْ to see. جَهَلَنُ jhalyō (or: جَهَلِئوْ jhaliō) seized, Inf. جَهَليوْ to seize.

mōṭyō (or: مؤتَّنُ mōṭiō), returned, Inf. مؤتَّنُ to return.

ثِسَنُ diṭhō, seen; Sansk. ६४, Prāk. كَوْسَنُ; Inf. ثِسَنُ to see.

utō, said; Sansk. उत्त, Prāk. उत्ती; Inf. أَتُونُ to say.

Note. In reference to the formation of the perfect participles (the perfect participle active in a many has completely disappeared from the grammar of the modern vernaculars) a great variation is to be noticed in the cognate dialects. The Panjābī, Gujarātī, Hindī and Hindūstānī quite agree in this point with the Sindhī, as Panjābī: ghalliā, sent, Inf. ghallnā; Gujarātī: lakhyō, written; Hindī (Hindūst.): likhā (without insertion of euphonic i or y in the place of elided t or d), Inf. likhnā.

The Marāṭhī differs considerably in this respect from the idioms mentioned; it forms the perfect participle by affixing to the root of the verb (with the junction vowel a or i, according to the intransitive or transitive signification of a verb). The first traces of this affix must be sought already in Prākrit; the

The Bangālī coincides in this point quite with the Hindī, as: dēkhā, seen (without insertion of euphonic i or y).

Chapter III.

Secondary themes.

§. 10.

Under this head we shall class all those themes, which are derived from other nouns by means of an affix. We shall pass again all those forms, which have been taken directly from the Sanskrit-Prākrit, and only treat of those formations, which are peculiar to the Sindhī.

I. Formation of abstract nouns.

Abstract nouns may be derived either from substantives or adjectives, the affixes which the Sindhī uses for this purpose, agree all, more or less, with the primitive Sanskrit-Prākrit affixes.

1) Themes in ī. (f.)

By the affix i a very numerous class of abstract nouns is formed, which, after the analogy of the Persian, may be derived from any noun. The final vowel is always dropped before this affix, but in other respects the noun undergoes no change whatever.

The affix ī corresponds to the Sanskrit affix i (n.); in Sindhī as well as in the other dialects the feminine form ī, which is already current in Sanskrit, has alone been retained; e. g.:

خۇرى čōrī, theft, from چۇرى čōru, thief.

mandō, wicked. مَنْدِي mandō, wicked.

kamī, deficiency, from کَمِي kame, deficient.

2) Themes in āī. (f.)

The affix  $\bar{a}\bar{i}$  is only a variation of the preceding affix; final  $u = \bar{o}$  and  $\bar{o}$  are not dropped, as before the preceding affix, but changed to  $\bar{a}$  (as in the other dialects) to keep their place; e. g.:

يَوْمَلَائِي nirmalaī, purity, from نِوْمَلَائِي nirmalu, pure. نِوْمَلَائِي kūṛāī, falsity, from كُوزَائِي kūṛō, false.

Both forms are therefore frequently used indifferently, as:

بَهَاوْ bhalī, goodness, or: بِهَالَرِّي bhalāī, from بِهَاوْ bhalō, good.

3) Themes in tā and tāī. (f.)

The affix  $t\bar{a}$  forms in Sindhī a very numerous class of abstract nouns from attributives and adjectives; the final vowel is always dropped and the union-vowel i inserted (except when the noun ends in i). The affix  $t\bar{a}$  corresponds to the Sanskrit affix  $t\bar{a}$ , which is used for the same purpose in Sanskrit. Besides the affix  $t\bar{a}$ , the emphatic form with  $t\bar{a}$  ( $t\bar{a}$ - $t\bar{a}$ ) is also in use; e. g.:

ghaṭita, گهَتِّ ghaṭitāī, هُهَتِّ ghaṭitāī, هُهَتِّ ghaṭitāī, هُهَتِّ ghaṭitāī, jōgitā, fitness, from جَوْكُ بِيَّا مِنْ jōgu, fit.

4) Themes in te; tī. (f.)

The affix te, which is else only used with primary formations, is in Sindhī also (though very rarely) found with secondary formations; the affix tī, which is also occasionally to be met with, is only a variation of te (i having been lengthened to ī); as:

هَنْوِتِ sãvate, straightness, from سَنَتُونِ sãõ, straight. هَا عَلَيْتِي ghaṭitī, deficiency, from گَهَتِّتِي ghaṭe, deficient.

Note. The affix tī is also used in Hindūstānī, as: كَمْتِي deficiency, from كُمْتِي

5) Themes in ane or aine. (f.)

These affixes form a numerous class of abstract nouns from adjectives implying colour or some other inherent quality. They correspond to the Sanskrit affix ₹#₹, which forms abstract masc. nouns. In Prākrit the termination ¾₹ may already be lengthened to ¾₹ (cf. Var. V, 47); in Sindhī ₹ (m) has been elided, which is rather uncommon, and a feminine termination substituted for the masculine; the i of iman has been dropped = āṇe, whereas in the form āiṇe i has been inserted after ā, to render the 'a' more prominent. E. g.:

ačhāne, whiteness, from اَچهانِ ačhō, white. vēkirāne, breadth, from ويكرو vēkirō, broad.

vadāṇe, greatness, from وَدُوْ vadō, great.

The affix āṇe (āiṇe) is very often exchanged for the affix āī (see 2.), and with many nouns both affixes are promiscuously used, as: كَارَاتِي or كَارَاتِي blackness.

Note. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the affix ma (= इमन) is rarely used, and no longer as a masculine; e. g.: garimā, f., importance. In Gujurātī the affix āṇ is used (as neuter) e. g.: is used depth, from is deep; the Marāṭhī and Bangālī have preserved the original Sansk. termination mā (as masc.). In Panjābī, as in Gujarātī, the form āṇ (m.) is used, as: učāṇ, m., height, from učā, high.

6) Themes in pō, pā, pāī, pi; paṇu, paṇō; taṇu; āṭu.

These affixes form a very numerous class of abstract nouns from substantives and adjectives. We can see in this instance, how the Sindhī has menaged to derive from one and the same Sanskrit affix a whole series of abstract affixes, which at the first glance seem to have nothing in common.

The affixes pō, pa, pāī, pī are derived from the Sansk. abstract-affix \overline{\overline{\pi}} tva, which is assimilated to \overline{\pi} (see Introd. §. 15, D, b.); from this the Sindhī has formed the various terminations pā, pa, pāī, pī.

From the self-same affix  $\overline{\mathbf{q}}$ , which has become  $\overline{\mathbf{q}}$  in Prākrit (from an original  $\overline{\mathbf{q}}$ ), and which has been assimilated in the Apabhransha dialect to  $\overline{\mathbf{q}}$  (see Lassen, p. 459, 9.) the Sindhī has derived the affixes paņu or paņō.

From the same source has also sprung the affix tanu, but by a different process of assimilation, the semi-vowel v being assimilated to the preceding dental (cf. §. 15, D, b.).

Another form of assimilation is the affix āṭu (viz: tva = tta = ṭṭa = āṭa, the double consonant being cleared away by lengthening the preceding vowel), which is only rarely used.

The final vowels undergo various changes before the accession of the above mentioned affixes; final u is generally changed to 'a' or 'i', with the exception of the fem. nouns ending in 'u', which preserve 'u' (as radical) before all affixes; final ō is either weakened to 'a' or changed to ō; final ī is either shortened to 'i', or with a subsounding 'a' to 'ia', which is mostly the case before the heavy affixes paṇu, paṇō; final ū is shortened to 'u' with a subsounding 'a' (= ua) before the heavy affixes paṇu, paṇō; long ū though keeps now and then its place before them; before the lighter affixes pō, pa, pāī, pī final ū is shortened even to 'i' (for euphony's sake). Final short 'a' may be lengthened to ā, to distinguish the feminine themes from those ending in 'u'; but this depends on usage.

panditapano, m. The duty of a pandit; from عُنْدُتُ čhōkirāṭu, m. The time of youth; from Śśęż čhōkaru, a boy.

vathupa; f. assistance; from قغ fem. laying hold of.

b) final ō:

nandhapāi, f. تَنْدُّهُو nanḍhapaṇu, m. Time of youth; from نَنْدُّهُونُ nanḍhēpō, m. Time of youth; from نَنْدُّهِيپُونُ

c) final $\bar{1}$ :

vāhipa, f. وَاهِيَ vāhipō, m. The duty of a وَاهِي m. or watchman.

كَاندهِي The offixe of a كَاندهِيًّن kāndhiapa, f. kāndhī, one who gives a shoulder in carrying mukhī or مُكْهِى mukhitaṇu, the duty of a مُكهِتَنُ headsman.

d) final ū:

māṇhipō, مَانْهِپوْ humanity, from مَانْهُون māṇhūً mānhuapaņo, مَانْهُنَّيَنْوْ mirupaṇō, bestiality, from مِرُون mirupaṇō, wild beast.

e) final a:

ranāpaṇu, widowhood, from زَنَايَنُ ranāpaṇu, widowhood, zālapaņu, womanhood, from Ji; a woman.

Note. These abstract affixes are to be met with in all the cognate idioms. The Hindī and Hindūstānī use the affixes pan, panā and pā, corresponding to the Sindhī forms paṇu, paṇō and pō. The Gujarāthī: paṇ and paṇũ (both neut.); the Marāṭhī: paṇ (n.) and paṇā (m.); the Panjābī: puṇā. The Bangālī comes nearest to the Sanskrit in this respect, having retained the original abstract affix tva unaltered.

7) Themes in kāru, kārō, kāra, kāre.

These themes fall under our consideration in this place not so much on account of their formation, as their signification, for we have here not to deal with an affix, but with an adjective, used to form compounds, and signifying: making, effecting. In Sindhī the original signification of TI has been already obliterated, and it is now used in the same way as an affix, to form a number of abstract nouns; e.g.:

الْچِهِكَارُوُ lučhikārō, uneasiness, properly: that which makes غياً lučha, or being tossed about.

vaṇakāru, wood, forest; properly: that which وَنَكَارِ vaṇakāre, produces trees (وَنَى).

تهَدهِكَار thadhekāra, cool temperature; properly: that which makes coolness (تهَدهِ).

8) Themes in kō and ō.

The affix kō serves originally to derive adjectives, and corresponds to the Sansk. affix ₹¶; but in Sindhī it is sometimes used (as the preceding affix ¶) to form abstract nouns; the affix ō is identical with kō, k having been elided. E. g.:

الْچِهِكَاروُ. lučhikō, uneasiness; the same as: الْچِهِكَاروُ. dhūṛyō, a duststorm; properly: that which makes sand (دهُوڙِيوُ).

§. 10.

II. Formation of apellatives, attributives and possessives.

9) Themes in ī.

This affix, which in Sindhī and the kindred idioms is so frequently employed, has sprung from three different sources:

a) The affix ī, corresponding to the Sanskrit affix इन.

This affix forms attributives and appellatives of various significations; the root-vowel is generally lengthened before the addition of this affix, i. e. 'a' becomes  $\bar{a}$ ; 'i' :  $\bar{e}$ ; 'u' :  $\bar{o}$ ; e. g.:

أَتَّهُ ōthī, a camel-rider, from وَتَهِي uṭhu, camel. وَتَهِي bākirī, a seller of vegetables, from بَكُرُ bakaru, vegetables.

تَهِيكِرْ ṭhēkirī, a seller of earthen-ware; from تَهِيكِرْ thēkiru, earthen-ware.

b) The affix ī, corresponding to the Sansk. affix ईय, इय.

This affix denotes in all the modern vernaculars descent or relationship. Before its addition to a noun a final short vowel is dropped, long  $\bar{u}$  is shortened to 'u', and  $\bar{o}$  is changed to  $\bar{a}$ . In some instances final short 'u' (shortened from  $\bar{o}$ ) is changed to  $\bar{a}$  (=  $\bar{o}$ ) and thus preserved; e. g.:

sindhī, of Sindh, from سِنْدهِي f. sindhu, the country of Sindh.

هِنْدُوِّ hinduī, relating to a Hindū, from هِنْدُوِّ hindū, hindū, a Hindū.

الَّزِي lāṛī, of Lāṛ, from كُرِّ m. laṛu, Lower Sindh. كُرُّ الْمَاءِ الْ sirāī, of Sirō, from سِرَائِي sirāī, Upper Sindh.

c) The affix  $\bar{\imath}$ , corresponding to the Sansk. affix  $\bar{\xi}\bar{\gamma}$ . (Nom. Sing.  $\bar{\imath}$ .)

The Sindhī affix ī serves to form possessive nouns, like the Sansk. affix इन; e. g.:

َ انْهِي dẫhī, complainant, from اَنْهِ dẫha, complaint. rōgī, sick, from رُوُّكِي rōgī, sick, from رُوُّكِي rōgū, sickness. mālī, gardener, Sansk. मालिन्.

In such formations, as are peculiar to the Sindhī, a final short vowel may keep its place before the affix  $\bar{i}$ , as:

mataī, tenacious of one's opinion or sect, from make opinion or religion (final 'e' being exchanged for 'a', for euphony's sake).

10) Themes in āi.

The affix  $\bar{a}\bar{i}$  is only a variation of the affix  $\bar{i}$  (9, a), final 'u' and  $\bar{o}$  of such themes, as end in 'u' and  $\bar{o}$  being again changed before it to  $\bar{a}$ ; nouns thus formed imply an occupation, habit or tendency, as:

بَاكَائِي bāgāī, gardener, from بَاكَائِي bāgu, garden. نيچۇ nēčāī, a maker of huqqah-snakes, from نيچائِي nēčō a huqqah-snake.

jhagiṛāī, a quarreller, from جَهَكِّةً لِيَّي jhagiṛō, quarrel.

11) Themes in ū.

The affix  $\bar{\mathbf{u}}$ , corresponding to the Sansk affix  $\mathbf{J}\mathbf{\bar{a}}$ , is added to substantives, by means of which, as in the primary formations, apellatives and adjectives are derived, denoting an habitual action or state. A final vowel is always dropped before the addition of this affix;

in some nouns the first vowel is lengthened at the same time; e. g.:

hāńū, injurious, from هَانِجُو hāńe, injury.

vērū, revengeful, from ويرُو vēru; enmity.

خهَاپِرُو čhāpirū, a mountaineer, from چهَاپِرُو čhaparu, a range of hills.

أَ bākhirū, a man of Bakhar, from بَكَهَرُ bakharu, a town of upper Sindh.

12) Themes in āū.

The affix  $\bar{a}\bar{u}$  is identical with the preceding, the only difference being that the final vowel of the theme is lengthened before the affix  $\bar{u}$  (fin.  $u = a = \bar{a}$ ).

هُوْمَاتُو dharmāū, religious, from هُوْمَاتُو dharmu, religion. هُرُمَاتُو šarmāū, bashful, from, شَرْمُ šarmu, shame, modesty.

13) Themes in āc.

The affix āō is already so much corrupted, that its origin is scarcely recognisable; it corresponds to the Sanskrit affix \(\mathbb{H}\mathbb{Z}\), which forms adjectives, denoting "made of, consisting of." The labial m has been elided in this affix as well as in the abstract affix \(\mathbb{Z}\mathbb{H}\mathbb{Z}\), and a has been lengthened in compensation thereof. The semi-vowel y has likewise disappeared, āō = āyō; the final Anusvāra is altogether euphonic and more or less optional; e. g.:

haiḍrāỗ, made of هَيْدٌرَ haiḍra, turmeric.

رَجَانْبِهَا يَّوَنِ jāmbhāō, made of جَانْبِهَا يَّوَنِ jāmbhō, a kind of oil-seed.

lōhaō, made of لوهائون lōhaō, iron.

14) Themes in ō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix अ; it forms adjectives and attributives in the largest sense. The final short vowel of a noun is always dropped before this affix, and  $\bar{\mathbf{u}}$  and  $\bar{\mathbf{i}}$  are shortened. The root-vowel either remains unaltered or is lengthened, viz: 'a' to  $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$ ,  $\bar{\mathbf{i}}$  to  $\bar{\mathbf{e}}$  and 'u' to  $\bar{\mathbf{o}}$ ; as:

saghō, strong, from سَكَهُوَ sagha, strength. ونگو vingō, crooked, from ونگو vingu, a crook.

bhakuō, stupid, from بَهَكُوْ bhakū, a blockhead. بِهَكُوُ vēčō, mediator, from ويچؤ viču, midst. أَبُروُچُوْ bārōčō, of a Beluch, from بَروُچُوْ barōču, a Beluch.

أَوْتُهُوْ أَوْتُهُوْ أَلَهُ othō, of a camel, from اوْتُهُوْ gāō, of a cow, from گُنۇن gãū, cow. Iregular formations are:

māhyō, of a buffalo, from مينه mēhe, a buffalo. مينه saiō, hundredth (per cent), from سَيْتُون sau, hundred.

15) Themes in āru (aru), ārō; ālu.

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix NO (in Prākrit likewise NO cf. Var. IV, 26), which forms possessive nouns. In Sindhī r and l are interchanged, and in some nouns āru has been shortened to aru. The root-vowel commonly remains unaltered, but in some nouns 'u' is changed to ō (i. e. 'u' takes Guṇa); as:

ميهَارُ mēhāru, or a buffalo keeper, from ميهَارُ mēharu, buffalo.

čōṭyaru, having a چۇتىي čōṭī, bundle of hair on the crown of the head.

رهَنَا dhaṇāru, a herdsman, from هَنَا dhaṇu, a herd of cattle.

أَتُهُارُ ōṭhāru, a camel-herd, from اُوتهَارُ uṭhu, camel. javālu, containing barley, from جَوَالُ Some of these formations, with the affix ālu or ālō, are used in a substantive sense, their original possessive signification being more or less lost, as:

a Gong; literally: containing or گهَڙيَالُو gharyālū, a gharyālō, expressing the hour (گهَڙِيَالُوُ وْدَوْ). diālu, candlestick; literally: having a light (وُدَوْ).

jhurālō, cloudiness; literally: containing clouds (اُجْهُ الْوُ 16) Themes in īrō and īlō, or: ērō and ēlō.

khāndhīrō, patient, from کهَانْدهِ khāndhe, patience.

haṭhīlō, obstinate, from هَتْهِ haṭhu, obstinacy.

shadowy, from چَهَانْوِيروْ čhāvērō, shadowy, from چَهَانْوِيلوْ čhāvēlō, shadowy, from چَهَانْوِيلوْ čhāva, shade. Thar or desert.

čamēlō, leathern, from چُہنائو čamu, leather.

17) Themes in iru.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix \(\) (with the union-vowel i) and forms attributives and appellatives as well as possessive nouns; a final vowel, short or long, is always dropped before the addition of this affix; e. g.:

sandhiru, a house-breaker, from سَنْدهِ sandhe, a hole in a wall.

jhātīru, a peeper, from جهَاتِي jhātī, looking through a hole.

رُجِينْبِهِ čhīmbhiru, a rebuker, from چِهِينْبِهِ čhīmbha, rebuke.

يُوْج jhapiru, one who snatches, from بَهَيْرُ jhapō, a snatch.

pēṭiru, a glutton, from پیت pētu, belly. vihiru, poisonous, from وهُرُ t. poison.

18) Themes in atu and ālū.

This affix has sprung from the Sanskrit affix H\(\tau\) by elision of H; in some nouns 'a' has been lengthened, to compensate for the elision of m; it forms possessive nouns, just as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

بَهُرِي bharyatu, a porter, from بهَرِي bharī, a man's load.

پورهِيوْ pōrhiatu, a labourer, from پورهِيوْ pōrhiō, labour. وُرِهِيوْ d̄iaṇyātu, a debtor, from ثِنَّنِياتُ d̄iaṇī, a debt.

19) Themes in ētō (itō).

The Sindhī affix ētō corresponds to the Sansk. affix ₹त, denoting "to be provided with", to possess as one's own. The short i of the Sansk. affix has in Sindhī been produced to ē, on account of the accent; the final vowel is always dropped before this affix; e. g.:

پُتْرِيتوْ puṭrētō, having a son, from پُتْرِ paṭru, son. مُعِمَّيتوْ dhiētō, having a daughter, from دهِمَّيتوْ daughter. څوځيتڅ jōētō, having a wife, from جوځيتڅ jōe, wife.

بهَادِّتو bhāitō, having a brother, from بهَادِّتو bhāu, brother.

20) Themes in āitō.

This affix is identical with the preceding in derivation and signification, the only difference being that final  $\bar{o}$ , 'u' and 'a' are changed before it to  $\bar{a}$ , as:

رَارَةِ vārāitō, adj., at the right time, from وَارَادِّتُهُ vārō, time.

sajhāitō, adj., opportune, from جَهُائِتوْ sajhu, opportunity.

vāṭāitō, having a road, from وَاتَادِّتُوْ vāṭa, a road.

21) Themes in ru and lu.

a) The affix ru corresponds to the Sansk diminutive affix  $\mathbf{I}$ , and is affixed to adjectives and participles present, with some slight variation of the original meaning; when added to adjectives the root-vowel is now and then lengthened. Final 'u' and  $\bar{\mathbf{o}}$  are changed to 'a' before the addition of this affix;  $\bar{\mathbf{i}}$  remains unaltered.

لَهُمْ khabāṇu, left-handed, from كَهُمْ khabō, left. اللهُ sājaṇu, right-handed, from عَاجَوْ sājō, right. للهُمْ khasaṇu, sterile, from كَهُسُوْ khasu, not fully developed.

كَاچِهِيڙُو kāčhirō, of the province of Kačh, from كَاچِهِيڙُو, a Kāčhī.

jْمُنْدُوْ likhandaru, a writer, from كِهَنْدُوْ part. pres. writing.

b) The affix lu is identical with the affix ru (r [r] = l) and turns preterite participles into simple adjectives; it is seldom found with adjectives, the signification of which it does not change materially.

vialu, lost, from وِئْرُ viō, gone, lost. وِئْرُ vialu, lost, from وِئْرُ diṭhalu, seen, from وُتِهُوْ visūralu, simple-minded, from وِسُورَّلُ visūrō, simple-minded.

Similarly in Prākrit the affix r or l (dimin.) is added to nouns and adjectives, without essentially altering their signification (cf. Varar. IV, 26), as Sansk. again lightening, Prāk. as a comparation (as a comparation of the comparation) and the comparation of the comparation sadhiryō, half-wishing; literally: being somewhat disposed to wish.

The same affix ला we notice in the Marāṭhī, where it is added to preterite participles to turn them into real adjectives, as: चाललेला gone (from चालला); मोडिला broken (from मोडिला); the same holds good in Gujarātī, as: लखेलो, written (Adj.) (from लखो).

22) Themes in iryō.

The affix iryō is originally compounded of the diminutive affix  $\mathbf{\xi}$  (= r) and the adjectival affix yō ( $\mathbf{z}$ ); it forms adjectives and attributives denoting inclination or hesitation; e. g.:

يَهُوْرِڙيوُ ghōriryō, a pedlar; i. e. one who is inclined to seek out.

pēriṛyō, a walker; literally: disposed to travel afoot.

پَرَمَتَّ paramatiryō, easily persuaded; literally: disposed to take another's counsel.

23) Themes in āku and ākū.

These Unādi-affixes, which else only occur with primary themes, are in Sindhī also used (but very rarely) in secondary formations, as:

إِنَّ عَلَيْ jhērāku, quarrelsome, from إَجْهِيرُو jhērāku, contention.

24) Themes in ikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix 4 (in Sindhī with the addition of the union-vowel i) and forms adjectives, denoting relation, quality etc. A final vowel, short or long, is dropped before this affix; final ū alone is shortened to 'u' and takes the union-vowel 'a' instead of 'i'; e. g.:

vāpārikō, mercantile, from وَاپَارُ vāpāru, trade. وَاپَارِكُوْ vāṇikō, relating to a وَانِكُوْ vāṇyō or shopkeeper. وَانْيوْ hārikō, relating to a هَارِيهُ hārī or peasant.

miruakō, brutal, from مِرْوَى mirū, a wild beast.

25) Themes in īčō or ēčō.

These affixes have sprung from the Sansk. affix ξħ, and form adjectives denoting descent or origin. In Sindhī 'i' has been lengthened to ī or even to ē, and the guttural k has been exchanged for the palatal č. The final vowel, short or long, is always cast off before these affixes; e. g.:

رَوْتَهِ وَوَلِهُ ḡoṭhēčō, of the same village, from رَوْتُهِ وَوَلِهُ بِهِ لِهِ إِلَى اللهِ وَاللهِ وَاللهِ عَلَى اللهِ وَاللهِ عَلَى اللهِ وَاللهِ وَاللّهِ وَلّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهُ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ pārēčō, of the same quarter, from پَاڙِيچو pārō, quarter.

pārēčō, of the opposite side, from پَارِ adv., opposite.

vērhīčō, of the jungle, from ويرهيع vērhīčō, of the jungle, from ويرهيع

26) Themes in ōkō.

This affix, which is added only to nouns or adverbs, denoting time, is identical with the affix  $\overline{\mathbf{q}}$ ; the union-vowel  $\bar{\mathbf{o}}$  is peculiar and not to be met with elsewhere; every final vowel, short or long, is dropped before it; e. g.:

رِعْوُكُوْ varehōkō, yearly, from وَرِعْوُكُوْ varehu, year. رَاتَّوْكُوْ rātōkō, nightly, from رَاتَوْكُوْ rāte, night. مَانِيَ hānōkō, recent, from هَانْوَكُوْ hānē, now. adj. كَالْهُوْكُوْ kālhōkō, of yester (day or night), from كَالْهُوْكُوْ kālha, yesterday, adv.

parōkō, of last year, from پَروْکوْ (fem.) last year.

A few other adjectives are formed by the same affix, with the further difference, that the root-vowel is lengthened, as:

خَانَّہُر وَكُوْ čāndrōkō, moonlight, from چَانَّہُر وَكُوْ moon.

27) Themes in āṇō (āṇu, iṇō), ānikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix \(\), and forms adjectives denoting relation or descent. It is remarkable, that the original union-vowel 'i' has been dislodged in Sindhī and ā substituted in its place (compare with this such Latin forms, as: romānus, africānus). The adjectives, formed by the affix ānō may moreover add the affix kō (with the union vowel 'i'), so that we thus have adjectives with a double affix, which do not materially differ from the simple forms in ānō; e. g.:

وَرَانَوْ دَرَّانَةِ دَرَّانَةِ دَرَّانَةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَّانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ دَرَانِكِةِ السَّةِ السَائِقِ السَّةِ السَّةِ السَّةِ السَائِقِ السَّةِ السَّةِ السَائِقِ السَّ

بَهَايَانْوُ bhāyāṇō, of a partner, from بِهَادِّي bhāj, partner.

In a few nouns a short root-vowel is lengthened, as:

خَانَةُ رَانُوْ خَanḍrāṇō, مَانَةُ رَانُوْ خَanḍrāṇu, خَنْقُرُ أَنُوْ خَanḍrāṇu, moonlight, from چَانَةُ رَانُوْ moonlight, from چَانَةُ رَانُوْ moon.

28) Themes in ūņō (ūņikō).

a) This affix is identical with the preceding, but the union-vowel has been exchanged for  $\bar{u}$ ; in signification there is no difference; e. g.:

sēṭhūṇō, of a Sēṭh, from سِيتَهُ ونَوْ sēṭhe, a whole-sale merchant.

vātu, mouth. وَاتُونْوَ agūṇō, preceding, from أَكُ agu, front.

كَالُهُ لَهُ لَا kālhūṇō, of yester (— day or night), from كَالُهُ لَهُ لَهُ اللهُ اللهُ

To the affix ūnō the affix kō (ikō) may be superadded, without altering the signification in any way, as:

agūņikō, the same as: ٱكُونِكُو agūņikō.

b) There is another affix ūṇō, which is joined to numerals, identical in form with the preceding, but of different origin. It is derived from the Sansk. noun (quality), with elision of g in Sindhī and prolongation of ū. In Panjābī both forms, guṇā and uṇā, are in use, so that there cannot remain any doubt about its derivation. 1) It forms adjectives from numerals, signifying: having such a quality, or: manifold, as:

هيكُونْو hēkūṇō, single (having a single quality), from هيكُونُو hēku, one.

panjūṇō, quintuple, from پَنْجُوٺُو panjūṇō, five. پَنْجُوٺُو saūṇō, hundredfold, from سَوُّنُو saū, hundred.

29) Themes in āṇī.

This affix, corresponding to the Sansk. affix xizfa, forms patronymics or nouns denoting descent; the short final 'i' of the Sansk. affix has been lengthened in Sindhī, as in other similar nouns. A final short vowel is dropped before this affix, likewise ō; final ī is changed to y (= i) and ū is shortened; e. g.:

تَحْبُودَ mahmūdāṇī, son or descendant of تَحْبُودَانِي mahmūdu.

آريانِي āryāṇī, son of آريانِي ārī. آثُو āḍuāṇī, son of آثُانِي āḍū. bāgāṇī, son of بَاگونِي bāgō.

30) Themes in īņō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix § and forms adjectives denoting relation or descent; as:

saniṇō, affianced, from سَنگُ sanu, connexion by marriage.

vasīṇō, subjected, from وَسِينْوَ, power.

31) Themes in āthō.

This affix coincides with the Sansk. affix সা? (with transition of t into th); it forms possessive nouns, as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

پَانْيَاتْهوْ pāṇyāṭhō, damp (containing water), from پَانْيَاتْهوْ pāṇī, water.

رُجُبُرُ čhabarāṭhō, containing جُهَبُرُ čhabaru, a kind of grass.

32) Themes in āsō (āsū).

This affix, corresponding to the Sansk. affix N, forms adjectives, denoting "to be full of", to be provided with"; as union-vowel ā has been inserted; as:

vāryāsō, sandy, from وَارِي vārī, sand. وَارِيَاسوْ mavāsu, full of pride, from مَوَاسُ mau, pride.

33) Themes in hāru or hārō.

This affix is in Sindhī and in the cognate dialects added to verbal nouns (i. e. the Infinitive); it forms a kind of participle, which is commonly used as a substantive noun. In Marāthī it forms the participle future, as it implies at the same time the notion of some future act or state; in Sindhī too it is now and then used in a future sense. It is to be noted though, that the Marāthī affix is not WII, as commonly shown in Marāthī grammars, but आर; a like mistake is generally to be met with in Gujarātī grammars, where it is stated to be नार. In Marāthī and Gujarātī the form of the affix is clearly enough आ, corresponding to the Sansk. adjective नार, making, doing, with elision of न. In Sindhī, Hindī and Panjābī it is hār, which form is to be explained in this way, that initial a has been originally aspirated by the following (which is very frequently the case in Sindhi, and then elided, leaving h (see Introd. §. 8). In Sindhī the form hāru, hārō, is only added to the Infinitive, in other themes the original form kāru has been retained unaltered; e. g.:

to create. سِرْجَنُ sirjaṇahāru, the creator, Inf. سِرْجَنَهَارُ to khaṇahāru, a writer, or one, who is about to write; Inf. الكهَنُ to write.

34) Themes in kāru, karu.

The original adjective form kāru (in Sindhī also shortened karu) is also (but rarely) in use; it forms adjectives and attributives from substantives; as unionvowel ā is inserted:

أكارُ jhēṛākāru, quarrelsome, causing quarrel, from يَجهيزًاكُرُ jhēṛō, quarrel.

35) Themes in vānu.

The Sindhī has preserved in this affix the Nom. Sing. of the Sansk. affix  $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$  (=  $v\bar{a}$ n), and discarded the Prākrit form  $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ ; the same is the case in the cognate dialects, with the exception of the Gujarātī, which uses the termination  $\overline{\mathbf{a}}$ . It forms adjectives, implying possession; e. g.:

دَيَاوَانُ dayāvānu, compassionate, from دَيَاوَانُ dayā, compassion.

vijāvānu, learned, from وَجَاوَانُ vijā, learning. وَجَاوَانُ sīlavānu, virtuous, from سِيلُوانُ sīlu, virtue.

36) Themes in vārō.

This is one of the most useful affixes of the modern vernaculars; it may be joined to any verbal noun or substantive, and denotes an owner or actor; this affix is most extensively used in Hindūstānī (vālā), where it is used as a substitute for different formations. It corresponds to the Sansk. affix  $\overline{\mathbf{e}}$ , from which it has been derived by lengthening the root-vowel. It is to be observed, that  $\mathbf{e}$ ,  $\mathbf{e}$  must be joined to the formative or oblique case of a noun.

- gharavārō, owner of a house, from وَهُوَ gharu, house.
- gharanevārō, owner of houses.
- وَتُنَوَارو diaṇavārō, a giver, Inf. ثِكَنُ diaṇu, to give.
- vičavārō, mediator, from وچَوَاروْ vičavārō, mediator, from
- bēriavārō, boatman, from بيزِّي bērī, boat.

37) Themes in yō.

The affix yō, corresponding to the Sansk. affix 4, forms adjectives from substantives, as:

بَهَاكُ bhāgyō, fortunate, from بَهَاكُ bhāgu, fortune; luck.

vikevikhyō, a grumbling person, from وَكِوكِيوْ vikevike, grumbling.

jōyo, effeminate, from جؤيؤ ) jōe, wife.

Chapter IV.

Formation of Diminutives.

§. 11.

The Sindhī evinces a great facility in forming different kinds of Diminutives; it surpasses in this respect all the kindred dialects, being able to derive diminutives from any substantive, adjective or even participle.

The one method, to express the idea of a diminutive, is, to substitute the feminine termination for the masculine, the feminine expressing generally: smallness, littleness, nicety, as: لَاللّٰهُ kātu, m. a large knife, كَاتِي kātī, fem. a small knife (cf. §. 5, VI, 2, c).

An old diminutive formation has been preserved in a few straggling words, ending in ōṭru (ōṭrō) or ōṭu (ōṭō); the same formation is still current in the Paṣṭō (ōṭai, ūṭai), where diminutives are regularly derived by means of this affix. The origin of this diminutive affix is rather uncertain; e. g. Sindhī:

بَاهِ bāhōṭī, a small fire, from بَاهِ bāhe, fire; bāhe, fire; jāmōṭru, the headman of a village (literally: a little جَامُ jāmu or Jām, prince); چُامُ dِّiāṭī, a small light, from ثِحَةُ dِّiō, an oil-light.

Besides these formations the Sindhī uses for the purpose of forming diminutives proper two affixes, which are originally identical; viz.: ēro (= rō, the union-vowel 'i' having been produced to ē, on account of the accent), which is added to adjectives only, and rō, which is promiscuously joined to adjectives and substantives. Both these affixes correspond to the Sanskrit diminutive affix \(\mathbf{\cappa}\) r, from which the Sindhī, after its own peculiar method, has menaged to form two separate diminutive affixes. The other diminutive affix of the Sanskrit, \(\mathbf{\cappa}\) k, is not in use in Sindhī, but is so in Hindī, Marāthī and Panjābī.

1) The affix ērō.

This deminutive affix is, as noted already, added to adjectives only and implies: somewhat more or less (as the case may be), rather, very; e. g.:

تْرِگهيرۋ drighērō, somewhat long, adj. قْرِگهير drighō, long.

تهۋريرۇ thōrērō, rather little, adj. تهۋريرۇ thōrō, little. ghaṭērō, rather deficient, adj. گهتيرۇ ghaṭe, deficient.

2) The termination ro, fem. rī.

This diminutive affix is joined to substantives and adjectives, even to such, as have already received the affix ērō; it denotes smallness, littleness, deficiency, tenderness or contempt. In order to point out more effectually the idea of the diminutive, the feminine termination rī may be chosen, instead of the masculine. The Sindhī poëts use the diminutives with great taste and delicacy, and know to give different shades to their pictures by their proper application. The final vowels undergo the following changes before the addition of the affix ro (rī):

- 1) Final u (m.) is changed to 'a' or 'i', with the exception of fem. nouns ending in 'u', wich remain unaltered.
- 2) In the same way final ō is changed to 'a' or 'i'.
- 3) Final 'a' remains unaltered.
- 4) Final 'i' remains unaltered or passes (for euphony's sake) into 'a'.
- 5) Final ī and ū are shortened with a subsounding 'a' (as union-vowel).

Final 'u'.

pandharō, a short journey, from پَنْدُهُ pandhu, journey.

haṭiṛī, a small shop, from هَتْ haṭu, shop.

jindurō, short life, from جِنْكُ jindu, life, fem. بِنْكُ vijurī, a small flash of lightening, from viju, fem., lightening.

Final ō.

هِنتُو hĩaṛō heart (endearing), from هِنتُو hĩō, heart. bhōliṛō, a small monkey, from بهوَلِة bhōlō, monkey.

very little, from تهوْروْ thōriṛō, very little, from تهوْروْرَ thōrēriṛō, extremely little.

Final 'a'.

دهِيِّ dhiaṛī, a little daughter, from دهِیً dhia, daughter.

Final 'i'.

akhiṛī, a small eye, from اَكِهِرَ akhe, eye. أَكِهِرَ akhe, eye. وَعَالِهِمَ galhaṛī, a short word, from كَالهَرِّي

Final ī and ū.

منْدهِي mandhiaṛō, a small churning staff, from مَنْدهِيَّ mandhī, a churning staff.

لَهُ bhaṭuaṛī, a small scorpion, from بَهُتُّو bhaṭū, a scorpion.

Chapter V.

Compound nouns.

§. 12.

- I. Nouns compounded with a preceding particle.
- 1) Nouns compounded with the negative particles a, ana, na, nir, ni, ma.

All these negative particles are of Sanskrit origin and used in the same way and in the same sense, as in the Sanskrit. The negative particle 'a' is only used with adjectives, and chiefly with participles and Gerundives, rarely with adjectives; nā with adjectives, and the shortened form na with Gerundives and participial adjectives; nir and ni (with assimilated r), only with adjectives (and abstracts, derived from adjectives). We have not mentioned expressly the negative particle dur (33), which belongs to the same class, as it occurs in such formations only, as are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit and have already passed through the process of assimilation, usual in Sindhī, as: ਤੇਂਡੇਂ ਰੈukālu, famine, Sansk. दुष्काल (see Introd. §. 16, B). For the sake of a general survey we have summed up here all the negative prefixes, though the nouns compounded with them belong to the subsequent classes of compounds, as far as their composition is concerned.

Prefix a: اَچِيتُ ačētu, thoughtless; thence.

أچيتائِي acētāī, thoughtlessness.

Prefix aṇa: اَنَتهِمَّنْو aṇathiaṇō, impossible. aṇapučhō, unasked. aṇavēsāhō, unbelieving. أَنَويسَاهِي aṇavēsāhī, s. f., unbelief.

Prefix nā: نَاكَارِوْ nākārō, useless. nāčanō, unwell. نَاچَنْگُوْ nāčanāī, illness.

Prefix nă: نَتهِمَّنْوُ nathiaṇō, impossible.

nathiaṇī, impossibility.

nakhaṭū, profitless.

Prefix ma: ﴿ عَجَهُ أَدْ mačhaḍū, not giving up. makhaṭū, profitless.

Prefix nir and ni: نِرُدَدِي nir-daī, unfeeling, Sansk. निदेय.

البنان nir-āsu, hopeless, Sansk. निराश نِرَاسُ ni-dhaṇikō, masterless (دَهَلِي).

البنان ni-puṭrō, sonless (پُقرُ).

2) Nouns compounded with the privative particles  $r\,\bar{e}\,,$  without, and  $b\,\bar{e}\,,$  without.

The privative particle re, which is also used as a preposition, and as such always requires the Formative (oblique case), is derived from the Sanskrit preposition  $\overline{x}$  (Prākrit  $\overline{t}$   $\overline{t}$  =  $\overline{t}$   $\overline{t}$ , and contracted  $\overline{t}$  rē) without, excepted; bē is borrowed from the Persian and corresponds originally to the Sansk. prefix  $\overline{t}$ . These prefixes are in Arabic writing generally written separately and not joined to the noun, as:

rē-kamō, useless. ري پَانيو rē-pāṇyō, waterless. rē-čayō, untractable.

bē-saghō, powerless. bē-dīnō, irreligious. bē-lajō, shameless.

3) Nouns compounded with the particles of qualification su, well, ku, badly, and ava (au), away, from.

su: سُكَالُ sukālu, good time = cheapness. پيٽ sučētu, attentive. نيرين suprī, good friend = sweetheart.

ku: کُپَتِ kupate, dishonesty.

kupatyō, dishonest.

kuniyāu, bad justice = oppression.

kudhangō, ill-bred.

ava (au): آوَگُنُ avaguṇu اَوَگُنُ vice.

auguṇu,

a bad landing place.

a bad landing place.

4) Nouns compounded with the possessive particle sa (shortened from the Sansk \(\mathbf{F}\mathbf{E}\)), implying "with", "provided with".

غيهَا saphalō, fruitful.

sabōjhō, intelligent. سَبِوْجِهِوْ sapuṭrō, having a son.

II. Nouns compounded with a substantive, adjective or numeral.

The Sindhī generally follows in the formation of its compound nouns the rules of the Sanskrit, though the compounds cannot be formed in Sindhī in the same unlimited number, as in Sanskrit, the want of case-inflexions offering an essential obstacle. No compound can be formed from more than two nouns, a noun compounded of three words is a linguistic impossibility in Sindhī, as in such a compound all idea of coordination or subordination would be completely lost. We shall consider the compounds current in Sindhī under the received Sanskrit appellations.

1) So-called Tatpuruṣ̃a compounds, or conjunction of two nouns, of which the former stands in a caserelation with the latter.

These compounds are rarely used in common conversation, but more extensively in poëtical compositions. The former of the two nouns, which is dependent on the latter, must consequently be placed in the Formative, to express thereby its grammatical dependency. In reference to the method of writing these compounds there is no fixed rule; some of them, in which the idea of unity prevails so much, that they are considered as one word, are joined in writing accordingly; others again, in which the conjunction is more loose, are written separately; e. g.:

اَتَرَ وَاءُ utara-vāu, north-wind. ghara-dhaṇī, master of the house.

mathē-khāū, torturer, literally: eating one's head.

ثيسَ نِكَالوْ dēsa nikālō, banishment.

كَرَن تَّرُقروْ karane-ṭruṭrō; a lazy fellow; literally: broken of hands.

pāṇa bharū, selfish; literally: filling oneself.

A peculiar kind of compound is formed by an adjective joined to a substantive, which by the addition of the affix vārō (see §. 10, 3, b) is turned again into a possessive noun; the adjective must in this case agree with its substantive in gender, number and case. Such compounds are, as far as their signification is concerned, Bahuvrīhis, but according to their composition Tatpuruṣʾas; for the latter reason we have inserted them in this place; as:

- أَ بِنِّي تَٰدِسَوَاروْ biē d̄ēsavārō, a foreigner (a man of another country).
- نگوی سُرْتُواروْ tikhia-surtevārō, a man of sharp under-standing.
- چَنگِي پَهَوَارِوْ čanē pahavārō, a man of good counsel.

  More poëtical are compounds like:
- vaḍia dile dātā, a munificent giver (a giver of a great heart).
  - 2) So-called Dvandvas, or aggregation of nouns.

In the sense of the Sanskrit Grammar there are no Dvandvas in Sindhī. Two nouns are frequently joined in Sindhī, expressing one common idea, but grammatically they are treated as two separate words. In Sindhī, as well as in the other cognate dialects, two nouns are frequently joined together, of which the latter is without a proper meaning, and only added to render the sound more full; these compounds are called alliterations.

vaṭhu puju, f., hurry; literally: taking (وَقَهُمُ يُبُ

خَنگو بِهَلوْ čanō bhalō, very good; very well.

مَتْ سَتْ maṭa saṭa, exchange (مَتْ and مَتْ سَتْ, both signifying exchange).

ghate vadhe, less or more. گهت وَدهِ

يُهُوُّ پَهُوُّ jhuru phuru, rainy weather (يُهُوُّ پَهُوُّ اللهُوْ cloudiness; يُهُوُّ drop).

أَمْ مُنَهَنَّ aju subahā, in a day or two; literally: to-day, to-morrow.

baka šaka, prattle; بَكُ شَكَ talking, chatting, being a meaningless alliteration.

But more frequently than by aggregation the Sindhī joins two nouns by inserting the Persian copula  $\bar{o}$  (frequently nasalized  $= \tilde{o}$ ); the final vowel of the preceding noun is dropped before it and both words are joined into one and written accordingly; in some instances though the final vowel of the preceding noun keeps its place before  $\bar{o}$ . These compounds are Dvandvas in a grammatical sense, only the latter noun being subject to the laws of inflexion.

rātōḍthu, night and day.

مَنْدهُ handhōhandhu, every place.

rate-ō-rāte, every night; night by night.

paropare, kind by kind = every kind.

The conjunction may also be effected by the Persian copulative particle  $\bar{a}$ , in the same way as by  $\bar{o}$ ; this  $\bar{a}$  too is very frequently nasalized in Sindh $\bar{i}=\tilde{a}$ ; the final vowel of the preceding word always disappears before  $\bar{a}$  or  $\tilde{a}$ ; as:

شكهَامْكهِي mukhāmukhī, meeting; literally: tête-à-tête. مُكهَامِيلُوْ mukhāmēlō, assembly; literally: face and meeting.

ويرَانْويرَ vērãvēra, adv., always; literally: time and time.

3) So-called Karmadhārayas, or descriptive compounds.

The Sindhī is now too simple, to admit of new compounds of this kind; the common rule is, as in the other dialects, that the adjective precedes its substantive and agrees with the same in gender, number and case. Some remnants however of original Karmadhāraya compounds have been preserved in Sindhī, and what is still more remarkable, the Sindhī has formed some similar compounds out of its own resources, in which the adjective is joined to the substantive in its original (else not occurring) crude state. It is to be noted, that all compounds of this description are written in one word; e. g.:

هَاجَنَ mahājaṇu, a great merchant, Sansk. महाजन. خَهَارَاجُ mahārāju, a great prince. a great prince. مَهَارَاجُ maharāju, benevolence. كَهَادُو paralōku, the other world.

4) So-called Dvigus, or collective compounds.

This class of compounds, which is formed by a preceding numeral, is in frequent use in Sindhī; e. g.:

بِپَهَرِي bipaharī, midday; compounded of بِپَهَرِي bǐ, two and بِپَهَرِي, a watch of three hours.

bihare, a pair of water wheels.

خُومَاسوْ čaumāsō, a space of four months = the rainy season.

دُوْرَاقَوْ čauvāṭō, a place, where four roads meet; literally: having four roads.

panjasnānī, washing of the five parts of the body (= head, two hands, two feet).

بَارَهُنْمَاسِي bārahāmāsī, a year = a twelvemonth.

5) The so-called Bahuvrīhis, or relative compounds.

This class of compounds, denoting posssession or relation, which again comprises all the four preceding classes, by changing them into adjectives, is still very numerous in Sindhī; for either original Bahuvrīhi compounds are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit, or new compounds are formed according to the same principles, which are laid down in Sanskrit. The final noun receives generally the adjectival affix ō (see §. 10; 14); in such compounds, as are taken directly from the Persian, the final noun may remain unchanged, its relative signification having been fixed already in Persian.

a) Bahuvrīhi formations from Tatpuruša compounds.

rata-varanō, having the colour of blood. رَتُوَرَدُوْ مُنْهُ matha-muhō, haughty; from مَتْهُ top, and مُنْهُ (= مُنْهُ mouth.

pēṭarthī, glutton; from پیتارتهي pēṭu, belly, and مرتبي pēṭu, belly, and أرتهي arthī, having an object; having the belly for one's object.

b) Bahuvrīhi formations from Karmadhāraya compounds.

vaḍavātō, loquacious; literally: having a big mouth.

ghaṇa-bijō, having much seed.

تهۋرَويرَمۇ thōra-vēramō, having little delay = quick.

يَمَانُهُول sāfu-dile, having a pure heart; Pers.

ينالُ ين ينالُ xuš-xiālu, joyful; Pers.

c) Bahuvrīhi formations from Dvigu compounds. ژو čaudarō, having four doors. تهنو bimaṇō, containing two maunds.

بَارَهَنْهَاهُوْ تَعَامُوْ تَاهُوْ تَعْمُونُ تَاهُوْ تَاهُوْ تَاهُوْ تَاهُوْ تَاهُوْ تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَاهُونُ لِمُعْتَاهُونُ وَمُعْتَاهُونُ لِمُعْتَاهُونُ لِمُعْتَاهُونُ لِمُعْتَاهُونُ لَعْمُ تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَالِهُ لَا تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَالِمُونُ لِمُعْتَمُونُ لِمُعْتَامِ تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَالِهُ وَلَا تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَالِهُ وَلَا تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَالِهُ وَلَا تَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَعِيْنُ لِمُعْتَلِكُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُونُ لَعْمُنُا مُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمُ لَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمُ لَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمْ لَعْمُونُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمُ لَعْمُ لِلْمُعِلِي لِمُعْلِمُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمُ لِمُعْتَلِكُمْ لِلْمُعْلِمُ لَعْلِي لِمُعْلِمُ لِلْمُعْلِمُ لِمُعْلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِي لِمُعْلِمُ لِلْمُعْلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِمُعْلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِلْمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمُلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمِمِلِمُ لِمِلْمُ لِمِلْمُ لِمِلْمُ لِمِلْمُ لِمُعِلِمُ لِمِلْمُ لِ

d) Bahūvrihi formations from such compounds, as are preceded by an adverb or prefix.

sapuṭrō, having a son. سُپُتْرِوْ sučētu, attentive.

كَبَتيوْ kumatyō, dishonest.

Chapter VI. Gender of nouns.

§. 13.

It has been stated already, that the Sindhī has lost the Neuter, most of the original neuter nouns having assumed a masculine, a less number the feminine termination. The gender of a Sindhī noun is easily recognizable, as every noun must end in a vowel; some terminations admit of no exceptions, others are common to both masculine and feminine nouns.

The termination ō is masculine without any exception; the termination ă is feminine without any exception; all the other terminations contain more or less exceptions.

1) The termination 'u'.

The termination 'u' is, according to its origin, generally masculine; but as original Sanskrit-Prākrit themes, ending in 'u' and being of the feminine gender, have been mixed up with it, a number of nouns have retained the feminine gender. In some of them an original feminine termination has been dropped and 'u' substituted in its place, whereas the gender of the noun has been preserved; in others again no reason, can be detected, why they have been treated as feminines in Sindhī, the masculine gender having been retained in the cognate dialects; some few of them are of unknown origin, on which we cannot venture any conjecture.

As a general rule we may state, that, abstracted from the termination, all nouns are feminine, which imply a female being, as: مَاهُ māu, mother; شعن dhiu, daughter; مَنْهُ nũhu, daughter-in-law; مَنْهُ sasu, mother-in-law; مَنْهُ bhēṇu, sister; مَنْقُ gãũ, cow; with some of them the feminine termination 'a' is also in use, as: عَنْقُ nũha, فَنْهُ bhēṇa.

The following is a list of nouns ending in 'u', which are feminine:

َوْ aju, f., to-day; Sansk. अद्य, adv., Hindī आज्, adv. أَوْ ansu, f., offspring; Sansk. अंग, m.; Hindī अंम्, m. أَنْكُ angu, or: اَنْكُ anghu, f., a rent, tear; origin unknown.

āu, f., slimy excrement, origin unknown.

َبُبْرُ baburu, f., the acacia tree; Sansk. वर्दुर, m. Hindī बबूर, f.

barkhu, f., shortened from بَرُكَهَ barkhata, blessing (Arab. بَرُكُت ; in Sindhī k has been aspirated by the influence of r) pronounced as a good omen in beginning to count = one.

bindu, f., semen virile; Sansk. विन्दु, m., Hindī विंद्, m.

bhasu, f., ashes; Sansk. भसन्, n.; Hindī भस्, m. نَوْرُ paru, f., last year; Sansk. परुत्, adv.

پُونَوِّ pūna-u, f., the day of the full moon; also پُونَوِّ pūna-e; Sansk. पर्वेन, n.

tāku, f., a leathern vessel; origin unknown.

تَنْكُ tandu, f., thread, wire; Sansk. तन्तु, m.; Hindī तांत्, f.

ثهُرٌ tharu, f., cream; origin unknown.

रंड thanu, f., woman's milk; Sansk. स्तन, m.; Hindī थन्, m.

יביל traku, f., the spindle of a spinning wheel; Sansk. הקה; in Sindhī r has been pushed forward, to keep its place the more easily in conjunction with the cerebral; see Introd. §. 15, B, a.

أَجْ jaru, f., leech, afterbirth. Two words have been apparently melted into one. أَجْ leech, corresponds to the Hindūstānī عَنْ zalū (properly Persian), which has sprung from the Sanskrit जालुका; the final syllable kā has, as elsewhere, been cast off, but the original gender retained. أَجْ afterbirth, has been shortened from the Sansk. রাষ্ট্রে, m., Hindūstānī jēr (Greek: γῆρας). In Hindūstānī the gender of seems to be doubtful, for Shakespear is silent about it; in Hindī it is considered masculine (Thompson, Hindī Dictionary).

jindu, f., life; borrowed from the Panjābī, where it is likewise fem.

ja-u, f., sealing-wax; origin unknown.

jaukhāru, f., a salt, used in medicine; compounded of جُوُكهَارُ barley, and كَهَارُ, which see.

jhilu, f., name of a plant (Indigofera pauciflora); origin unknown.

خْپُ čupu, f., or: چِپُ čipu, silence; taken from the Hindī, in which it is fem.

čilu, f., name of a vegetable; origin unknown.

ča-u, f., a jeweller's weight; origin unknown.

خَارُ čhāru, f., ashes; originally identical with جَهَارُ, Sansk. सार.

chilu, f., bark, peel; Sansk. हास or हा।; the original fem. termination i (ī) has been lost in this noun, but the gender retained; besides خِهِلُ the form خَهِلُ is also in use.

čīzu, f., thing; tāken from the Hindūstānī (Persian) where it is fem.

كَاكُ dhātu, f., root; metal. Sansk. धातु, m.; Hindī धात् or धात्, m., but used as fem. in the sense of semen virile.

تَوْقَ dِadhu, f., ringworm; Sansk. حَرِّج, m.; Hindī حَارِّج, m.

sara-u, fem., autumn, Sansk. शाद, fem., Hindī शाद, fem.

sugandhu, f. (occasionally also masc.), perfume, Sansk. सुगन्ध, m., Hindī सुजन्ध, m.

ينْدُهُ sindhu, f., the country of Sindh; the Indus; Sansk. सिन्धु, m.; Hindī सिन्ध् or सिन्धु, m.

kaṭu, f., rust (occasionally also m.); origin unknown. كَتْ kasu, f., verdigris; origin unknown.

لَّهُمْ khāru, f., potash; Sansk. आर, m., n.; Hindī खार, m.

sansk. ख्लं, n. (also masc.), oil-cake, Hindī ख्ली, f., كَهُنْدُرْ khanḍru, f., sugar, Sansk. खरड, m.; Hindī खरड्, m.

garu, f., the mange; Sansk. खर्जु, f.

हैं garu, f., the pulp of any fruit; Sansk. गर्भ, m.

हिं gamu, f., name of a wild grass; origin unknown. وَمَنْ وَهَ وَهَ وَعَلَى وَهَ وَعَلَى وَهَ وَالْمَا وَالْمَ وَالْمَا وَلِيْ وَالْمَا وَالْمَاكُونُ وَلَا مِنْ وَلِي وَالْمَا وَالْمَالِمِ وَلَا مِنْ وَالْمَالِمِ وَلَا مِنْ وَالْمَالِمِ وَالْمَالِمِ وَلَا مِنْ وَالْمِنْ وَالْمِنْ وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِي مِنْ مِنْ وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِي مِلْمِالِمِ وَلِمُ وَلِي وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِمِلْمِ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِي وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَالْمِلْمِ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمِلْمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُولِي وَلِمُ وَلِمُوالِمُوالِمُوالِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُوالِمُولِ وَلَا مُعِلِّمُ وَلِمُوالِمُوالِمُولِمُوالِمُ وَلِمُوالِمُولِمُ وَلِمُوالِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِي مُعِلِّمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُلْمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُولِمُ وَلِمُعِلَّا مِلْمُعِلَّ وَلِمُلْمُعُلِمُ وَلِمُلْمُ وَلِمُلْمُ وَلِمُلْمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَل

الِمْ limu, f. The nimb tree; the same as بِنْمُ, which see. لَنْوُن lãũ, f., devotion, love; Sansk. लय, m.; Hindī लय, f.

مَّرُ maru, f., cerumen; Sansk. मलं, n.; Hindī मेल्, f. مَسُ masu, f., ink; Sansk. मिस, f.; Hindī मिस or मसी. مَكُوْ mikhu, f., marrow; Sansk. मजा, Hindī मजा, f.

mailu, f., dirt; see مَرْ, with which it is identical.

nimu, f., the nimb tree; Sansk. निम्बून, m.; Hindī नीम्बू or लीमू, m.

nahatharu, f., whitlow, from غَنْ nahu, nail and عُرْةً, which see.

vathu, f., thing; Sansk. वस्तु, n.; Hindī वस्तु, f.

vathu, f., seizure; Sansk. वृति (election); the aspiration of the has been effected by r.

viju, f., lightening; Sansk. विद्युत्, f., Prāk. विज्जू, f.

vira-u, f., allowance, ration; Sansk. वर्तन, n., stipulated pay.

visu, وَسُ visu, rišu, f., world; Sansk. विषय, m.; Hindī विषय, m.

vasa-u, f., a cultivated place; Sansk. root: विधित, provided with rain (and therefore cultivated).

vikhu, d., poison; Sansk. विषं, n.; Hindī विस् vihu, or विख्, m.

vansu, f., lineage; Sansk. عُلِيّ, m.; Hindī عُظِ, m. رُنْسُ hanju, f., a wild goose; Sansk. हंस, m.; Hindī hindu, f., India; originally an Arabic-Persian word, derived from the province nearest to the Persians, i. e. सिन्धु (by change of s into h); Hindūstānī: عند, m.

المالية المال

hinu, f., assa foetida; Sansk. हिङ्गु, m.; Hindī हिंग् or हीग् or हिङ्गु, m.

Under this head we must class all the imitative sounds, which end in 'u', and which are considered fe-minines, because their final 'u' is not subject to inflexion; the same may be stated of some Dvandvas, which consist properly of two Imperatives, ending in 'u', and which are likewise treated as feminines, being exempt from the laws of inflexion.

غَنْ وَ عَنْ aču vańu, f., coming going (Imper.).

أَوْ الْحَالَةُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَالَةُ الْحَلَالِيَالِيَّةُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَلَةُ الْحَلَاقُ الْحَلِقُ الْحَلَاقُ ا

2) The termination ū.

The termination  $\bar{u}$  is generally masculine; there are however some exceptions, the gender of which is regulated either by original Sanskrit usage, or by the practice of the cognate dialects. The imitative sounds, ending in  $\bar{u}$  or  $\tilde{u}$ , are all treated, on account of their inflexibility, as feminine. Such exceptions are:

ābirūe), honour; Hindūstānī آبِرُو ābirūe), honour; آبِرُو ābirūe), f. (Pers.)

آنمُون قَّسَ, f., pride, egotism; identical with the I. personal pronoun of the Sing. J (Panjābī: haū, f.).

bhū, f., earth (also: بهُرِي bhue); Sansk. ٦, f.

تَرُن tarū, f., a fine cord of camel's hair (root: تَرُن to pass through).

جُرْن بَيْق, f., louse (also: جُرِي); Hindī जूं, f., Sansk. यूका, f.

خَجُون čamajū, f., a kind of louse, adhering to the skin (چَہُ).

رُون رُرِن تَّر rَّu r̄u, f., imitative sound; the hum of a spinning wheel.

kū-kū, f., imitative sound, by which a dog is called.

كَنْدُون gãū, f., cow; the same as كَنْدُون

الُون lũ, f., small hair on the limbs (also: لُنجَ lũa); Sansk. लोमन्, n.; Hindī लोम्, m.

vahū, f., daughter-in-law; Sansk. वधू, Hindī बहू.

3) The termination ā.

The termination ā comprises, according to its origin, as we have seen, mostly feminine nouns; there are however a few masculine nouns, ending in ā, the gender of which is, in most cases, already fixed by the signification of the noun itself, or by the language, from which the noun in question is taken; such exceptions are:

رَاجَا rājā, prince; Sansk. Nom. राजा, m.

র্থি lālā, master; lord; Hindī নানা.

kartā, the agent (in grammar); Sansk. Nom. कती.

ātma, soul; Sansk. Nom. श्रात्मा, m. māxūlia, melancholy, Arab.; Hindūstānī, masc.

ं devata, Deity; Hindī देवता, f.; Sanskrit देवता, f.

4) The termination ī.

The termination  $\bar{\imath}$  is, as stated already, divided between masculine and feminine nouns, yet so, that the feminine prevail considerably in number. All nouns denoting a male being (man or beast) are of course masculine, whereas nouns, denoting a female being, inanimate objects or abstract qualities are feminine; contrary to this general rule the following nouns are masculine:

āsirī, a large kind of tamarisk tree.

bāndhī, a log of wood floating in the river.

بُنْدِي bundī, the muzzle of a gun-barrel.

بهَچَتِي bhačaṭī, name of a plant (Desmochaeta lappacea).

pākī, razor (by the Hindūs used as fem.)

pāṇī, water.

pakhī, bird.

تُهُدِّى thuḍ̄ī, the lower stalk of a plant.

تِكِي ṭikī, a cake.

خَهُتُوي čhaṭhī, a religious ceremony, performed on the sixth day after childbirth.

دوْكِي dōgī, a thick stick.

دَّقَةِي dhaṛī, a coloured edge to a cloth.

surjamukhī, sunflower.

كُنْڌُ لِي kunḍalī, horoscope.

ي ghārī, a stripe left unfinished.

گهِتِّي ghiṭī, a lane, alley.

لَاثِي lāḍī, the ropes of a boat.

muštarī, the planet Jupiter.

mundhī, head.

mōtī, pearl.

vāngī, a stick with ropes hanging from it, to carry water pots, etc.

5) The termination i (ĕ).

The termination i' (ĕ) is, with that of ă, the regular feminine ending in Sindhī. There are however a few masculine nouns, ending in i', which are mostly borrowed from foreign languages. As in conformity with the Sindhī laws of sound no word can end in a silent consonant, the quick and hardly perceptible sound i' (ĕ) has been added to some words, which end originally in a silent consonant, to render them susceptible of inflexion; to some foreign nouns too, which end in ā, the short vowel i' has been added, for euphony's sake, which however may interchange with 'u' in some cases.

ahmade, Nom. prop.

عنداء يا پر yudāe, God (Pers.).

xizire, Nom. prop. of a fabulous prophet.

هارُ rā-e (or: ارُحاتِ), prince; Hindī الله sēṭhe, a Hindū wholesale merchant; Hindī.

qaisare, Cæsar.

In some few instances original final ĕ of the Sanskrit has been preserved, without having been lengthened, as is usually the case in Sindhī, as:

پتي pa-e, lord (also: پتي patī); Sansk. पति. viraspate, the planet Jupiter; Sansk. वृहस्पति. hare, Viṣṇu; Sansk. हिर; Hindī हिर or हरी.

In others again original ī has been (contrary to the usual rule) shortened to ĭ, as:

كيسَرِ kēhare, lion, or: کيسَرِ kēsare, Sansk. केसरी.

kūe, street, besides: کُودِّي kūī, Pers.

sahāe, helper, besides: سَهَادِي sahāī.

Others again are to be taken as Bahuvrīhi com-Trumpp, Sindhī-Grammar. pounds, in which final i (ĕ) may be preserved (see §. 12, 5. 6.), as:

يَ عَافُدِلِ sāfudile, a sincere man = having a pure heart. أدهزاً adhō-adhe, half-sharer = having half and half.

Chapter VII.

Formation of the Feminine from masculine bases.

§. 14.

The formation of the feminine from masc. nouns agrees in the main with Sanskrit and Prākrit usage. In some instances feminine derivatives have been taken directly from the Sanskrit or Prākrit, subject, of course, to the peculiar assimilating process of the Sindhī, as; رَانِي rāṇī, queen, Sansk. पड़ी (see: Introd. §. 14, b.). Such like formations we shall pass by in the following remarks and only attend to the laws still current in Sindhī.

The Sindhī possesses in some cases separate words, to express the idea of the feminine, so that the process of deriving the feminine from the masc base is superseded. These instances however are restricted to nouns, implying relationship, and the names of the commonest domestic animals, where the language has preferred to create separate words, instead of deriving them from the corresponding masc base; as:

بهين bhēṇa, sister; بهين bhāu, brother. إن bhāu, brother. بهين dhia, or بهين puṭru, son. ويثر puṭru, son. daughter; بثق māu, mother; بثق piu, father. وهُو vahū, daughter-in-law; وَهُو يَالْهُوْ dāghō, a male camel. ga-ū, cow; تَانْدُ d̄āndu, ox. وَأَنْدُ mēhe, a female buf- سَانُ sānu, a male buffalo. falo;

From other masc. bases the Sindhī forms regularly a feminine, as far as this is admissible; some nouns are only extant in the feminine, the masculine being out of place or having disappeared from the language.

1) Formation of the Feminine from masc. nouns in 'u'.

From substantives ending in 'u' the Sindhī forms the Feminine by changing 'u' into ī or ĭ (ĕ); with adjectives the termination 'i' (e) or 'a' may be optionally used. In the case of the substantives the use of the termination ī or 'i' (e) is more or less optional, but in some of them one or the other is preferred.

يَرْفِ gaḍāhe, jenny-ass, from گُهُهِ gaḍāhu, jack-ass. وَرُفِ parṭe, washerwoman, from يَرْفِ parṭu, washerman. وهير dhīra or يَرْفِ dhīra or دهِير dhīra, from دهِير dhīra.

Besides this common formation of the feminine another method of forming the same by means of the affixes nī, ni, āṇī, āiṇi, is in use, which are however only added to nouns denoting human beings, castes, occupations etc. very rarely to names of animals or to adjectives.

All these affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix श्रानी (= न, see Bopp, Compar. Gram. §. 840), as: इन्द्राणी the wife of Indra etc. In Sindhī the original affix ānī (with change of the dental to the cerebral) has either been preserved, or ā (see Bopp sub loco) has again been cast out, and only nī (ne) added. All these affixes are joined to the feminine termination (i, seldom to ă), as:

the wife of a جُدِّنِي Jaṭiṇē,

إلَّهُ jaṭiṇī,

إلَّهُ jaṭy-āṇī,

إلَّهُ gāhiṇe,

إلَّهُ gāhyāṇī,

إلَّهُ gāhyāṇī,

إلَّهُ gāhyāṇī,

إلَّهُ a female singer; masc. not in use.

إلَّهُ وَهُانِي barōčāṇī, the wife (or female) of a بَرْوَجُانِي or Beluch.

إلَّهُ عَلَيْهُ sĩhaṇe, lioness, from شِينْهُ sĩhu, lion.

إلَّهُ وَلَّانِي sĩhu, lion.

إلَّهُ حُهُوتِنِي čhūṭiṇē,

إلَّهُ حُهُوتِنِي čhūṭiṇī,

إلَّهُ حُهُوتِنِي čhūṭiṇī,

إلَّهُ حُهُوتِنِي čhūṭiṇī,

إلَّهُ حُهُوتِنِي čhūṭiṇī,

2) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ō.

From masc. nouns ending in ō the feminine is formed by changing ō into ī, as:

چهژري čhōrī, a female orphan, from چهژري čhōrō, orphan, m.

gōlō, a slave-girl, from گۇلۇ gōlō, a slave m.

Besides this feminine termination the affixes nī, ni, ānī, āini are also in use with nouns denoting caste, trade or occupation, as:

ا لَنگهِنِ langhiṇe, لَنگهِنِ langhiṇī, الَنگهِنِي langhyāṇī, الَنگهِيَائِي langhyāṇe, the wife (or female) of a لَنگهوْ langhō or drummer (by caste).

<sup>1)</sup> After a Palatal short i is frequently cast out.

3) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ū.

Masc. nouns ending in ū form the feminine by the affixes nī or ni, with the union-vowel i, by which final ū is dislodged; final ū may also be shortened to 'u', which serves at the same time as union-vowel, e.g.:

The affixes āṇī or āiṇi are also in use, before the addition of which final ū is always shortened to 'u', as:

4) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ī and ĭ.

From masc. nouns ending in  $\bar{\imath}$  and 'i' (e) the feminine is formed by means of the affixes  $n\bar{\imath}$ ,  $n\bar{\imath}$  or  $\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}$ ; final  $\bar{\imath}$  is shortened to 'i', and serves thus as unionvowel; as:

Note. The cognate dialects form the feminine from masc. nouns in the same way as the Sindhī, by changing either the masc. termination to the feminine, or by adding one of the above-mentioned fem. affixes.

The Hindī and Hindūstānī approach the Sindhī very closely in this respect; they form the feminine either by substituting the feminine termination ī, as: التنافي larkī, girl, from larkā, boy, المتنافي brāhmanī, the wife (or female) of a Brāhman, from براهناس brāhman; or by adding one of the affixes an, in, ānī, to the masc. base, as: سنار sunāran (or sunārin), the wife of a سنار sunār, goldsmith; شيرني šērnī, a lioness, from مهتراني šēr, a lion; مهتراني mehtarānī, the wife (daughter) of a mehtar, or sweeper.

The same law holds good in Gujarātī; either the feminine termination ī is substituted for the masculine, as: कुतरी a female dog, from कुतरो a male dog, or the feminine affixes एण, णी or आणी are added to the masc. base, as: वाघेण a tigress, from वाघ tiger; ऊंट्णी, a female camel, from ऊंट a male camel; धणिआणी mistress, from धणी lord.

The formation of the feminine is quite analogous in the Panjābī; for the masc. termination is either changed to the feminine, as: ghōṛī, a mare, from ghoṛā, a stallion, or the feminine affixes aṇ, ṇī, āṇī are added to the masc. base, as: uskaļaṇ, a slanderous woman, from uskaļī, a slanderous man; ūṭṇī, a female camel, from ūṭ, a male camel; mugalāṇī, the wife (or daughter) of a mugal.

The Marāṭhī forms the feminine from nouns in 'a' (quiescent) or ā by substituting the fem. termination ī, as: मृगली, girl, from मृगला boy; दासी, a slave-girl, from दास a slave; in nouns ending in 'a', the Sansk fem. termination ā is occasionally to be met with, as: शूदा or शूदी the wife of a शूद Besides these two fem. terminations the affix īn or īṇ is to be found in nouns ending in 'a' (quiescent) or ī, as: वाघीण, tigress, from वाघ, tiger, पापीण a sinful woman, from पापी a sinner; धनीन mistress, from धनी master.

The Bangālī stands nearest to the Sanskrit with regard to the formation of the feminine; it substitutes the fem. terminations ā or ī for those of the masculine, as: tanyā, daughter, from tanya, son; puttrī, daughter, from puttra, son. Adjectives or nouns of agency, ending in ka ('a' being quiescent) form their feminine always in kā, as: kārikā, doing, from kārak, m., gāyakā, a female singer, from gāyak, a male singer. Nouns in ī (= in) form their feminine by the affix nī, as: hattinī, a female elephant, from hattī, a male elephant; likewise patnī, mistress, from pati, master. Also the use of the affix āṇī or āṇi is strictly in accordance with Sanskrit practice, as: āčāryāṇī, the wife of an āčārya.

We find thus, that all the north-Indian vernaculars of Sanskrit origin fully agree in the formation of the feminine.

SECTION II. THE INFLEXION OF NOUNS.

Chapter VIII.

I. Formation of the Plural.

§. 15.

The crude form of a Sindhī noun is always identical with its Nominative Singular, the Nominative Singular having no longer a case-sign in any of the modern Ārian tongues.

The Sindhī possesses no definite or indefinite article, as little as the Sanskrit or the Prākrit; if the one or the other is to be expressed for distinctness' sake, a demonstrative or indefinite pronoun (or the numeral "one") is placed before a noun. There is no longer a Dual in Sindhī, neither in Pāli nor Prākrit, nor in any of the modern Sanskritical tongues; we have therefore only to describe the formation of the Plural (Nominative), according to the respective terminations of nouns.

1) Nouns ending in ŭ.

Nouns ending in ŭ are, as we have stated already, for the greatest part masculine, a few of them only being feminine. According to their respective gender the Plural is formed, as follows:

a) Plural of masculine nouns ending in ŭ:

These nouns form their Plural by changing ŭ into ă, as: لَهُوهُ khūhu, a well, Plur. لَهُوهُ khūha, wells; yaru, husband, Plur. وَ vara. If final 'u' be preceded by short 'a', a euphonic v is inserted in the Plural, as: أَرُهُ ra-u, weed, Plur. وَ rava, weeds. But if final 'u' be preceded by any other vowel, but short 'a', the insertion of v is optional, as: گهَاوَ ghāu, a wound, Plur. گهَاوَ ghāva or: گهَاوَ ghāa, wounds; تُوبُو أَوْهِ, a god, Plur. وُبُورُ أَوْهِ dēu, a god, Plur. وُبُورُ أَوْهِم or: وُبُورُ أَوْهِم, gods; but when a long vowel, preceding final ŭ, is nasalized, the insertion of v becomes necessary, as:

تَهَانُوَ thẫu, a dish, Plur. تَهَانُوَ thẫva, dishes.

The following two nouns form their Nom. Plural in an irregular way:

bhāu, brother, Plur. بَهَاتُر bhāura or: بِهَاتُر bhāuru, brothers.

piura, fathers. إِيْرُ piu, father, Plur. پِئْرَ

Both these Plurals point back to the Prākrit forms भाञ्रा (Nom. Sing. भाञ्रा) and पिञ्रा (Nom. Sing. पिञ्रा), and are therefore, properly speaking, not irregular (cf. Varar. V, 35).

Annotation. We have already noticed (§. 5, I.), that the Sindhī termination ŭ is shortened from the Prākrit হো; in Prākrit nouns ending in ō form their Plural in ā, which has been shortened in Sindhī to ă.

The cognate idioms agree with the Sindhī in this respect. In Hindī and Hindūstānī, this class of nouns, having already dropped the terminating short vowel in the Singular, throw the same off in the Plural likewise, i. e. they remain unaltered in the Plural. The same is the case in Marāṭhī and Panjābī; the Gujarāṭī alone adds the Plural termination ō.

b) Plural of feminine nouns ending in ŭ.

These nouns form their Plural by changing final  $\check{\mathbf{u}}$  into  $\tilde{\mathbf{u}}$ , as:

vathu, a thing; Plur. وَتَهُونِ vathū, things; وَجُهُ viju, lightening; Plur. وَجُونِ vijū, lightenings.

The following nouns have, besides their regular Plural, also an irregular one, as:

بهينُ وي bhēṇa, sister (or: بهينَ bhēṇa); Plur. بهينُ bhēṇā or: بهينُروي bhēṇā or: بهينُرُوي bhēṇarū, sisters. مَائِرُ māu, mother; Plur. مَائِرُ māirū, or: مَائِرُون māirū, mothers.

dhiu (or: دهِمُّون dhia), daughter; Plur. دهِمُّون dhiū, or: مُعَلِّي dhiaru, دهِمُّرُون dhiarū, daughters.

nuhu (or: نَهُ nuha), daughter-in-law; Plur. نُهُون nuhū or: نُهُون nuharu, نُهُرُون nuharū, daughters-in-law.

In the levelling process of decomposition these fem. nouns have adopted the same affix ara (or for euphony's sake: ira), as the irregular Plurals of masc. nouns, and as feminines they have lengthened the same also to arū.

Annotation. In Pāli fem. nouns ending in 'u' remain either unchanged in the Plural, as: yāgu, sacrifice, Plur. yāgu, or  $\bar{o}$  (the Sansk. Plural affix  $\bar{z}$ ) is added to them (with inserted euphonic 'y') as: yaguyō; the latter is also the case in Prākrit, as: bahū, wife, Plur. bahūō, or the affix  $\bar{o}$  may be again shortened to 'u', as: bahūu. In Sindhī this Plural affix 'u' has been contracted with final 'u' ( $\bar{u}$ ) into  $\bar{u}$ , and at the same time nasalized  $= \tilde{u}$ .

2) Nouns ending in ō (ō).

These form their Plural by changing final ō into ā, as: تَوْبُو بَوْ vāḍhō, a carpenter, Plur. تَوْبُو بَرَاتُهُا tō̄bō, a diver, Plur. تَوْبُلُ tō̄bā, divers. If final ō be nasalized, which is frequently the case, the nasal is also preserved in the Plural, as: چَوْتَهُوْنِ čōthō̄, the fourth, Plur. چُوْتَهُوْنَ

If final ō be preceded by short 'a' (or nasalized: ã), a euphonic v is inserted between them in the Plural, as: ثَتْ taō, a pan; Plur. نَتْرُان tavā, pans; نَنْوُان nãō, new; Plur. نَنْوُان nãvā̄; but if final ō be preceded by any other vowel, the insertion of v is optional, as: کُتُو kuō, mouse, Plur. کُوا kuā or: میئثو mēō, fisherman, Plur. کُوا mēā or: میئو ghā-ō, a fish-net, Plur. گهَاتُو ghā-ā or: گهَادًا ghā-ā

We have repeatedly adverted to the fact, that the Prākrit termination ō has in Sindhī either been shortened to 'u', or retained unaltered; the formation of the Plural of the latter description of nouns is quite in accordance with Prākrit usage (Sing. ō, Plur. ā).

Annotation. In the cognate idioms the masc. termination ā has been substituted instead of ō. In Hindī, Hindūstānī, Marāṭhī and Panjābī masc. nouns ending in ā commonly change the same in the Plural to ē, a Plural termination, which is already in use in the inferior old Prākrit dialects (see: Lassen, Instit. Ling. Prāk. p. 430). The Gujarātī differs in this respect, as masc. nouns ending in ō add to the Plural termination ā the affix ō, as: čhōkarō, a boy, Plur. čhōkarā-ō; a similar formation of the Plural is already ascribed to the Māgadhī dialect of the Prākrit; cf. Lassen, p. 399.

3) Nouns ending in ū, ū.

Nouns ending in ū or, as it is more common, in ū, be they masc. or feminine, remain unchanged in the Plural, as: بِحَهُونِ vičhū, m., scorpion, Plur. بِحَهُونِ vičhū; gaū, fem., cow, Plur. گُمُو gaū, cows.

In Pāli, masc. themes ending in 'u', lengthen the same in the Nom. Plural to ū, as bhikkhu, a beggar, Plur. bhikkhū; and such masc. themes, as end in ū in the Nom. Sing., remain unchanged in the Plural, as: abhibhū, a chief, Plur. abhibhū (contracted from abhibhuvō). In Prākrit masc. themes ending in 'u' lengthen their final vowel always in the Nominative Sing., to which in the Nom. Plural the affix ō (= > 34) is added, as: vāu, wind, Nom. Sing. vāū, Nom. Plur. vāūō, winds. This Plural affix ō may in Prāk. be again shortened to 'u', and in the modern dialects it is dropped altogether. In Sindhī ū is usually nasalized = ū.

Annotation. In Hindī, Hindūstānī, Marāṭhī and Panjābī masc. nouns ending in ū, remain unaltered in the Plural; but fem. nouns add in Hindūstānī the Plural termination ã, as jōrū, a wife, plural jōrūã, the Prākrit Plural affix ō being changed to ā, ã. The Gujarātī keeps close to the Prākrit in forming the Plural of masc. nouns ending in ū, by adding the Plural affix ō, as: hindū, a Hindū, Plur. hindūō.

4) Nouns ending in ā (ā).

These are, as noticed already (§. 13, 3) for the most part feminine; they form their Plural hy adding the Plural affix  $\tilde{\mathbf{u}}$ , as:

hačā, f., murder; Plur. هَچَاتُان hačā-ữ, murders.

The Plural of these nouns corresponds to the Prāk. Plural termination ā-ō or ā-u, ō (or shortened 'u') being added to final ā of the Singular (see Lassen p. 307). In Sindhī the Prāk. Plur. increment ō has been changed to ū, and at the same time nasalized.

Few nouns ending in ā are masculine; they remain unaltered in the Plural, as: ẤẾ lālā, master, Plur. ẤẾ lālā, masters.

The Prākrit Plural increment ō (ā-ō) has first been shortened to 'u', and then been dropped altogether in Sindhī.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī fem. nouns ending in ā (ā) form their Plural by adding the increment ē, as balā, misfortune, Plur. balāē. This ē corresponds to the Prākrit affix ō, which in the inferior Prākrit dialects is frequently changed to ē (cf. Lassen, p. 398, 408). Those masc. nouns, the final ā of which does not correspond to the Sindhī ō, remain likewise unaltered in the Plural. — In Panjābī fem. nouns ending in ā add either ī or iā, the Plural increment ī being a change from the Hindī ē, and iā from the Prākrit affix ō, with euphonic i' or y. A few masc. nouns remain likewise unaltered in the Plural, as ātmā, soul; pitā, father etc. — The Gujarātī entirely agrees with the Prākrit, adding simply ō to the fem. nouns in ā, as: mā, mother, Plur. mā-ō. — In Marāṭhī fem. nouns ending in ā do not undergo any change in the Plural, as: mātā, mother, Plur. mātā;

some masc. nouns, falling under this head, remain likewise unaltered in the Plural.

5) Nouns ending in ă.

These nouns being all feminine, form their Plural by changing final 'a' either to ū (as in Lāṛ); or to ā (as in Sirō); غَرَان tarā, nostril, Plur. تَرَان tarā, nostrils.

These nouns have been, as noted already, shortened from Sanskrit-Prākrit bases ending in  $\bar{a}$ ; they either drop final 'a' before the Plural increment  $\tilde{a}$  (=Prāk. $\bar{o}$ ), or restore the original  $\bar{a}$  and drop the Plural increment  $\bar{o}$  = u, nasalising at the same time the final long vowel.

Annotation. This class of nouns is wantig in the cognate idioms, where final 'a' has become silent; e. g. Hindūstānī: jībh, f., tongue, Plural: jībh- $\tilde{e}$ , the Plural being made up by the increment  $\tilde{e}$  = Prāk.  $\bar{o}$ . — Panjābī: bāh, f., arm (Sindhi:

bāha), Plur. bāhā; Marāṭhī: jībh, f. Plur. similarly: jībhā. The Gujarātī is consequent in adding simply the Plural increment ō to fem. bases, ending in a quiescent consonant, as: sānjh, f., evening, Plur. sānjhō.

6) Nouns ending in ī (t).

a) Masculine nouns ending in ī remain unaltered in the Plural:

پرِين bēlī, a servant, Plur. پرِين bēlī, servants; پرِين prī, friend, Plur. پرين prī, friends.

In Prākrit masc. nouns ending in ī form their Plural by adding the increment ō, which has been shortened to 'u' and then cast off altogether in Sindhī.

b) Feminine nouns ending in ī add in the Plural the increment ū, shortening before this affix the preceding long ī, which may also, for euphony's sake, be changed to y; as: گۇلينون gōliū, a slave-girl, Plur. گۇلينون nihāī (or: nihāī), a potter's kiln, Plur. نهاينون nihāyū.

Feminine nouns in ī add in Prākrit likewise the affix ō, which may be shortened to 'u'; in this case final 'u' has in Sindhī been lengthened to ū and nasalized at the same time, to distinguish the Plural of the feminine nouns from that of the masculine.

If final ī be preceded by any letter of the palatal class or by 'h', it is commonly dropped before the Plural affix ū, as: مَنجِي manjī, a stool, Plur. مَنجُون manjū, stools; مَنجُون f., manjhī, a buffalo, Plur. مَنجُهُون manjhū, buffaloes.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī fem. nouns follow the method of the Prākrit in forming their Plural, with the only difference, that the Prāk. Plural increment ō is changed to ā, and this again nasalized, as čhurī, knife, Plur. čhurīā. Masc. nouns in ī do not differ from their Singular. The Panjābī quite accords with the Hindī, fem. nouns in ī adding the Plural termination ā, as dhī, daughter, Plur. dhīā, the masc. nouns in ī remaining unaltered in the Plural. The same may be remarked of the Marāṭhī. The Gujarātī stands nearest to the Prākrit in this respect, all nouns, be they masc. or feminine, adding simply the Plural affix ō.

7) Nonns ending in ĭ (ĕ).

a) Fem. nouns ending in 'i' (e) form their Plural by adding the Plural affix ū, as: رَاتِئُون rāte, night, Plur. رَاتِئُون rāteū, nights. — If 'i' be preceded by a palatal or h, it disappears before the Plural termination ū, as: سِينَهُ سِينَهُ سِينَهُ وَلَى mēhe, buffalo, Plur. سِينَهُ وَلَى mēhē, buffaloes.

جَوْءِ jōe, wife, forms its Plural either regularly, as: جَوْيُونِ jōiru, جَوْيُونِ jōiru, مَوْيُرُون jōiru, مَوْيُرُون or بَوْيُرُون jōirū, wives.

b) Masc. nouns ending in 'i' (e) remain unchanged in the Plural, as: سِيتَهِ sethe, a wholesale merchant, Plur. سِيتَهِ sēthe.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī, as stated already, final 'i' has been dropped, and such nouns, as end in Sindhī in 'a' or 'i', use there one common Plural increment, viz.: ē. In Gujarātī and Panjābī final 'i' has likewise disappeared in most cases, and ō and ā are respectively added as Plural terminations. In Marāṭhī fem. bases ending in 'i' remain either unchanged in the Plural or have final 'i' lengthened to ī. The lengthening of final 'i' in the Plural is more in accordance with Pāli and Prākrit usage (e. g. Pāli: ratti, night, Plur. rattī or rattiyō; Prāk. rattī-ō or: rattī-u). Masc. bases ending in 'i' remain similarly either unaltered in the Plural, or (according to some Pandits) lengthen the same to ī (as in Pāli and Prākrit).

II. Formation of cases; case-affixes.

Properly speaking there is no longer a declension in Sindhī, nor in any of the modern languages of the Ārian stock; there are only a few remnants of the ancient Sanskrit, Pāli and Prākrit case-inflexions, all the other cases being made up by means of case-affixes or postpositions. 1).

If we compare the modern Ārian dialects with the Pāli and Prākrit, we perceive at once the great deterioration, the modern idioms have undergone in this respect; for while the Pāli and Prākrit have as yet preserved all the cases of the Sanskrit, with the exception of the Dative, which has already become scarce in Pāli and has been discarded altogether in Prākrit, its functions being shifted to the Genitive, the modern idioms have lost nearly all power of inflexion and substituted in lieu of flexional increments regular adverbs, which we generally term postpositions. The same process we can notice in the modern Romanic tongues, where after the loss of the Latin declensional inflexions, prepositions have been substituted to make up for the lost cases.

<sup>1)</sup> In poëtry postpositions may also be placed before the noun, they govern, as the rhythm may require.

The great distinctive feature of the declensional process of the modern Ārian dialects, with the exception of the Bangālī, consists in the fact, that there are properly only two cases of a noun, the absolute or crude form, corresponding throughout to the Nom. Singular, and the Formative case, to which the various adverbs or postpositions are added, which serve to make up for the lost case-terminations. This latter case has been generally called the oblique case by European grammarians, but we prefer to call it the Formative (after the precedence of Dr. Caldwell).

The number of declensions, if they may be termed thus, depends therefore in Sindhī, as well as in the cognate idioms, on the various methods, in which the Formative is made up; for the case-signs remain the same, as well for the Singular as the Plural, since they are, as we shall presently see, originally either (Sanskrit) prepositions or adverbs.

We shall now first investigate the remnants of the ancient case-terminations in Sindhī and the adverbs or postpositions, which have been substituted for such cases, as have lost their original inflexions. In the arrangement of the cases we shall follow the common order, which has been instituted by the old Sanskrit grammarians, in order to facilitate the intercomparison.

1) The Nominative case of the Singular and plural we may pass over, since they have been noticed already.

2) The Accusative case of the Singular and Plural has been dropped in Sindhī, as well as in all the other kindred idioms. This has been already the case in the inferior Prākrit dialects, and is expressly mentioned of the Apabhranša, the mother of the modern Sindhī (see: Lassen p. 459).

We must keep this fact constantly before our eyes, that in Sindhī, as well as in its sister-tongues, there is no such thing (in a grammatical sense), as an Accusative case, the Accusative being now throughout identical with the Nominative. If we find therefore generally stated in European grammars, that the postposition khē, or khē, or kō in Hindūstānī serves to denote also the Accusative case, we have, in the strictly grammatical sense of the word, to repudiate such an idea. Whe shall see under the Dative case, what the origin of that postposition is, and that will satisfactorily explain the syntactical peculiarities of the modern Indian tongues, which use such and similar postpositions, where we use either the Dative or the Accusative.

3) The Instrumentalis is not distinguished by any case-affix or postposition in Sindhī, but differs from the Nominative Sing. only by the change of the final vowel (where such a change is admissible). The Instrumentalis is in the Singular and Plural identical with the Formative (which see further on). From thence it would follow, that the Instrumentalis is originally the Genitive, which may be rendered very probable by the Instrumentalis of the Plural.

Annotation. The Hindī and Hindūstānī use as Instrumental case-affix nē. In Hinduī (see Garcin de Tassy, Rudiments de la langue Hindouī, 26, 99) we meet further the affixes nē, nē, ni and na, and in the Plural (a)n or nē, nē, ni, as in the Singular. In Panjābī we find the instrumental affix nai, or na, or only ī, or the Formative is promiscuously used for the Instrumentalis, just as in Sindhī. In Gujarātī we meet with ē as Instrumental affix. The Marāthī uses for the Instrumentalis Sing. the affix ne, and for the Plural ni. As to the origin of these various instrumental affixes there can hardly be a doubt. The Sansk. instrumental case-inflexion of the Singular nā, na (see Bopp, Comp. Gram. I, §. 158) has been used as a separate adverb in Hindūstānī and Panjābī (not in Marāthī, where it coalesces with the noun as a regular inflexion), or even been abbreviated to ī or ē (n being originally only a euphonic addition to the instrumental affix a), as partly in Panjābī and in Gujarātī. In the Instrumentalis Plur. the Marāṭhī uses also (besides nī) the affix hī, corresponding to the Prāk. Plur. instrumental affix fī or fī; see Lassen, p. 310. In Ban $g\bar{a}l\bar{\imath}$  te is used as instrumental affix, which is originally identical with the Ablative affix  $\bar{\eta} = \bar{\eta}$ .

Annotation. The Bangālī uses as Dative affix kē, the Hindī and Hindūstānī kō (dialectically also pronounced 'kū' in the Dekhan), the Hinduī (according to Garcin de Tassy) also kō, kaū, kah, kāh, kahã and even hi.

Dr. Caldwell, in his Comparative Grammar of the Drāvidian languages has attempted to vindicate the Hindūstānī kō for the Drāvidian languages of the South; he says (p. 225): "In the vernaculars of northern India, which are deeply tinged with Scythian characteristics, we find a suffix, which appears to be not only similar to the Dravidian, but the same. The Dative-Accusative in the Hindī and Hindūstānī is kō, or colloquially kū; in the language of Orissa ku, in Bangālī ki, in Sindhī khi, in Shingalese ghai; in the Uraon, a semi-Drāvidian Kole dialect, gai, in the language of the Bodos, a Bhūtan hill tribe, khō, in Tibetan gya. The evident existence of a connexion between these suffixes and the Drāvidian Dative case-sign ku, is very remarkable. Of all the analogies between the North-Indian dialects and the southern, this is the clearest and most important, and it cannot but be regarded as betokening either an original connexion between the northern and the southern races, prior to the Brahmanic irruption, or the origination of both races from one and the same primitive Scythian stock." If this case-sign ko or ku then be the clearest and most important analogy between the North-Indian vernaculars and the Drāvidian tongues, we shall see presently, that there will be no analogy whatever between them, though at the first sight the identity of both seems to be past any doubt. In the first instance the fact speaks already very strongly against such a supposition, that the Marāthī, which is the closest neighbour to the Drāvidian tongues, has repudiated the use of khē, kē or kō, and employed a Dative-affix, the origin of which we hope to fix past controversy. We shall further see, that the Gujarātī and Panjābī have also made up for the Dative case by postpositions, borrowed from the Sanskrit, without the slightest reference to the Dravidian languages, and we may therefore reasonably expect the same fact from the remaining Arian dialects. It would certainly be wonderful, if those Arian dialects, which border immediately on the Dravidian idioms, should have warded off any Dravidian influence on their inflexional method, whereas those more to the north should have been "deeply tinged with Scythian characteristics." Fortunately we are able to show, that such an assumption is not only gratuitous, but irreconcilable with the origin of the above mentioned Dative-affixes.

We derive the Sindhī khē, the Bangālī kē, from the Sanskrit Locative ĀĀ, 'for the sake of', 'on account of', 'as regards'. This will at once account for the aspiration of k in Sindhī; for this is not done by chance, but by a strict rule (see Introd. §. 1, e, note); in Bangālī r does not exercise such an influence on the aspiration of a preceding or following consonant, and therefore we have simply kē. The Sanskrit form ĀĀ becomes in Prākrit first ĀĀ, then (by the regular elision of t) ĀĀ, and contracted kē, and in Sindhī, by reason of the elided r, khē. The Hindī and Hindūstānī form of this adverb kō we derive in the same way from the Sansk. ĀĀ which is used adverbially with the same signification as the Locative ĀĀ. In Prākrit already, and still more so in the modern dialects, the neuter has been merged into the masculine; we have therefore first ĀĀĀ, thence ĀĀĀ, and contracted ĀĀ, kō. We can thus satisfactorily account for the various forms: khē, kē or kō. That the proposed derivation of these adverbs does not rest on a mere fancy, is further proved by the Sindhī particle rē, 'without', which is derived in the same way from the Sansk. Locative ĀĀĀ, Prākrit ĀĀ = ĀĀ, and thence contracted rē (ria). It remains now for us to notice briefly the somewhat deviating forms of the Hinduī, as exhibited by Garcin de Tassy. In ani ko and ani kaŭ a euphonic Anusvara has been added, to which the modern tongues have taken a great fancy; kaŭ is only a different pronunciation for kõ, ō changing in Hinduī very commonly to au. The forms कह kah, or with euphonic Anusvāra कह kãh or कहं kahã, present again another proof for the correctness of the proposed derivation of these adverbs. For we have in कह, कहं (Hindī also: kan, kanē, with a full nasal, and in consequence thereof with ejection of h) the same basis as in and ani, only the assimilating process has been different. The vowel Tr, when joined to a consonant, can, according to Prākrit usage, be resolved either into 'i' (as in fant) or into 'a' (as: कतं for कतं) (see Varar. I, 27; Lassen p. 116, 2, a; Introd. §. 1); in consequence of the inherent r the following consonant is aspirated (as in Sindhī: kk = k), so that we get the form क्यं; this aspirated य th is again elided, so that h only remains (see Lassen p. 207; Introd. §. 8), and thus we have the forms कह, कहं. With the other alleged form to hi, the matter stands different; we compare this Hinduī Dative affix with the Apabhranša Genitive affix &, the Genitive, as noted already, supplying in Prākrit the place of the Dative (as to the analysis of this ह see Lassen p. 462 and 466).

The Marāṭhī uses two affixes to make up for the Dative, which are joined to the crude form by the so-called union-vowel, viz:  $\mathbf{H}$ , s and  $\mathbf{\overline{C}}$  lā. The first of these two, s, is identical with the Prāk. Genit.-Dative case termination  $\mathbf{\overline{H}}$  ss = Sansk.  $\mathbf{\overline{C}}$  sy, so that we have here the remnant of an ancient Sanskrit-Prākrit case-inflexion. The latter one, lā is more doubtful as to its origin. Lassen has already started a conjecture (see Instit. Ling. Prāk. p. 55, 99) as to the origin of this affix; he derives it from the Sansk.  $\mathbf{\overline{M}}\mathbf{\overline{C}} = \mathbf{\overline{M}}\mathbf{\overline{C}}\mathbf{\overline{C}}$  'place habitation', signifying the place, where the action rests. We cannot endorse this derivation, as the Marāṭhī case-affix is not  $\mathbf{\overline{M}}\mathbf{\overline{C}}$  āla, but  $\mathbf{\overline{C}}\mathbf{\overline{C}}$  lā and we cannot see any reason, why initial long ā should have been transferred to the back of this particle. We would compare the Marāṭhī Dative affix lā with the Sindhī postposition

In Gujarātī the Dative-affix is nē, which we identify with the Sansk. preposition  $\widehat{A}$ , Greek év, Latin in. The Panjābī uses as Dative affix nū, in which we likewise recognise the Sansk. preposition  $\overline{A}$ , 'toward', 'to'.

5) The Ablative case is formed in Sindhi by the affix of ã, which is always connected with the base itself and never written separately. The Sindhī shows itself thus fully conscious of the origin of this case-termination, which corresponds exactly to the Pāli-Prākrit Ablative case-termination ā, which originates from the Sanskrit ablative आत् by the elision of final t (see Lassen p. 352, 304); in Sindhī the final long vowel has again been nasalized, as in so many other instances. In the Singular final 'u', ō, 'a' are dropped before the affix ā, as: گهَرَان gharā, from a house, nom. گهَرَان gharu, a house; مَرَان darã, out of a defile, nom. مَرَان darō; zabānā, from the tongue, nom. زَبَانَ zabāna, tongue. Those nouns, which end in the Singular in ī (ī) and ū (t̄), shorten the same before the affix ā, as: نَوْرَتُان nōriã, from a rope, nom. نوژي nōrī, a rope; مِرْوَان miruã, from a wild beast, nom. مِرْوَى mirū, a wild beast.

Besides this common Ablative affix  $\tilde{a}$  we find in Sindhī also such forms, as:  $a\tilde{u}$  ( $\tilde{j}$ ), contracted:  $\tilde{o}$  ( $\tilde{j}$ ), and even  $\tilde{u}$  ( $\tilde{j}$ ). In the more ancient idiom, as used by the Sindhī poëts, the Ablative Singular generally ends in  $\tilde{a}$ -u. All these various Ablative affixes are derived from the Prākrit Ablative  $\tilde{j}$  (see Lassen p. 302, 304, 599), which becomes (by the elision of d)  $\tilde{a}\tilde{o}$ , or shortened:  $\tilde{a}u$ .

The Sindhī uses also the postposition لَهُوْن khā, thaū, كَهُوْن khō, to express the idea of the Ablative; all these and other postpositions require the Formative of a noun. Other postpositions, which are used to make up for the Ablative, see under the list of postpositions.

Annotation. Nearest to the Sindhī comes the Marāṭhī in this respect, which uses as Ablative-case terminations the affixes <sup>1)</sup> The postposition کھاں khā etc. is derived form the same source, as برائی, with the only difference, that the Ablative termination ā, aū etc. has been added. The same is to be said of the Ablative postposition کَنَان kanā, derived from کَنَان, by the same process.

un and hun, occasionally also tun. In Bangālī and Panjābī we find the Ablative affix tē (though in Panjābī a regular Ablative termination ō is also to be met with), which has sprung from the Prākrit Ablative termination  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{n}}$  tō; similar to it is the Gujarātī Ablative affix thī, which has been aspirated. In Hindī we find also thī, but most in use is sē, apparently identical with the Prākrit Genitive termination  $\overrightarrow{\mathbf{g}}$  (see Lassen p. 462).

6) The Sanskrit Genitive-case termination  $\mathbf{R}$ , in Pāli and Prākrit  $\mathbf{R}$  ss, has been lost in all the modern tongues, with the exception of the Bangālī, where ss has been hardened to r. All the other dialects have taken to a new way of forming the Genitive, of which we find already some traces in the old Vedic language: the noun, which ought to be placed in the Genitive case, is changed into an adjective by an adjective affix, and thence follows, as a matter of course, that this so-called Genitive, which is really and truly an adjective, must agree in gender, number and case with its governing noun as all other adjectives.

The Sindhī employs for this purpose the affix غَرِقَ jī), corresponding to the common adjective affix kō (= Sansk. कि), with transition of the tenuis (č=k) in tothe media (j), very likely to establish thereby some distinction between these two originally identical affixes. In Sindhī this adjective affix pō is always written separately, whereas the common adjective affix kō is joined to the base, as in Sanskrit (see §. 10, 24); it follows always the Formative Sing. or Plur. of a noun, as: گَوْرُ مِوْرُ مُوْرُ مُؤْرُ مُوْرُ مُورُ مُ پریَان سَنْدِي پَارَ دُي priyā sandē pāra dē, towards the direction of the friends.

Annotation. The Marāthī uses as Genitive case-affix 31, with transition of the guttural a into the corresponding palatal, as in Sindhī, yet without changing the tenuis into the media. The Hindī and Hindūstānī have preserved the original Sanskrit adjective affix a, without changing it into the palatal kā; in Hinduī we meet also with the affix ko and The Panjābī and Gujarātī seem to make an exception from what we have just stated. In Panjābī the Genitive case-affix is da, in which we recognise the Prak. Ablative affix दो dō (= तस्), turned into a Genitive affix. This Panjābī Genitive case-affix will clear up the Pasto Genitive prefix of da, being identical with it in origin. The Gujarātī employs as Genitive case-affix no, which is another adjective affix, corresponding in signification with and used in Sindhī (see §. 10, 27), to form adjectives in the same way, as kō (on the origin of this affix no see Bopp's Comp. Gram. III, §. 839).

7) The original Sanskrit Locative termination 'i' has been preserved in Sindhī, though the Locative can now only be distinguished in masc. bases ending in 'u', as: مَنهُ handhe, in a place, nom. مَنهُ handhu; مَنهُ mathe, on the top, nom. مَنهُ mathu, the top. In nouns, ending in any other vowel, but 'u' (masc.), the Locative must be expressed, for perspicuity's sake, by an adverb or postposition, requiring the Formative of a noun, as: مَنهُ مَنهُ مَنهُ لَمُ لَا اللهُ اللهُ

Annotation. In Marāṭhī the Locative affix 'i' has been lengthened to  $\bar{\imath}$  and at the same time nasalized  $=\tilde{\bar{\imath}}$ . Besides this we meet also with the Locative termination  $\bar{\imath}$ , which is originally the Sansk. Ablative, used as a Locative. In Bangālī the Locative ends in  $\bar{e}$  (i), as in Sindhī, or is expressed by the affix  $t\bar{e}$ . In Panjābī the Locative is generally expressed by adverbial postpositions, though the Locative itself has not been altogether lost; we find there the affix  $\tilde{i}$ , as in Marāṭhī, or ē, which are always joined to the base of a noun. In Gujarātī the Locative is either expressed by the affix ē, or by the help of postpositions. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the Locative, as a distinctive case, has been quite lost and must always be expressed by postpositions. Still some vestiges of it are lingering in the so-called participles absolute, as: hōtē, or with the emphatic hī, hōtēhī, in being. Some other idiomatic phrases, as: أَسُ فِينَ لَا يَعْمُ لِلْعُلِيْمُ لَا يَعْمُ لَا يَعْمُ لِلْعُمُ لِلْعُمُ لِلْعُمُ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لَا يُعْمُلُونُ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لِلْعُمْ لَا يَعْمُ لِعْمُ لِلْعُمْ لِلْ

8) The Vocative is expressed in Sindhī by prefixing one of the interjectional particles: ē, hē, hō or yā, and, when speaking to an inferior, rē (fem. rī) or arē.1) The final vowel of a noun in the Vocative either undergoes a change or remains unaltered. In the Vocative Singular masc. nouns ending in 'u' change the same to 'a', as: إي ميهَارُ ē mēhāra, o buffalo-keeper! nom. ميهَارُ mēhāru; those ending in ō change the same to ā, as: ë sūmirā, o Sūmirō! those ending in ū, ī, i' remain unaltered, as: اِي پُنهُون ē Punhū, o Punhū! In the Vocative Plural nouns ending in 'u' (m.) have the termination ō or ā, as: إي يَارؤ ē yārō or: يَارَا yāra, o friends! (nom. sing. ایکار); those ending in ō terminate in the Vocative Plur. in ā, ō and au, as: اي مَنْكَتَا ē mangatā, o beggars! or: مَنْكَتَوْ mangatō, مَنْكَتُوْ mangatau mangata-u), Nom. Sing. مَنْكَتْرُ mangata-i, those ending in ū (ũ) terminate in ō or ā, before which affixes the preceding ū (ũ) most be shortened, as: اِي وَاقَاهُنَّا e vātāhuā or إي وَاقَاهُمُو ē vāṭāhuō, o travellers! Nom. Sing. vāṭāhū; those ending in ī terminate in the Plural

Feminine nouns ending in 'u', 'a', ā, ī, 'i' (e) in the Nom. Singular, remain unaltered in the Vocative Sing.; in the Plural the Vocative is likewise identical with the Nominative. The few fem. nouns, which end irregularly in the Nom. Plural in 'u', as: لا في المناب المناب

The Vocative may also be used without any interjectional prefix, as: مَا رَّفُتًا māṛhuā, o men!

§. 17.

III. The Formative.

The Formative or oblique case, though in Sindhī throughout identical with the Instrumentalis, is by itself no case, but represents merely the euphonic change of the final vowel of a noun previous to the accession of any flexional particle or postposition, by means of which the various cases are made up. The changes, which the final vowel of a noun undergoes before the accession of any adverbial postposition, are on the whole the same as those before any other affix. In Sindhī the postpositions do not coalesce with the noun itself, the language still being conscious of the fact, that it has to deal with original adverbs. We have hinted already, that the Formative is originally the Genitive; it would be rather difficult, to prove this in reference to the Formative of the Singular, but that the Formative of the Plural originally represents the Genitive Plural, is borne out by the Prākrit and the kindred modern idioms. In Prākrit the Genitive Plural ends in Aut, In Singular, In Prākrit the Genitive Plural ends in In Prākr

Though the Formative be, in all likelihood, the Genitive of the Prākrit, the adjectival affix has been added to it, to turn it into an adjective, the modern idioms once having taken this course to supply the Genitive. From thence it was only a consequent step, to use the ancient Genitive as the base, to which all the other declensional postpositions were added, i. e. the Genitive was turned into the Formative.

- 1) The Formative of nouns ending in 'u' (masc. and fem.)
- a) Masculine nouns ending in 'u' change final 'u' in the Formative Sing. to 'a', as: مَانَ dāsu, a slave, Form. كَاسَ جَوْ dāsa jō, كَاسَ حَهِي dāsa khē etc. If final 'u' be preceded by a short 'a', the insertion of euphonic v becomes necessary, as: أَرُ ra-u, a weed, Form. رَبُ rava; the same is the case, when final 'u' is preceded by a long nasalized ā, as: تَهَانُ thau, a dish, Form. تَهَانُ thava. But if final 'u' be preceded by any other

The following nouns ending in 'u' retain their final 'u' unaltered in the Formative Singular:

piu, father; Format. پغی جو به piu, father; Format. پغی جو bhāu, brother, Format. بهَاءُ کهِي as: بهَاءُ کهي bhāu khē etc.

bhāu, price, are regular. بهَاءِ bhāu, price, are regular.

The Formative Plural ends either in ā, ē or -ne, as: Nom. Sing. پهُلُ phulu, a flower; Nom. Plur. پهُلُ phula; Format. Plur. پهُلُ phul-ā, phul-ē, or: پهُلُن phula-ne. The Formative in ā and ē is generally used without a following postposition, and that in -ne more with a following postposition, as being more sonorus; but in poëtry the one or other form is used as required by the metre.

Those nouns, which form their Plural irregularly, as: بَهَاتُرُ bhāu, brother, Nom. Plur. بَهَاتُرُ bhāura or: بَهَاتُرُ piu, father, Nom. Plur. بِعُرِ piura, derive their Formative Plural either from the Nominative Singular or the Nominative Plural, as: بِعَاتُرِي bhāune or: بِهَاتُرِي bhāurane; بِعُرِي piune or, پِنُرِي piurane; the contracted form of the Formative (i. e: ā, ē) is never used with them.

b) Feminine nouns ending in 'u' remain unaltered in the Formative Sing., as: الله māu, mother, Format. أَمَاءُ جَوْر, مَاءُ māu jō; in the Formative Plural the long ū of the Nom. Plur. is shortened before the Format. termination -ne, as: بنآي vijū, lightening, Nom. Plur. وجُون vijū, Format. Plur. viju-ne.

Those fem. nouns, which have, besides their regular Plural, also an irregular one, derive their Formative Plur. from either form, as: نبين bhēṇu, sister, Nom. Plur. المهندُون bhēṇaru (بهينُون bhēṇaru (بهينُون bhēṇaru); Format. Plur. بهينُون bhēṇarune or: بهينُون bhēṇarune.

2) The Formative of nouns ending in $\bar{o}$ ( $\tilde{o}$ ).

Nouns ending in ō change the same in the Formative Sing. to ē, as: مَتهِنَ mathō, head, Format. مَتهِنَ mathē. If final ō be preceded by 'a' or ā, a euphonic v may be inserted, as: كَتْوَ daō, the glare of the sun, Format. كَتُو daē or: نَاتَقُ nāō, felt, Format. نَاتَقُ nāe or: نَاتِي nāvē; if ō be preceded by any other vowel, no insertion of euphonic v takes place, as: ثِنَّ ثِنَةُ رَبِّي diō, lamp, Format. چُورَثُ رَبَّقَ رُبِّي čūō, perfumed oil, Format. چُورِثُ čūō, if a noun end in a nasalized ō (= ō), the Anusvāra is retained in the Formative, as: نَاتَتُونَ nãō, the ninth, Format. نَانَتُونَ nãō, the ninth, Format.

If  $\bar{\text{o}}$  be preceded by y, it is commonly dropped in the Formative, as:

pōrhyō (or pōrhiō), labour, Form. پۉرهيۉ pōrhē. رُوپَيۉ rūpayō, rupee, Format. رُوپَيۉ rūpaē.

The Formative Plural ends either in ā, ē, the termination of the Nomin. Plural (ā) being dropped before them, or in -ne, final ā of the Nom. Plural being shortened to 'a' before it; as: كُلهَنْ kulhō, the shoulder, Nom. Plur. كُلهَنْ kulhā, Form. Plur. كُلهَانْ kulhā, or: كُلهَانْ kulhā, rat, Nom. Plur. كُلهَنْ kulhā, or: كُوتُانْ kūā, Format. Plur. كُوتُانْ kūā, Format. Plur. كُوتُانْ kūā, viē, or:

3) The Formative of nouns ending in $\tilde{u}$ ( $\tilde{u}$ ).

Nouns ending in ū change the same in the Formative Singular to ua, as: وَاكُهُو vāghū, crocodile, Format. وَاكُهُو vāghua. If final ū be nasalized (= ū), the Anusvāra is commonly retained in the Formative, as: وچهُول vičhū, scorpion, Format. وچهُول vičhūa.

The Formative Plural ends either in u-ã, u-ễ, or u-ne, ua-ne, long ū and ū being shortened before the terminations of the Formative, as: رَهُو تَانَّى rahū, a resident, Nom. plur. رَهُو rahū, residents, Format. Plur. رَهُو rahuã (or: رَهُو الله rahuã (or: رَهُو الله rahuễ, رَهُو rahuễ, رَهُو rahune, مِرُون rahune; مِرُون mirũ, a wild beast, Nom. Plur. مِرُون mirū, wild beast, Format. Plur. مِرُون miruñ, مِرُون mirune, مِرُون mirune, مِرُون mirune.

4) The Formative of nouns ending in ā (ã).

Nouns ending in ā remain unaltered in the Formative Sing., as, آگيا, f., āgyā, command, Format. آگيا rājā (m.), king, Format رَاجَا rājā; in the Formative Plur. they end (according to the termination of the Nomin. Plural: ā-ū) in u-ne, as: عَيَائِنِ agyā-une; also رَاجَائِن rājāune, masc.

5) The Formative of nouns ending in 'a'.

Nouns ending in 'a' remain unchanged in the Formative Sing., as: كَامَ kāma, a beam, Format. كَامُ kāma; in the Formative Plur. they terminate (according to their Nom. Plural) either in a (e) or u-ne, as: كَامُ لِن kāmā, كَامُ لِن kāmune.

- 6) The Formative of nouns ending in ī (ī).
- a) Masc. nouns ending in ī change the same in the Formative Sing. to i-a, as: مَالِيَ mālī, a gardener, Formative مَالِيَ mālia. Those nouns, which have final ī nasalized (= ī), retain the Anusvāra in the Formative, as: پرین prī, friend, Format. پرین prīa. The Formative Plural ends either in i-ā (yā), i-ē (yē), or in i-ne, ia-ne (yane), iu-ne (yune), as: مَالِيَن māliā, مَالِيَن māliē; مَالِيَن māline, مَالِيَن māliane (مَالْيَن).
- b) Feminine nouns ending in ī change the same likewise in the Formative Sing. to i-a, as: تَوْيِي t̄opī, a hat, Format. تَوْيِي t̄opia; the Formative Plural also quite agrees with that of the masc. nouns, as: تَوْيِعْدَن t̄opiā, تَوْيِعْدَن t̄opiā, تَوْيِعْدَن t̄opiae, تَوْيِعْدَن t̄opiane, تَوْيِعْدَن t̄opiune. Such fem. nouns, as have dropped final ī in the Nom. Plural (cf. §. 15, 6), drop the same also in the contracted form of the Formative Plur., as: مَنْجُون manjī, a stool, Nom. Plur.

manjā, منجئن manjē; but: مَنجِئن manjiane, مَنجِئن manjiune are also in use. Some other nouns also, in which final ī is not preceded by a palatal, drop i' in the contracted form of the Formative Plural, as: کوڙيد kōṛē, in scores, from کوڙي kōṛī, a score.

7) The Formative of nouns ending in 'i' (e).

Nouns ending in 'i' (fem. and masc.) remain unaltered in the Format. Sing., as: بهب , f., bhite, a wall, Format. بهب bhite; کیهٔ kēhare (m.), a lion, Format. کیهٔ kēhare. In the Formative Plural of fem. nouns the same terminations are employed as with fem. nouns ending in ī, as: bhitiā, بهتی bhitiā, bhitiā, bhitiane, bhitiane, bhitiune. In the Formative Plural final 'i' is frequently dropped altogether, especially in poëtry, but only in the contracted form of the Formative, as: بهت bhatē, in (different) ways, from بهت bhate, habit, manner.

The Formative Plural of masc. nouns ends in -ne, the contracted form ã, ễ hardly ever being in use with them, as: کیهَری kēharine.

جَوْءِ jōe, wife, which forms its Plural either regularly جَوْيُوں jōyu, or irregularly: جَوْيُوں jōiru, jōyune or: جَوْيُوں jōhirine.

§. 18.

We let now follow, for the sake of perspicuity, a survey of the Sindhī declensional process. As the Genitive affix غِزُ jō is originally an adjective affix, by means of which the noun is turned into an adjective, dependent on the governing noun in gender, number and case, we premise the inflexion of  $\hat{z}$ , which, according to its terminations  $\tilde{j}$  and  $\tilde{j}$ , is inflected after the manner of nouns ending in  $\tilde{o}$  and  $\tilde{\imath}$  (fem.). As stated already,  $\hat{z}$  always requires the Formative of a noun, as all postpositions.

Chapter IX.

Adjectives.

§. 19.

The Sindhī adjectives and participles have the same terminations as the substantives and may therefore be classed under the same heads as the substantives.

The general rule, that the adjective must agree with its substantive in gender, number and case, holds good in Sindhī likewise.

In reference to the gender no exception takes place; but if an adjective or participle be referred to two preceding substantives, the one of which is masculine, the other feminine, the adjective or participle follows in the Plural masculine, as:

He created them male and female. Gen. I, 27.

With regard to the number the following exception takes place. When an adjective precedes a noun in the inflected case of the Plural, it may remain in the inflected case of the Singular, as:

He saw those two brothers throwing their net into the sea. Matth. IV, 18.

As to the case it may be observed, that adjectives, which end in ī and ū may remain uninflected, when immediately followed by a substantive in the Formative, as:

Do not make a journey in the caravan of vindictive men!

To both the helpless there was in many ways pleasant conversation. Maj. 198.

An adjective, following a substantive, may be put in the Ablative case, whereas the preceding substantive is only put in the Formative, as:

He who has come from the grand-father's country, has given me a reproach. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 2.

When an adjective precedes or follows a noun in the contracted form of the Formative Plural, it assumes the same form, as:

I seek in many ways the mercy of others. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, Epil. I.

By the burning coals of the thorn and babul tree I am indeed roasted! Sh. Jam. Kal. III, 3.

Adjectives precede, as a rule, their substantives, as:

Good, fragrant, sweet-smelling food was contained therein.

An adjective may also follow its substantive, especially when the adjective contains more syllables than its substantive, as:

The stars from the day of beginning are, without having deviated from their fixed intervals, in full turning.

Two and more adjectives very frequently follow their substantive as:

O sweet and charming friend, make the whole earth blooming! Sh. Sār. IV, 12.

By the knowing and wise God such secrets have been explained in his word.

To adjectives, as well as to substantives, very frequently an emphatic ī accedes in all cases, signifying 'very', 'quite', 'truly', without altering in any way the termination of the adjective (the feminine Singular of adjectives ending in ō alone being excepted; see §. 20, 2), as: غريبئي ōčitōī, quite accidental; غريبئي

O companion, make preparation of the very instant journey! Golden Alph. I, 1.

Formation of gender.

With reference to the derivation of the feminine from masculine nouns the general rules, which have been laid down in Chapter VII, §. 14, are equally applicable to adjectives. Some minor points, in which adjectives differ in this respect from substantives of the same termination, will be noticed under the following heads.

1) Adjectives ending in 'u'.

These change the masc. termination 'u' either to 'e' (i) or to 'a', as:

نِدهَرِ nidharu, helpless, fem. نِدهَرِ nidhare or: nidhara.

Forlorn, helpless, wretched, unacquainted I am! Sh. Ābiri VIII, 1.

Some adjectives of Sindhī origin, but more so those borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, remain without any change of gender, number and case, as: " sarsu, plentiful (s.); گُوْرَس gaḍu, mixed (s.); سَعِبْ sahiju, easy (s.); خُوبُ عَلَمْ عَلَى gaḍu, mixed (s.); خُوبُ tamāmu, whole (a.); خُوبُ ئَلْسُن good (p.); تَمَامُ dursu, right (corrupted from دُرُسْتُ pašimānu, ashamed (p.); پَشِيمَانُ hairānu, bewildered (a.); پَشِيمَانُ halāku, killed (a.); عَالَى sāfu, clean (a.); صَافُ sāfu, clean (a.); صَافُ sāfu, clean (a.); مَعْلُومُ maṣlimu, known (corrupted from مَعْلُومُ (a.)), etc. etc.

Those who have died before dying, they are not done for when dead. Sh. Ma¡ðūrī IV, 7.

By the medicine, which is in the mouth of the physicians, they have been made whole. Sh. Jam. Kal. II, 17.

Those who have looked about with men, will there be put to shame. Maj. 266.

2) Adjectives ending in ō (ỗ).

These change the masc termination to ī (ء); as: دُرَّةِ kūrō, false, fem. كُورِّي kūrō, nãō, new, fem. نَنتُون nãō.

When an adjective or participle ends in yō (or iō), being preceded by a consonant, the y (i) is dropped before the fem. termination ī, as: قُكِهِتْوُ d̄ukhyō or: قُكِهِتُوْ d̄ukhiō, pained, fem. كِتُوْ d̄ukhī; كُوهِيْ kiō, done, fem. كِتُوْ kiō, but يَتُوْنُ piō, fallen (Part. perf. from يَوْنُ pēī, not pī. When yō however is preceded by a vowel, the feminine is formed regularly in yī, as: چَيوْ čayō, said (Part. perf. from چَيوْ), fem. چَييْ čayī; كَيوْ kayō, made (another form of the part. perf. of كَيوْ), fem. كَيوْ kayī; آيوْ āyō, come (part. perf. from كَيِيْ), fem. آيِيْ āyō, come (part. perf. from أَچَيْ), fem. آيِي āyī; but the y may just as well be dropped in such like forms, as: čaī, kaī, āī etc.

When the emphatic ī accedes to the feminine Singular, then the masc termination ō is changed to yāī in the Nominative, as: مُنوَ munō, blunt, with the emphatic ī in the feminine: مُنيَائِي munyāī; but the other cases of the feminine are quite regular, and hardly ever found with an emphatic ī.

Look, says Latif, what credit (is given) to pieces of straw! Sh. Suh. VIII, 1.

If she sees the face of the buffalo-keeper, she becomes quickly well. Sh. Suh. Čhōṭ. 5.

3) Adjectives ending in ū (t).

These do not change their termination in the feminine, as: مَنْ sahū, masc. and fem., patient; ويَرْهُو vēṛhū, masc. and fem., quarrelsome.

4) Adjectives ending in ā (ā).

These are comparatively few in number and admit of no change of gender, as: قُاتَا لَقَ dِātā, masc. and fem., liberal; تَالَان tālā, masc. and fem., worried. The greater number of them is indeclinable, as: صَفَا safā, pure (a.); مَفَا fanā, extinct (a.); يَهَال phā, tired; يُهَال يُهَال judā, separate (p.).

5) Adjectives ending in ă.

They admit of no change of gender and are all indeclinable ), as: رَهِيكَ vadhīka, excessive; نَجْنَ suńa, empty, barren; دَهَارَ dhāra, separate, or compounded: خَامَ dhārōdhāra; خَامَ jāla or جَامَ jāra, much; جَامَ jāma, much.

(His i. e. God's) life is with the life of every one; but the aspect is quite different. Sh. Kal. I, 24.

Whose heads (are) a sunder, the trunks separated, the limbs in the caldron. Sh. Kal.  $\Pi$ , 24.

6) Adjectives ending in ī (ĩ).

These remain unchanged in the feminine, as: بَارِي bārī, carrying a burden, masc. and fem.; savādī, savoury, masc. and fem.; some are only used in the feminine.

7) Adjectives ending in e (i).

<sup>1)</sup> Stack exhibits in his Sindhī Grammar the paradigma sakhara and inflects it in the Formative Plural; but in his Dictionary he gives مَعْمَدُ sakharu, which is the proper termination. I have never met with an adjective ending in 'a', inflected in any way, for the cardinal numbers بَنْتَ panja five etc. can hardly be classed under this head.

supreme; خُوشِ xuše (p.), pleasant (generally pronounced short and partly also written شَادِ ); غُشُ šāde (p.), joyful; فَابَرِ barābare (p.), abreast, right; عَبَاءِ bajāe (p.), performed.

The feminine affixes nī, ne, āṇī (yāṇī), āiṇe (yāṇe) are occasionally used with adjectives ending in u, ō, ū, ī, if some inherent quality, habit or occupation of living beings is to be marked out (the details see Chapter VII, §. 14), as: عَرِينِ چهژكَر γαrībiṇe čhōkare, a girl (habitually) humble; سَادهُنِي رَن ṣādhuṇī rana, a (thoroughly) virtuous widow; هژدّيَانِي ڎَاچِي hōḍiyāṇī ḍāčī, an obstinate (female) camel.

We subjoin here a survey of the inflexion of adjectives.

Comparison of adjectives.

The Sindhi, as well as the cognate idioms, has lost the power to form a Comparative and Superlative degree after the manner of the Sanskrit (and Persian) by means of adjective affixes, and it is very remarkable, that the Semitic way of making up for the degrees of comparison has been adopted. In order to express the idea of the Comparative, the object or objects, with which another is to be compared, is put in the Ablative, or, which is the same, the postpositions کھاری khã, manjhā and si-مَنجِهَان , mã مَان , khō كَهُون , khō كهون milar ones (see the Postpositions) are employed, the adjective itself remaining in the Positive. In order to express the idea of the Superlative, the pronominal adjective all is placed before the Ablative. By the Ablative the difference or distance, which exists between the objects compared, is pointed out.

Much sweeter than sweetness, (and) not bitter is the word. Sh. Kal. III, 10.

Numeral adjectives.

§. 22.

The Sindhī possesses a great variety of numeral adjectives.

I. The CARDINAL NUMBERS are:

- ایک hiku; هیکِڙو hiku; هیکِڙو eku; هیکِڙو hikirō; هیکِڙو hēkirō, one.
- ه بَ b̄a, two.
- تري بن trē, three.
- جَارِ عُ čāre, four.
- ه پُنْغَ panja, five.
- ۴ جَيْ čha, or: جَوْيَ čhaha, six.
- v سَتَ sata, seven.
- م atha, eight.
- nãvã, nine.

- أَنَّهُ بَا أَنْهُ بَا أَنْهُ أَهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أَنْهُمُ أ
- ا كَارَهَنْ yārahā; اِكَارَهَنْ ikārahā; كَارَهَنْ kārahā, eleven.
- آ بَارَهَنْ آ bārahã, twelve.
- تيرَهَنْ ١٣ tērahã, thirteen.
- čōḍāhã, fourteen. چُوڌُهُنَ
- بَنْدُهَنْ pandrahā; پَنْدُهَرَانِ pandhrā, fifteen.
- sōrahã, sixteen.
- ıv سَتَرَهَن satrahã, seventeen.
- arahã, eighteen. اَزَّعَنْ
- uṇivīha, nineteen. أُنِويهَ، uṇivā
- vīha, twenty.

Annotation. The Sindhi numerals are all derived from the Sanskrit by the medium of the Prākrit. — Sansk. va, one, Prāk. va: in Sindhī a euphonic h has been preposed, as: hiku (= hikku). When commencing to count the Hindus use to say instead of hiku: بَرْكَهَ barkhu, and the Musalmans: بَرْكَهَ barkhata, invoking thereby a blessing. — Sansk. fa, two, Prak. दो; in Sindhī the crude form dva has been assimilated to vva and thence to ba (= bba). Besides - ba we meet also occasionally the form  $\ddot{\tilde{g}}$ , which has sprung from the Prākrit दोणि. — Sansk. चि, three, Sindhī تري ţrē, whereas the Prāk. form तिरिए has given rise to the Hindūstānī تِين Sansk. चत्र, four, Prāk. चत्रारि; in Sindhī the conjunct tt has again been elided = čāre. — Sansk. पञ्चन, Prāk. पञ्च; in Sindhī (and Panjābī) the tenuis č has been changed into the media j (but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī again pānč). — Sansk. षष्, six; Prāk. छ, as in Sindhī. — Sansk. सप्तन्, seven, Prāk. सत्तः; Sindhī: sata (= satta); Panjābī: satt; but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī: sāt, the conjunct tt being dissolved by lengthening the preceding vowel.— Sansk. স্থাহন, Prāk. স্থাই; Sindhī: aṭha (= aṭṭha); Panjābī: aṭṭh; but Hindūst. and Marāṭhī: āṭh. Sansk. নবন, nine, Prāk. অন্ত: Sindhī: nāvā; Panjābī: nō; Hindūst.: nau; Marāṭhī: nava. — Sansk. दशन, ten, Prāk. दस; Sindhī: daha; Marāṭhī: dahā; Hindūstānī and Panjābī: das.

In Sanskrit the first nine numbers are prefixed to ইয়ন, ten, to form the following nine numerals; but in Prākrit and consequently in Sindhī (as well as in the cognate dialects) they undergo already so great changes, that the way, in which they have been compounded, is at the first sight scarcely recognisable. The Prakrit form दस is in these compounds first changed to दह and thence to रह, as: Prākrit एञ्जारह = Sansk. एका-दशन eleven; Sindhī: yārahā, with elision of k, or without elision of k: ikārahā or kārahā (initial 'i' being dropped). - Prāk. वारह = Sansk. हादशन्, twelve; Sindhī: bārahã. — Prākrit तरह = Sansk. चयोदशन् thirteen; Sindhī: tērahā. - Prākrit चउद्दह = Sansk. चत्रेशन्, fourteen; Sindhī: čodahā. An exception forms the Sindhī: pandrahā or pandhrā, fifteen, the Prākrit form of which is पराण्रह = Sansk. पञ्चदशन, the conjunct nč, which in Prākrit has been assimilated to the cerebral nn, having been changed in Sindhī to nd before the liquida r. Prākrit मोलह(?) = Sansk. षोडश्न (Var. II, 23?), sixteen; Sindhī: sōrahā; Hindūstānī: sōlah. Prākrit सत्तरह(?) = Sansk. सप्तर्शन, seventeen; Sindhī: satrahā; Hindūstānī: satrah. — Prākrit अट्रोह = Sansk. अष्टादशन्, eighteen; Sindhī: arahã, the Prakrit cerebral conjunct the being changed in Sindhi to r (see Introd. §. 7, 2) and assimilating the following dental r, by throwing out the long a; Panjabī: athārā; Hindūstānī: athārah; Marāṭhī (with elision of medial ā): aṭharā. — Sansk. जनविंशति (Prākrit form unknown), one less than twenty (Latin: un-deviginti); Sindhī: uṇīha or uṇivīha; the Sanskrit विंशति twenty, becomes in Prākrit वीसई; thence Sindhī: vīha; in compound numerals the v is generally elided, when preceded by a consonant, as: unīha or univīha; Panjābī: unnī; Hindūstānī: unīs; Marāṭhī: ēkuņīs.

ایکیهٔ قkīha, twenty one.

قَارِيهُ تَارِيهُ تَا bāvīha, twenty two.

بت تريويه trēvīha, twenty three.

دَوْرِيهَ čoviha, twenty four.

الله وَ الله الله panjvīha, twenty five, or: پَجْوِيهَ panjīha.

ř٩ چهُويه čhavīha, twenty six.

rv سَتَاوَيهَ satāvīha, twenty seven.

athāvīha, twenty eight.

uṇaṭrīha, twenty nine.

تریه به trīha, thirty.

Some of the units are lengthened in these compounds, as: إِنَّهُ الْعَلَىٰ satā, لَوَّا aṭhā, but apparently not after a fixed rule. — چَارِ čāre, four, is, when compounded with another numeral, contracted to čō, after a different process of assimilation, حَارِد being first dissolved into ča-ur, and thence into čō, by assimilating the semi-vowel r with the following v. The same is the case in Panjābī, Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī.

ষাই. — سَتْر satare, seventy, makes an exception, final t (Sansk. सप्तत) having been changed to r; the same is the case in Panjābī (sattar), Hindūstānī (sattar) and in Marāṭhī (sattar). — اَسِي asī, eighty, Sansk. अशीत; Panjābī and Hindūstānī assī, but Marāṭhī aisī. — المعرفي navē, ninety (in Lāṛ also نَوْء nōe), Sansk. नवति; Panjābī likewise: navvē; Hindūstānī navē, but Marāṭhī navvad.

تَّ بَتْرِيْهَ baṭrīha, thirty two.

۳۳ تریتریهٔ trēṭrīha, thirty three.

قَوْتَرِيْهَ مَّ خُوْتَرِيْهَ مَّ čōṭrīha, thirty four.

بنْجَتْرِيهِ ه" panjaṭrīha, thirty five.

۳۹ چَهُتْرِيهُ čhaṭrīha, thirty six.

عَتْرِيهِ sataṭrīha, thirty seven.

سم التهترية athatrīha, thirty eight.

سم أنيتَالِيهَ uṇētālīha, thirty nine.

جه چَالِيَّهُ čālīha, fourty.

When خالية is preceded by the units (amongst which must also be numbered un, one less), it is changed to tālīha; but in this case the units require the conjunctive vowel ē, to facilitate the pronunciation. This change of č to t is not yet to be found in the older Prākrit, but seems to belong to a later period of the language. Lassen only mentions (§. 33, 4), that t is occasionally changed to t and č, thence we may conclude, that vice versa č also was liable to be changed to t. The same is the case in the Panjābī (iktālī) and Hindūstānī (iktālīs), but not in Marāṭhī (ēkēčālis).

ایکیتالیه ēkētālīha, forty one.

۴۲ كَابِّيتَالِيهَ bāētālīha, forty two.

۴۳ قریتَالِیهَ trētālīha, forty three.

جه چَوْدُيتَالِيهَ čōētālīha, forty four.

هم يَخْيتَالِيهَ panjetālīha, forty five.

۴۹ چهائیتالیه čhāētālīha, forty six.

به متیتالیه satētālīha, forty seven.

م athētālīha, forty eight.

سباغة به univanjāha, forty nine.

مه ينجَاهَ panjāha, fifty.

panjāha (pronounced also: پَنْجَاهَ panjāhu), when preceded by the units, is, for euphony's sake, changed to وُنْجَاهَ vanjāha the tenuis p being softened to the media b, and thence to v. The same change takes place in the kindred idioms.

اَيكُوَنْجَاهَ اهُ ēkvanjāha, fifty one.

هُ بَاوَخْبَاهَ ، bāvanjāha, fifty two.

trēvanjāha, fifty four. تريونجَاهَ ٣٠ čōvanjāha, fifty three.

panjvanjāha, fifty five. يَجْوَخْجَاهَه هه

دُّاهَ čhavanjāha, fifty six.

مَتُونْجَاهَ satvanjāha, fifty seven.

athvanjāha, fifty eight. ٱَذَّهُونُجَاهَمَ ٨٠

uṇahaṭhe, fifty nine. اُنْهَتْهِ ٥٩

ابه sathe, sixty.

satare, when preceded by the units, are changed, for euphony's sake, to hathe and hatare, initial (and now medial) s being softened to h. The same is the case in Panjābī, but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī the s of sāṭh is retained, whereas that of sattar is softened to h.

ایکهتی قkahathe, sixty one.

ابَاهَتْهِ عُلَّ أَلَّهُ أَنْ أَفَتُهُ عُلَّ أَنَّا أَنْ أَفَتُهُ عُلَّ أَنْ أَفَتُهُ عُلَّ أَنْ أَفْتُهُ عُل

نريهَتي بrēhaṭhe, sixty three.

به چُوْهَتِي čōhaṭhe, sixty four.

له وَالْهُ panjahathe, sixty five.

بهاهَا چهاهَا خبهاه čhāhaṭhe, sixty six.

٩٧ عَنَهَتْ satahathe, sixty seven.

اَ عَهُوَةً aṭhahaṭhe, sixty eight.

uṇahatare, sixty nine. أَنَهَتَر

v. سَتَر satare, seventy.

vı ایکَهَتَرِ ēkahatare, seventy one.

vr بَاهَتْر bāhatare, seventy two.

ريهَتَو trēhatare, seventy three.

vr چُوْهَتَر čōhatare, seventy four.

ره پَنْجَهَتَرِ panjahatare, seventy five.

uṇāsī, seventy nine.

مه آسِي asī, eighty.

The units preceding نَوِي asī and نَوِي navē, are joined to them by the conjunctive vowel ā; the same is the case in the cognate dialects.

ایکاسی آ ēkāsī, eighty one.

مَا يَأْسِي أَنْ biāsī, eighty two.

عبد عبد athānavē, ninety eight.

مَوَانَوْي navānavē, قَوَانَوْي nadhānavē*), aninety nine. vadhānavē, vadhānavē, sau, hundred.

*) We cannot offer a satisfactory explanation of these two curious forms. The corresponding Hindūst. numeral is: ninānavē, the Panjābī naṛinavē. We can understand, how the Panjābī naṛ (nan = nan = naṛ) could be changed in Sindhī to naḍ or naḍh; but we cannot well perceive, that ḍ or ḍh should have been exchanged for a dental ḍ or Annotation. sau is derived from the Sansk. খান, Prāk. মহা; Panjābī sau or sai; Hindūstānī likewise sau or sai; Marāṭhī (in compounds) šē̃; Gujarātī sō.

The numbers above one hundred are commonly formed as in English by placing the lesser number after hundred, as:

When the numeral adjectives of the first series precede the Plural of sau, they must agree with their substantive in number, as:

- ایکا بَه سَوَ (or sā), literally: two hundreds having or possessing one.
- ا بَرَ اَ بَهُ سَوَ For فَا بَوَّا كِهُ سَوَ birā ba sava, two hundred and two. etc. etc. etc.

These numerals are not used in the Formative, as they are only employed in counting. The numerals of the second series remain unaltered, according to their original signification.

The hundreds are regularly made up by the Plural of , as:

r. (سَ or) بَ سَبَ ba sava (or sā) two hundred. trē sava, three hundred. جُورِ سَوَ čāre sava, four hundred. panja sava, five hundred. ٠٠٠ جَهَ خَهُ cha sava, six hundred. v·٠٠ سَتَ sata sava, seven hundred. منه سَوَ atha sava, eight hundred. منون سَو nãvã sava, nine hundred. lakhu, one hundred thousand. r..... بَد لَكَهَ ba lakha, two hundred thousand. أَنَّهُ لَكَهُ لَكُمُ اللهُ أَنْهُ لَكُمُ اللهُ أَنْهُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَا أَ ten millions (one hundred lakhs). خوراً لا أَنْهُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَكُمُ لَا أَنْهُ اللهُ الل تَبَ كِروْزِ ba kirōre, twenty millions. أَبَ كُوْرَا لَهُ لَهُ كُوْرًا أَنْ أَنْ الْعَالَى الْعَلَى الْعَلِي الْعَلَى الْعَلِي الْعَلَى الْعَلِي الْعَلَى arbu, one thousand millions (one hundred karōṛs). kharbu, one hundred thousand millions (one hundred arbs).

بنیل nīlu, ten billions (one hundred kharbs).

آڏھ	ațha, eight;	22	"	-	athane.
	nãvã, nine;	77	"		nãvane.
ڎٛۿ	daha, ten;	"	22	ڎؘۿؘؘۛڡؘؚ	đahane.

The following numerals, from eleven-eighten, throw final Anusvāra off in the Formative Plural and drop the short a, preceding h, as;

يَارُهَنَ yārhane. يَارُهَنَ yārhane. يَارُهَنَ yārhane. يَارُهَنَ yārhane. يَارُهَنَ bārahā, twelve; "" " يَرَهَنَ tērahā, thirteen; " " يَرَهَنَ tērhane. دَيْرُهَنِ čōḍaha, fourteen; " " چُوژُهَنِ čōḍhane. يَدْدُهَنَ pandraha, fifteen; " " يَدُدُهَنُ pandhrā, pandhrā, پئدهران vīha, twenty; " " vīhane.

Those numerals, which end in ě (ĭ) and ē, are not capable of inflexion, as: سَتْرِ saṭhe, sixty; مَتْرِ saṭare, seventy; أَسِى navē or نَوْءِ noe, ninety; but أَسِى asī, eighty, makes the Format. Sing. أَسِى asia.

sa-u, hundred; is inflected, as follows:

Nom. غَسَّ sau; غَسَ sava, or contracted لَسَ sā.
Format. غَسَ sava; سَوْنِ savae; سَوْنِ savae, سَانِ savae, سَوْنِ savē, شَوْدِين savē, عَمْدِين

The cardinal numbers, chiefly the decimal ones, are also used as collective numbers, and in this case they are inflected according to their respective terminations, e. g. تَجُون تُعُون trē dahū, three tens, Formative تَجُون ثُعُن trine dahune; چَارِ سَتَعِمُون navē forms the Plural نَوِيمُون navēū, Format. نَوِيمُون navēune. When used in a collective sense these numerals are mostly put in the Formative Plural ending in ē, as: رِيهِين vīhē, in scores; سَوِين savē, in hundreds, سَهَسِين sahásē, in thousands.

When a noun in the Formative Plural takes the termination ne or ē, the preceding numeral, like all other adjectives, must take the same too, or: قُعُنِ ويرِن كهي to ten enemies, or: قُعِين ويرِئين كهي and قري do not admit of a Formative in ē, but make it ī, as: bī, بين trī; of چَئِين there is a Formative as well in ī as in ē; چَئِين čaī or: چَئِين čaē; but the Formatives bī, ṭrī, čaī are also used with Formatives of nouns ending in ne.

The emphatic ī (hī) may also be affixed to the cardinal numbers to express completeness or intensity, as: بِنْهِنِ b̄aī or: بِنْهِنِ b̄ēī, all two = both, Formative Plural: بِنْهِنِ b̄inhī or: بِنْهِنِ b̄inhine, بِنْهِنِ b̄inhinī. تربْهِنِ trinhī or: تربْهِنِ trinhī or: تربْهِنِ trinhī; or: تربْهِنِ trinhī or: تربْهِنِ trinhī; or: تربْهِنِ trinhī, all three, Formative plural: تربْهِنِ trinhinī. تربْهِنِ čāraī or: تربْهِنِ čārēī, all three, Formative plural: تربُهِنِ čārēī, all three, Formative plural: تربُهِنِ čārēī, all three, Formative plural: تربُهِنِ čainī. تربُهِنِ čainī, all eight, Formative plural: تُهْفِنِي aṭhanī, etc.

The cardinal numbers, from two upwards generally require their substantive in the Plural; but they may also be constructed with the Singular, after the manner of the Persian. Sau, hazāru, sahásu, lakhu etc., being properly substantives, are either constructed with the Genitive Plural of the following substantive, or they have the same coordinated in the Plural. The numerals preceding a substantive may either be inflected according to the termination of the substantive or they may remain uninflected; when two or more numerals precede a substantive, the last only is inflected.

Do not forget the words; in youth there are two, three short days. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, Epil.

II. ORDINAL NUMBERS.

arhō, the eighteenth. uṇīhō, the nineteenth. vīhō, the twentieth. وَيكِيهِوْنِ ēkīhō, the twenty first. تَاوِيهُوْن bevīhō, the twenty second. etc. etc. trīhō, the thirtieth. čālīhō, the fortieth. ينْجَاهوري panjāhō; the fiftieth. sathyō, the sixtieth. sataryō, the seventieth. asyỗ, the eightieth. naviyỗ, نَوِيوْن naviyỗ, the ninetieth. saviyō, سَوِيوْن saviyō, the hundredth. sai-õ,

Of compound numbers only the last takes the form of the ordinal and is inflected, as:

hiku sau peheryõ, the one hundred and first.

بَه سَوِيوْن ba saviyō, the two hundredth.

ba sā biō, the two hundred and second.

hazārō,

the thousandth.

sahásō,

Annotation. The ordinals are regularly derived from the Prākrit; پهريژن peheryo, the first, though, has not followed the traces of the Prākrit (= UZH), but taken its own course of assimilation; Sansk. प्रथम, thence: pahama; the m of pahama has been changed in a rather unusual way to I (r), pahala, pahara, thence the Sindhī: paharyo or peheryo. Hindust. and Panjābī: pahilā, Marāṭhī likewise: pahilā. بِمُوْ biō, the second, points back to the Prākrit वीस्र (shortened from विदिस्र), and the other form إيجوو bījō, corresponds to the Prāk. दुइजा. قرئو trio, the third, coincides with the Prakrit 713, with this difference, that original r has been preserved in Sindhī. čōthō, the fourth, Prākrit चड़; the original dental (th) has been preserved in Sindhī. The following ordinals are all regularly derived from the cardinals, by adding the affix ocorresponding to the Sansk. affix 74, which has in Sindhi been changed to  $\tilde{o}$  by the elison of t (compare: Introd. §. 9). In Hindustani and Panjabi tama has been similarly changed to va, in Marathi to va; the Gujarati has preserved the affix mo, and the Bangālī even the whole affix tam.

§. 25.

Inflexion of the ordinals.

The ordinals are regularly inflected as adjectives according to their respective terminations:

SINGULAR.

	Masculine.			Feminine.
Nom.	ڽۿؚڒ۠ؽۉڹ	peheryō.		پهِرين	peherī.
Nom. Format.	ڽؘؚۿؚڒۛۑڽ	peher e .		ڕؚۘۿؚڔؚۘڬٙ	peherĩa.
Vocat.	ڽؚۿؚڒؽٵڹ	peheryā.		ڽؚۿؚڔۣؾؽ	peherī.

PLURAL.

On the twenty first (date) self was forgotten to (= by) the lover;

Consciousness became hidden with the beloved on the twenty second. Maj. 518, 519.

On the eleventh day the kindness of the Bērāgīs returned. Sh. Rāmak.  $\Pi$ , 11.

The date of the year is not expressed by the ordinals, but by the cardinals:

مَاهَ مُبَارَکَ رَمَضَانَ جِي سَنَاوِيهِنئَ سَارِي قَدَرِ رَاتِ قِصَّو پُنو ثِينْهِ اَنگَارِي قَدَّو پُنو ثِينْهِ اَنگَارِي اِكَارَهَنْ سَا چهَٿرِيهَ هِجْرَتَ هو سَنُّ عَارِفَنِ جِي عِشْقَ جو فَاضِلَ جوْزِيْو فَنُّ عَارِفَنِ جِي عِشْقَ جوْ فَاضِلَ جوْزِيْوْ فَنُّ عَارِفَنِ جِي عِشْقَ جوْ فَاضِلَ جوْزِيْوْ فَنُّ

On the twenty seventh of the blessed month of Ramazān, according to calculation,

In the night of power the story was completed, on a Tuesday.

It was the year of the Hijrat eleven hundred thirty six (= A. D. 1724, 8th June).

By Fāzil was composed the science of the love of the wise ones (i. e. Sūfīs). Maj. 829.

§. 26.

III. ARITHMETICAL FIGURES.

The arithmetical figures or names of the numbers are expressed by adjectives, which are formed by adding the adjective affix ō to the cardinal numbers; some few have also, in order to distinguish the arithmetical figures from the ordinals, the affix kō.

i ekō, هکؤ hikō, containing the number 'one'; the number or figure 'one'.

bikō, بكؤ the number 'two'. trikō, تركؤ 'three'. 22 " čaūkō, چَوْنكؤ 'four'. 22 panjō, " 'five'. " خهَكُوْ čhakō, 'six'. 22 عَنْدُ satō, 'seven'. 22 athō, آڏهڙ 'eight'.

```

                            'ninety'.
  saviyō, "
                            'hundred'.

They are regularly inflected as adjectives ending in ō; نرکی کھاں پڑھ چَوْنکو تھو لَگِی after the number three comes the number four.

§. 27.

IV. COLLECTIVE NUMBERS.

We have noticed already (§. 22), that the cardinal numbers may also be employed as collective numbers; but the Sindhī possesses also a peculiar kind of numerals, which express an aggregate sum; these are:

sāṭhīkō, the sum of sixty, about sixty.

They are properly adjectives, formed by the affixes kō (§. 10, 24) and ārō, as: قَهَاكُوْ أَهُمَاكُوْ أَهُمَاكُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْالُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْاكُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُوْ يَعْارُونُ يَعْالُونُ يَعْالُونُ يَعْارُونُ يَعْالُونُ يَعْالِمُونُ يَعْالُونُ يَعْلِيْ يَعْلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِي كُلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِيْكُونُ يَعْلِيْكُونُ

To express more distinctly the indefiniteness of such a number, the adverb کهن khanu (literally: piece, portion, Sansk. ख्राड) is added to them as well as to the cardinal numbers; e. g. وهارو کهن vihārō khanu, about twenty.

َ يُنْجَ هَزَارَ كَهَنُ مُوْسَ هُمًّا

They were about five thousand men. Matth. 14, 21.

خُوْنكُو čaūku, چَوْنكِڙِي čaūkirī, the sum of four, kōrī, a score, are only used substantively, the latter generally in the Formative Plural کوڙي kōrễ, in scores, as:

In thousands are the thanksgivings, in scores the favours of the kind one (i. e. God). Sh. Sur $\bar{a}\bar{g}$  I, Epil. 1.

saikiṛō, a hundred, is only used when speaking of interest, expressing our "per cent", as: آدهاريم المعارفية المعار one hundred having one above it, i. e. one per cent;

two per cent. بِروْتِروْ سَوُّ three per cent. تَرِروْتِروْ سَوُّ etc. etc.

Of the same kind are the compound adjectives, such as: رُوْنُوْ (سَوُّ) čauāno (sau), one hundred having four Annas, i.e. 4 Annas per cent; (سَوُّ tṛripāṇyō (sau), one hundred having three quarters of a rupee, i. e. at three quarters of a rupee per cent, etc. When مِتِي mitī (interest) is used, ثِينَّ هُوْتِرِي مِتِي مِتِي, interest of one and a half.

§. 28.

V. PROPORTIONAL NUMBERS.

The numerals denoting 'fold', are:

هيكُونو hēkūṇō, single. بِينْوَ بَينُو ِ b̄ɪṇō, } twofold. trīṇō, threefold. čaūņō, خَمُونْوْ čauņō, bourfold. panjūņō, fivefold. čhahūnō, sixfold. satūnō, sevenfold. athūṇō, eightfold. naūnō, ninefold. دُهُونَةِ dahūnō, tenfold. yārhūṇō, elevenfold. bārhūṇō, twelvefold. tērhūṇō, thirteenfold. čōḍhūṇō, fourteenfold. pandhrūṇō, fifteenfold. sōrhūṇō, sixteenfold. satrahūṇō, seventeenfold. arhūṇō, eighteenfold. ūṇīhūṇō, nineteenfold. vīhūṇō, twentyfold.

ايكِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ نَالِيهُونوْ panjāhūņō, fiftyfold. sathyūņō, sixtyfold. sataryūņō, seventyfold. sayūņō, eightyfold. inavēūņō, ninetyfold. saūņō, hundredfold.

In the same way the affix uno (cf. §. 10, 28) is added to the fractional numbers, as:

adhūṇō, one half-fold.

savāūṇō, one (or a certain sum) and a quarter-fold.

چَينَّهُ هُودُو d̄ed̄hūṇō, one and a half-fold.

aḍ̄hāūṇō, two and a half-fold.

When he has been brought over by you, then you make him twofold more a child of hell, than yourselves. Matth. 23, 15.

Other seeds fill upon good land; these brought forth fruit, some hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold. Matth. 13, 8.

§. 29.

VI. REDUPLICATIVE NUMBERS.

The numeral adverbs, denoting reduplication, are.

The further reduplicatives are commonly made up by the cardinals with the nouns وَارِوْ vārō, يَنْكُوْ or يُغِيرُوْ (linō).

Annotation. The affix (a), or shortened (a), has taken its origin from the Sansk. All, Hindustānī: bārah, Panjābī: vārī; in Sindhī v has been elided and euphonic h inserted.

VII. FRACTIONAL NUMBERS.

The fractional numbers are of two kinds; they are either substantives or adjectives;

a) substantives are:

رُقْهُ خُوتُهُ خُوتُ خُوت

پَاءِ pāu, a quarter; Plur. پَاءِ pāva or پَاءِ pā. trihāī, a third. تَرهَائِي adhu, a half.

savāī, one and a quarter; a quarter more (than the whole).

sāḍhu, one half more (than the specified sum). قَيتُهُ مِّ d̄ēḍhe, one and a half. مَا تُوْمَا

b) adjectives are:

savā, one quarter more (than the whole). sāḍhā, one half more (than the whole).

دِّيتٌهُ d̄ēḍhu, one and a half.

aḍhāī, two and a half.

sansk. चतुर्थोग्न, Hindūstānī cauth, cauthāī; in the same way is derived from the Sansk. नित्रीयांग्न, Hindūstānī tihāī. نهائي is derived from the Sansk. नित्रीयांग्न, Hindūstānī tihāī. خائي corresponds to the Sansk. पाट, Hindūstānī pāō; the adjective پهنائي has sprung from the Sansk. adj. पाट्रोन, Hindūst. paunā, Marāṭhī pāūṇ; the origin of مُنوْ is doubtful. العني is substantive and adjective at the same time, Sansk. العني are derived from the Sansk. चपाट, having a quarter, Hindūst. and Marāṭhī: savā; مائي and the adjective سَادَهِ اللهُ اللهُ

sāṛhē. ژيڙهِ and the adjective ژيڙهِ are apparently derived from an unusual Sansk. compound चि + श्रार्ड, having three halves, Hindūst. dēṛh, Panjābī deḍh, Marāṭhī dīḍ. اَدْهَادِي has drawn its origin from the Sansk. श्राह्डेडए, Hindūst. aṛhāī, Panjābī dhāī, Marāṭhī adīts.

In reference to the use of these fractional numbers it is to be observed, that مُنو رُوپَيو is generally used with units, and مُنو رُوپَيو with two, three etc., as: مُنو رُوپَيو, a rupee wanting a quarter = three quarters of a rupee; two rupees wanting a quarter = one rupee and three quarters; پُونُو سَوُ one hundred wanting a quarter = 75. مَنو سَوَا سِيرُ مَا سَوَا س

is not inflected in the Singular, nor in the Nominative Plural, but it has a Formative Plural masc., viz.: سَوَائِينِ savāine, سَوَائِينِ savāyane or: سَوَائِينِ savāyane or: سَوَائِينِ savāyune; but generally it is not inflected at all, e.g.: سَوَا چَئِينِ مَنْنِ سِين with four maunds and a quarter or: سَوَا چَئِينِ مَنْنِ سِين سَيْن سِين مَنْنِ مَنْنِ سِين مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مَانِ مَنْنِ مَنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِيْنِ مِنْنِيْنِ مِنْنِيْنِ مِنْنِيْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِ مِنْنِيْنِ مِنْنِيْن أَدُفُ adhu, half, is a common adjective and used accordingly.

sāḍhā, adding one half, is only used with nouns of number subsequent to 'two', and therefore ever found in the Plural; its fem. is سَاقْهِيُونِ sādhiyū.

تَثِهِن سَادَهَا نَنْوَن سِيرَ سِنْدُرَ تُرَارِي توري

Then she weighs with a balance nine sērs and a half of read lead. Maj. 320.

دُينَّهُ وَينَّهُ وَينَّهُ وَلِينَّهُ وَلِينَّهُ وَلِينَّهُ وَاللهِ وَاللّهُ وَاللّهُ وَاللّهُ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّهِ وَاللّه a han.

القَالِي adhāī, two and a half, is only used in the Plural, without distinction of gender in the Nominative; in the Formative Plural it makes for the Masc. اَدْهَادِي adhāine, اَدْهَادِي adhāine, اَدْهَادِي adhāine, اَدْهَادِي adhāine, اَدْهَادِي مَطْهَادُي adhāine, اَدْهَادِي عَلَم adhāine, الدَّهَادِي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَم عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَم عَلَي عَلَي عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَي عَلَي عَلَي عَلَي عَلَي عَلَم عَلَي عَلَي

From these fractional numbers another kind of adjectives has been derived, implying "consisting of, computed at such a rate, standing in such a relation", as:

pāṇyō or پَائِيَکُ pāṇyaku, only used in the compound: تَرِپَائِيکُ or: تَرِپَائِيکُ, computed at at three quarters of a rupee.

pāō, compounded with cardinal numbers, as: تري پَائوْ , consisting of three quarters.

savāyō, computed at 1½. غيڭھۇ d̄ēḍhō, consisting of 1½.

تُويَّدُهُ أَوْنِ أَوْلَمُ d̄ēḍhuỗ, standing in the 1½ place.

اَدْهَايوْ aḍhāyō, consisting of 21/2.

aḍhāō, standing in the 21/2 place.

These are used as common adjectives and inflected and constructed accordingly.

The other fractional numbers may be made up by compositions, as:

اَوهُ پَاءُ adhu pāu
$$= \frac{1}{8}$$
. أَوهُ پَاءُ  $\bar{q}$ ēḍhu pāu  $= \frac{3}{8}$ .  $\bar{b}$ a ṭrihāī  $= \frac{2}{3}$ .  $\bar{b}$ a ṭrihāī  $= \frac{2}{3}$ .  $\bar{b}$ a etc. etc. etc.

Fractions with special application are:

pāiṛī, the quarter of a پَادِّرِي (yard). لَغَمْ lārī, one third of a rupee.

adhēlī, أدهيلي half a rupee piece. ādhiō,

Chapter XI.

Pronouns.

§. 31.

The personal pronoun is in Sindhī of two kinds: it is either used as an absolute pronoun or as a suffix, acceding to nouns, adverbs or verbs.

I. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

The Sindhī has a personal pronoun only for the first and second person Singular and Plural, the third person is made up by means of demonstrative pronouns. A remnant of the old (now lost) personal pronoun of the third person has been preserved in the pronominal suffix of the third person, as we shall see hereafter.

1) The personal pronoun of the first person.

There are two forms in common use for the first person Singular, آنَّهُ قَلْبُونِ ۾ُ قَلْ قَلْ , and shortened مَانِ ā; besides these مَانِ mã or مُونِ mũ are also dialectically used in Sirō.

The great deterioration of the language is strikingly illustrated by the present forms of the absolute pronouns. The Prākrit form is অहं or অह्यं (Sansk. अहं); but in the corrupted Apabhranša dialect, the mother of the modern Sindhī, we meet already the form ह3ं, from ह4 (by elision of H), from which the Sindhī āũ has drawn its origin (Lassen, §. 183); the other form ā has been simply contracted from अहं. The two other forms mã and mũ are originally the Accusative, Sanskrit Hi (Prākrit shortened H), and are still used as the Formative Singular.

The Genitive مُنْهُنُ mũhũ or مُنْهُنُ mũhẽ, with the adjective affix جَوْ jō, is to be referred to the Prākrit Genitive मह (Sansk. मम), Apabhranša मह (Lassen §. 183), the vowels being nasalized in Sindhī.

The Nominative Plural is آسِين asī, Prākrit अम्हें (Sansk. root अस); in Sindhī m has been elided and final ē changed to ī (= ĩ); the Formative اَسَان asã corresponds to the Prākrit Genitive Plural ऋम्हांग्र (Sansk. ऋसाकं).

Annotation. In the cognate dialects the Accusative has similarly been used for the Nominative; Marāṭhī mī (inferior Prākrit dialect ���, Lassen §. 183, 2), Formative ma (Prākrit Genitive ���); Hindūstānī maĩ, Formative mujhē or mujh (Prākrit Genitive ���); Panjābī: maĩ, Formative maĩ; but Gujarātī: hū, Formative ma. In the Plural the Marāṭhī has in the Nominative āhmī, in the Formative āhmã; the Hindūstānī ham, Formative ham or hamõ; the Panjābī asē, Formative asā; the Gujarātī hamē or hamō, Formative ham or hamō.

Inflexion of the first personal pronoun.

آن قَلَّ or آَ aَ, I. SINGULAR.

Genit. مُون جو mũhũ jō; مُون جو mũhẽ jō; مُون جو mũ jō; مُون جو jō; مُون جو mũ jō; مُون جو

Dative. Accus. مرن كهي mt khē; مأن كهي mã khē.

مَان كَهَان سَوْنَهَان muk hā or مُون كَهَان كَهَان كَهَان كَهَان مُون كَهَان كَهَان أَسْتُلُمُان أَسْتُلُمُ أَن

PLURAL.

Nom. آسِین asī, we.

Format. اَسَانُهُونِ asā̃; اَسَانُهُونِ asā̃hē̃; اَسَانُهُونِ asā̃hū̃.

Genit. أَسَانُهِن جوْ asā̃ jō, أَسَان جوْ asā̃hē jō.

Dative. مَانْهِن كهي asā khē; اَسَان كهي asāhē khē.

Ablat. اَسَان كهَان asā khā etc.

If they have been seen by you, for God's sake tell (me). After them my eyes weep night and day. Sh. Hus. X, 22.

By no means I shall give up my friend till the day of resurrection. Sh. Kēḍ. IV, Epil.

Kāzī, why doest thou beat me, having seen me ill, o friend! Maj. 251.

Even before me all would have perhaps slided down (into the river) having taken their jars. Sh. Suh. I, 4.

She in bashful before God and faithful towards us. Maj. 671.

Our love flows excessively with our sweethearts. Maj. 675.

2) The personal pronoun of the second person.

The pronoun of the second person is تُون tû, which points rather to the Sansk. नं, than to the Prāk. नुम; the Formative and Instrumentalis تُنْهُن tō is derived from the Prāk. Instrum. नुए; the Genitive تُنْهُن tũhũ or تُنْهُن etc.) corresponds to the Apabhranša Genitive नुहं.

The Plural of this pronoun presents a great variety of forms, as: تَثِين tavhĩ, تَوْيِن tavñ, تَوْيِن tavĩ; or: وَهِين avhī (avhē), اَوْهِين avē, اَوْهِين ahĩ, اَثِين at̃, آئِين آئِين آئِين.

The forms tavhĩ etc. have been derived from the Prākrit Nom. Plural TI, tū having been changed to tav, and m elided. The forms avhĩ, ahĩ etc. are very remarkable. As initial t is never elided, they cannot well be derived from tavhĩ etc. It is therefore very probable, that these forms are to be referred to the Sansk. Plural TI Prāk. TI, and with elision of initial y, umhē; in Sindhī 'u' has been changed to 'av' and m elided, as in tavhĩ.

The Formative تَوْهَان tavhã, وَهَان avhã corresponds to the Prāk. Genitive Plural क्रम्हाणं.

Annotation. The cognate dialects agree in all essential points with the Sindhī. Marāṭhī: tū, Formative tū or tūja (Prākrit nē or nē, Nom. Plural tuhmī and Formative tuhmā. Hindūstānī: tū or taĩ; Genitive tē-rā (mē-rā), rā being used in this instance to form a pronominal adjective; the Formative tujh is properly the Prākrit Genitive nā, and the Instrumentalis tū coincides with the Sindhī tō. The Nomin. Plural tum is shortened from the Prākrit nē, and the forms tumhā (tumhā-rā), tumhō, tumh point back to the Prākrit Genitive Plural nē, Formative taĩ (Prākrit Genitive nā). Nom. Plural: tusĩ, Formative: tusā. Gujarātī: tũ, Genitive: tāhā-rō, Formative ta; Nom. Plural: tamē or tamō, Formative tam or tamō.

Inflexion of the second personal pronoun.

After my friend (is gone) I talk over with you my misfortunes. Sh. Hus. VI, 5.

II. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

§. 32.

1) The proximate demonstrative pronoun is هِي hī, هِي hē or هِي hīu (also pronounced: هِي hiu); in Lāṛ initial h is commonly dropped, as: إِلِي ī, إِلِي ē, إِلِي īu. The base of this pronoun is ī (cf. Bopp §. 360 sqq.); in the Formative another pronominal base is substituted, i-na, (Bopp §. 369; compare also the inflexion of दूरम् 'this' in Sansk.).

Annotation. The Marāṭhī form of this demonstrative is hā, Formative: yā (Prākrit স্থায় = Sansk. স্থায়); Hindūstānī: yeh, Formative: is (Sansk. স্থায়); Plural: yē, Formative: in. Panjābī: ih, Formative: is, Instrument.: in; Plural: ih, Formative: inā.

Inflexion of the proximate demonstrative.

Genit. اِنْهَنِ جُوْ inhane jō etc.

Ablat. اِنْهَنِ كَهَان inhane khã etc.

The emphatic ī may also be added to this pronoun, to point the object out with still greater distinctness, as: المَا أَعُونِي ihōī, this very same person, fem. المُونِي ihēī; Format. النّهني ihēī; Format. النّهني inhēī; Plur. النّهني inhēī; Format. النّهيني inhēī; Format.

Even this is the cause of the Lord, that he draws forth the drowned ones from the eddy. Sh. Surā $\bar{g}$ . II, 16.

The lovers, says Abd-ul-Latīf, have fallen into this very reflection. Sh. Kal. I, 8.

Even these are the works of God; otherwise who wouldstep down into the whirlpools? Sh. Suh. VI, 13.

3) The demonstrative pronoun jest ijhō, 'this one present' is only used in the Nom. Sing. and Plural. It is apparently compounded of the base 'i' and the Sansk. pronoun \(\mathbb{H}:\), s being now and then changed in Sindhī to j, and even to jh (see: Introduction §. 11, 2).

SINGULAR.

They come here; the faqīrs have been made tawny by the Kāk (river). Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō II, 3.

4) The remote demonstrative pronoun is hā hā or shō, in Lār pronounced shō, in constraint, but in hō, in Lār pronounced shō, in constraint, but in Prākrit a remnant of it has been preserved in the Genitive latest. Its theme must have been (according to Bopp, Comp. Gramm. §. 341) sva, from which 'hu' has been regularly formed. Its inflection quite agrees with that of shō, only hu (u) being substituted instead of 'hi' in the Formative.

Annotation. The Marāṭhī does not know this pronominal base; it only uses tō, corresponding to the Sindhī sō. In Panjābī we find uh, Instrum. un, and Formative us, Plur. uh, Formative unā. The Hindūstānī uses: woh, Formative us; Plural wē, Format. un (Hinduī: wah, Formative vā; Plur. wē, Formative: un). The Gujarātī, like the Marāthī, has only the theme tē.

III. THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

The relative pronoun in Sindhī is بَ بِّقَ, 'who', 'what', Sansk. यो, Prāk. जो; the Formative Singular بَنْهِنِ jāhē corresponds to the Prākrit Genitive जस्स = जह, the vowels having been nasalized in Sindhī. The Nom. Plural is إِنَّ jē, as in Prākrit जो, and the Formative بَنْهِ jine or جَنِ jane points to the Prākrit Genitive Plur. जाए, ā having been shortened in Sindhī.

Annotation. The cognate dialects do not differ essentially from the Sindhī; Marāṭhī: Sing. jō, Plur. jē; Gujarātī: Sing. jē, Plural jēō; Hindūst.: Sing. jō or jau; Formative jis; Plur. jō, Formative jin or jinh; Panjābī: jō, Instrum. jin, Formative jis; Plur. jō, Format. jinā, Bangālī: jē or jine, Formative jāhā (Prāk. जास); Plur. jāhā-rā.

Genit. جُن جو jane jō etc.

Dative. جَن كَهِي jane khē etc.

Accus. جَن كَهِي jane khē; جي jē.

Ablat. كَهَان jane khã etc.

In poëtry the emphatic ī very frequently is added to the Formative Sing. and Plur. of this pronoun, as: Format. Sing. جَنْهِين jañī; Format. plur. جَنْهِين janī (also written جَنْهِين janī), خَنْهِين janī (to be well distinguished from the Format. Sing.)

That, which is the spittle of Punhū, of that will I lick a drop. Sh. Sah. II, Epil. 2.

The mountaineer, for whose sake I have spun, is gone to Kēč. Sh. Hus. III, 8.

Those drink draughts, whose heads are devoted. Sh. Jam. Kal. II, 25.

§. 34.

IV. THE CORRELATIVE PRONOUN.

The pronoun عن sō is nearly always used as the correlative of جَوْ; it is seldom found isolated, in which case it retains its original signification 'that'. It corresponds to the Sansk. pronoun स:, Prāk. सो. The Formative Sing. تَنْهِن tāhē is derived from the Prāk. Genitive तस (Sansk. तस) = तह; the Nom. Plur. عن sē differs so far from the Sanskrit and Prākrit (त), as having retained the base of the Singular; the Formative Plural عن tane is to be referred to the Prāk. Genitive ताय, ā having been shortened, as in जाय.

Annotation. All the kindred idioms know this pronoun; Marāṭhī: tō, Plur. tē; Gujarātī likewise: tē, Plur. tēō; Hindūst.: sō or taun, Formative tis; Nom. Plur. sō or taun, Formative tin, tinh or tinhō. Panjābī: sō, Instrument. tin, Formative tis; Plur. sō, Formative tinā. Bangālī: sē, Formative tāhā, Plur. tāhā-rā.

§. 35.

V. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1) The interrogative pronoun کیڑ kēru, who?

This pronoun is only used absolutely. The Nominative base हें kēru is derived from the Sanskrit कीहरा, Prāk. किस्स (see Introduction §. 2, 6); but the Formative Singular کُنْهِ لَهُ الْهُ اللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ ال

Annotation. The cognate idioms fall back on the Sansk. base क: (i. e. on the Accus. Sing. कं), as Marāṭhī and Gu-jarātī: kōṇ; Hindūst.: kaun, Format. kis; Plural kaun, Format.

kin, kinh, kinhō; Panjābī: kauņ, Instrument. kin, Format. kis; Plural kaun, Formative kinā. Bangālī: kē, Formative kāhā; Plural kāhā-rā.

Who is the brahman woman? whose (Genit. Plur.) is she? who knows her? Sh. Mast. I, 14.

Who have they been? wither are they gone? of what class have they been? Maj. 659.

2) The interogative pronoun chā, what?

This pronoun is only used in a neuter sense and has no Plural. The Genitive چهَا جَوْ čhā jō etc. signifies: of what sort, of what kind? With the postpositions khē, كهُان kāṇe, كهُان khā, it signifies: what for? to what purpose? why? — It is derived from the Sansk.

Annotation. The Hindūstānī uses kiā, the Panjābī kī and kiā, Format. kās; the Marāṭhī kāy (Formative kasā); Bangālī: ki, Format. kāha. Hinduī: kahā, Format. kāhē.

If the savour of the salt goes, whit what shall it be salted? Matth. 5, 13.

3) The interrogative pronoun كؤڤر kōhu, what?

This pronoun is only used in a neuter sense, just as the preceding one, and is indeclinable. If signifies very frequently 'why', 'what for'. In poëtry it is occasionally shortened to 'kuhu.

As to its derivation it is identical with  $(= k\bar{a}, kah\bar{a})$ ,  $\bar{a}$  having been changed to  $\bar{o}$  in this instance. The same is also the case in Hinduī, where kaun, who? makes the Formative either in  $k\bar{a}$ ,  $k\bar{o}$ he or  $k\bar{a}$ he.

I have been made alive by remembering (him); what will he do to me having met (me)? Sh. Suh. IV, 7.

Why do the vacillating ones talk of strong wine? Sh. Kal. II, 25.

4) The interrogative pronouns كِيهِوْ kēhō, kehārō and كُيهُورْ kujāṛō, what? which?

These three interrogative pronouns may either be used absolutely or adjectively with a substantive. Instead of كيهر kēhō the form كيهر kēō is also used in Lāṛ; لهُورُو kēharō may also be written كِهُر kĕharō or it may be contracted to كيره kērhō; about their derivation see Introd. §. 2, 6. They are inflected regularly. The Dative Sing. of كَجَازِي كهي, i. e. كَجَازِي كهي kujāṛē khē and the Ablative of the fem. Sing. كَجَازِي كهي is generally used as an interrogative adverb, 'why?' 'what for?'

In which wise wilt thou, o afflicted one! pass (thy time) without the bountiful? Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 16.

What has happened to Qais? having come they speak thus. Maj. 39.

Why has thy own state been made by thee thus? Maj. 655.

§. 36.

VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

1) The indefinite pronoun 36 kō, any one; some one.

The root of this indefinite pronoun is the same as that of the interrogative (Sansk. a)sfu); the Formative Sing. and Plural is therefore identical in both pronouns.

SINGULAR.

پُخ kō; fem. لأ kā. Nom. Format. كَنْهِن kāhē, com.

Genit. كَنْهِن جو kãhẽ jō etc.

Dative. كَنْهِن كَهِي kāhē khē.

Accus. كُنْهِن كَهِي kāhē khē. كُنْهِن كَهْي kō; kā.

Ablat. كَنْهِن كَهَان kāhē khā.

PLURAL.

I do not other (work) for any, even his I am. Sh. Um. Mār. VII, 5.

The emphatic form of this pronoun is also in frequent use:

SINGULAR.

Nom. كَوْئِي kōī, any one; fem. كَوْئِي kāī. Format. كَنْهِين

PLURAL.

Nom. كِنِيْنِ kēī, or كَئِين kaĩ, نَئِين kãĩ. Format. كَنْهِين kanī or كَنْهِين kanhĩ.

Because there will be at the door of my friends some (= several) longing like me. Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, Epil.

To some, some men some (peculiar) knowledge has been allotted. Sh. Sör. I, 17.

Instead of the emphatic form of this pronoun kō may also be repeated:

Some reproach of the liquor-seller (fem.) has fallen upon their gall-bag. Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 18.

A neuter form of کِي is کِي kī, something, a little; it is not inflected.

With hard labour scoop a little out the heart from the sugar-cane. Golden Alphab. VI, 8.

With a negation کو signifies: no one, nobody, and کي kī: nothing; for emphasis' sake they are frequently reduplicated, in which case the negation is put between them, as: کو ذه کو kō na kō, nobody at all, کو ذه کی ده کی داد ک

In this time that one is a good comrade

Who has no children, no buffalo calf, no son and no fortune;

Nothing in his bundle, nothing in his lap, no blanket, no sack,

A rope, at the bottom old and at the top broken, and no place whatever to live in. Golden Alphab. VII.

Not any one from thy family will be thy companion from hence. Mēnghō 3.

when و is followed by the auxiliary verb قوي āhe (is) with a negation, a contraction takes places, as: kōnhē (instead of: کو نه آهي) there is nobody (m.), كَوْنْهِيكُوْ kānhe (f.); كَوْنْهِيكُوْ kōnhēkō, there is nobody at all (m.), كَينْهِيكِي kanhēkā (f.); كِينْهِيكِي kīhēkī, there is nothing at all.

2) The compound indefinite pronoun jēkō, whoever.

The original form of this pronoun is وَوَكُو joko, fem. إَجَاكَا jākā, which alone is in use in the Formative Sing. and Plural, in the Nominative Sing. and Plural however the form jēkō preponderates; it is composed of جي jē, if, and کو kō, literally: if any one. جوْجوْ the reduplicated relative جوْجوْ jōjō (and as its correlative سؤسو sōsō) is likewise in use; it is inflected in the same way as the single جۇ (or سۇ).

The neutral form of this pronoun, جِيكِي jēkī, whatever, is not inflected.

SINGULAR.

jēkō; fem. إِيكُا jēkā. Nom. Format. كَنْهِن كَنْهِن jãhē kãhē. Genit. جَنْهِن كَنْهِن جِوْ jãhē kāhē jō etc.

Dative. جَنْهِن كَنْهِن كَهْ jãhē kāhē khē.

Accus. حَنْهِن كَنْهِن كَهْي jãhẽ kāhẽ khē.

Ablat. كَنْهِن كَنْهِن كَهَان jãhē kāhē khā.

Whatever (word) be in his mind, hear that his word. Maj. 43.

Whatever thou wilt pray to the Lord of the world, that will be thy companion (i. e. to the other world). Mēnghō 9.

Instead of جؤكؤ jōkō the poëts very frequently use جۇكۇ, reverting the order of the two pronouns.

Whatever thing thou hast to say, o  $\overline{B}$ ı̃yalu, let me hear that! Sh. Sōr. II, 17.

Which trees soever give no good fruit, those are cut off and thrown into the fire. Matth. 7, 9.

There is also a reduplicated form of this pronoun: وَجَيْكُوْكُوْ ȳēkōkō, but it is only used in the Nominative Sing. and Plural.

SINGULAR.

Nom. جِيكُوْكُوْ jēkōkō; fem. الإِيكُوْكُوْ jēkākā.

PLURAL.

Nom. jēkēkē, com.

The neuter form of it is: غِيكِيكِ jēkīkī.

Whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause, he will be guilty of judgement. Matth. 5, 2.

Annotation. Another compound of $\frac{2}{2}\tilde{\varphi}$ is \display \display harko, every one, whoever (Hindustānī: harkoī); it is only used in the Singular and inflected regularly, as:

Nom. هَرُكَةِ harkō, fem. لَا harkā; Format. هَرُكَنْهِن harkāhē, com.

§. 37.

VII. THE RECIPROCAL PRONOUN

pāṇa, 'self'.

The reciprocal pronoun in Sindhī is پَانَ pāṇa, 'self', in person, in contradistinction to پَانُ pāṇu, s. m., one's own person or personality. It is derived from the Sansk. आत्मा, soul, self, which becomes in Prākrit either अपा (Var. III, 48) or अपाण (Var. V, 45). From the latter Prākrit form appāṇa, the Sindhī پَانَ has sprung by dropping the first syllable 'ap'.

Annotation. The Marāṭhī reciprocal pronoum āpaṇ points likewise back to the Prākrit appāṇa, whereas the Hindūstānī āp (possessive: ap-nā) is to be traced back to the Prākrit form appā; similarly the Panjābī: āp, possessive āp-ṇā. In Gujarātī both Prākrit forms reappear: āp, and possessive: apaṇ-nō.

From the original signification of يَانَ pāṇa, 'soul' (like the Hebrew عنا), its application may be easely explained. It refers in a sentence always to the chiefsubject, be it distinctly expressed or only tacitly understood. In the Genitive (يَانْهُن جِوْ pāhā jō etc.), which serves as a possessive pronoun, it may be translated by 'own'; but at the same time it points out with a peculiar nicety the subject, to which it must be referred, and may then be translated by the respective possessive pronoun, required by the subject.

SINGULAR and PLURAL.

 pā jō (in Lāṛ).

 Dative.
 كِانَ كَهِي pāṇa khē.

pāṇa khã. يَانَ كَهَان paṇã; يَانَان pāṇa khã. Ablat.

An adverbial form is يَانَهِينِ pāṇahī, of, from, by himself or themselves, in person; in a similar sense the Ablative يَانَان pāṇā is also used.

By himself he knows his own person; his own person takes notice of himself;

By himself he sees himself; by himself he is beloved. Sh. Kal. I, 18.

Thou theyself art thy own (i. e. thy soul's friend);

thou (thyself art) in presence of (thy) friends. Sh. Ābirī V, 12.

Do not worship thyself; o Jōgī, keep (thy) devotion! Sh. Rāmakalī  $V\Pi$ , 20.

How wilt thou say to thy brother: let me pull out the mote from thy eye? Matth. 7, 4.

In this last sentence the subject, to which the reciprocal pronoun is to be referred, must be found out from the context or the emphasis of the speaker.

كُوْرُ dhure is not a reciprocal pronoun, as alleged by Capt. Geo. Stack; it is the Locative of عُوْرُ dhuru, 'extremity', 'exact spot' (Panjābī: dhur, adv.), used adverbially. The same is to be remarked of يِنْدُ pinḍe, which is the Locative of يِنْدُ pinḍu, s. m. 'body', and signifies: 'in person'. For this reason its Genitive is يِنْدُ جَوْ pinḍa jō etc.

But ask thy own body (i. e. thyself), having turned thy face upon it. Golden Alphabet 43, 7.

'One another' is expressed in Sindhī in the following way:

Their hearts always remember each other. Maj. 200.

§. 38.

VIII. PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES.

Under this head we class only such adjectives, as participate more or less of the nature of pronouns and are somewhat irregular in their inflexion, and such, as are derived from pronominal themes. All other adjectives, which may, according to their position in a sentence, supply the place of the pronoun, we exclude from this list, such as: غَلَانَةُ fulāṇō, a certain person, مَا فَنُونَ أَنْ biō, another, عَنْ sajō, whole, as they are treated and constructed as regular adjectives.

1) Indefinite pronominal adjectives.

We have to deal here with the pronominal adjectives سَبهُ sabhu, whole, all, every one; the emphatic form of which is سَبهوْدِي sabhōī; with the compound مِرْوْدِي sabhukō, every one, and مِرْوْدِي miryōī or مِرْوْدِي miryōī, all, whole, every one.

a) The pronominal adjective ______ sabhu.

It is derived from the Sansk. सर्व, Prāk. सर्व्व; Hindūstānī: sab (Marāthī: sarv); in Sindhī b has been aspirated (as in Panjābī: sabh) on account of the elided r (see: Introd. §. 15, B. c.)

Dative. سَبهَن كهي sabhane khē etc.

Accus. حبية على sabhane khē.

Ablat. سَبِهِنَانِ sabhaneā (سَبِهِنَانِ sabhinā). sabhane khā etc.

In the Nom. Plur. we find occasionally سَبهِي sabhē written, instead of سَبهِي sabhe. In the Formative Plural مَبهِين sabhē may be used, instead of سَبهِين etc., when the noun immediately follows in the Formative (ē).

My whole life is useless; my time (pl.) has been lost by me. Sh. Surāg. V, Epil.

By Allah all the undertakings of that friend are carried out. Maj. 688.

وِيتْهَا پَڙْهَنِ بِرْتِ سِين نِتُ تَرِمَايوْ نِينَ حِلْدَ سُونْهَارًا سَبهِين پَوِين بِئًا مُعْحَفَ مؤچَارَا

It is an oath of the Lord (i. e. by the Lord), that my friend is the most beautiful. Sh. Barvō Sindhī  $\Pi$ , 6.

b) The pronominal adjective سَبْهوْدِي sabhōī.

The inflection of سَبهوْدِّي, 'all', 'whole', 'every one', is somewhat irregular.

To  $T\bar{o}\bar{d}\bar{i}$  (Suhiṇī) belongs more honour than to all (others). Sh. Suh. III, 9.

c) The pronominal adjective سَبَهُكُوْ sabhukō.

The compound pronominal adjective منبهكر sabhukō is inflected as follows:

SINGULAR.

Nom. مَبِهَكُوْ sabhukō; fem. مَبِهَكُوْ sabhakā.

etc. etc. etc.

There is also a neuter form of this pronoun: سَبَهُكِي sabhukī. The emphatic form سَبهُكُوْدِِّي sabhukōī is also used (see کَوْدِِّي).

In Savan (July—August) every one slips (into the river), this one (goes into it) merry in the cold season. Sh. Suh. III, 17.

I come at every time, using shifts I go. Sh. Barvō Sindhī II, 7.

Having drunk a cup of love we understood every thing. Sh. Kal.  $\Pi$ , Epil.

d) The pronominal adjective مِرْيوْدِي miryōī.

The pronominal adjective مِرْدِئِي miṛyōī or مِرْدِئِي miṛōī is inflected in the same manner as مِرْدِئِي sabhōī.

SINGULAR.

Nom. مِرْيَائِي miryōī or: مِرْرِئِي mirōī; fem. مِرْيَائِي miryōī or: مِرْدِئِي miryōī or: مِرْيئِي miryōī or: مِرْيئِي miryōī or: مِرْيئِي miryōī or: مِرْيئِي etc. etc. etc.

Ablat. مِرْنِي كَهَان :mirineā or مِرْنِيًان mirinī khā.

Every good tree gives good fruit. Matth. 7, 17.

There is no living in the world; all the days (of life) are two. Sh. Kal. II, Epil.

The devotees, taking yesterday leave from all, went off. Sh. Rāmakalī  $V\Pi$ , Epil.

The Locative Sing. masc. مِرْبِيْمِي miṛēī, 'in all', 'throughout', 'altogether', is very frequently used, where we would employ the simple adjective all, whole; but it is to be noticed, that the Locative مِرْبِيْمِي miṛēī always follows immediately the noun, on which the stress is thus to be laid.

A hot wind has set in; the world in all (i. e. the whole world) has been singed. Sh. Ābirī I, 11.

رَائو مِتْرِيئِي رَتَ سَان كَارَنِ كَاندهَ كَكورِ

The gravel-stone throughout (i. e. all) make red with blood for the sake of (thy) husband. Sh. Ābirī VIII, 8.

O bard! upon thee (i. e. for thy sake) I sacrifice all (my) property. Sh. Sōr. IV, 10.

2) Correlative adjectives.

The Sindhī possesses a great facility to derive correlative adjectives from pronominal bases.

a) The pronominal adjectives, denoting 'quantity' are formed by affixing to the original Sanskrit-Prākrit bases or other bases formed alike, the adjectival termination rō, as: ﴿ kētirō, how much? Sansk. नियत्

Prāk. नेतिज्ञ. As similar phenomenon is to be noticed in the correcte idians.

in the cognate idioms, as Hindūstānī: kittā and kitnā; Panjābī: kit-nā; Marāṭhī: kitī or with the affix k: kitīk; Gujarātī: kēt-lō; but Bangālī: kat.

b) The pronominal adjectives denoting 'size', are formed by affixing to the respective pronominal base the termination: غُرَّةُ dō, as: كَانُ لَا اللهُ kēdō, how large? This termination is properly not an adjectival affix, but an adjective: غُرُ vadō, 'great', the first syllable of which is dropped in this composition. This is clearly proved by the Marāṭhī, as: kē-vaḍhā, how great, and the Gujarātī: kē-vaṭō (but Panjābī: kē-dā, as in Sindhī).

All these pronominal adjectives admit again of a diminutive form, by adding the affix rō (see §. 11), as: مَيْدُ رُوْدُ kēḍirō, how small?

c) The pronominal adjectives denoting 'kind' are formed by adding to the pronominal bases kēha, jēha, tēha, ēha, hūa (ūha), the diminutive affix rō, in consequence of which the long vowel of the pronominal base is shortened to its corresponding short one, as: kěharō, of what kind or manner?

The pronominal bases, from which these three kinds of adjectives are derived, are: ē or hē, this; ō (ū) and hō (hū), that; the relative jō (jē), the correlative sō (tē), and the interrogative kē.

We exhibit them in the following survey:

From the base:	Quantity.	Size.		Kind.
ē	ētirō إيترو	ēḍ̄ō إيڭۇ	ēdirō إيدُّ رُو	ěhaṛō اِهَةِوْ

All these correlative adjectives are inflected regularly, according to their respective termination (masc. and fem.).

§. 39.

IX. PRONOMINAL SUFFIXES,

attached to nouns and postpositions.

Instead of the inflected cases of the absolute personal and possessive pronouns the Sindhī uses very extensively the so-called suffixes or pronouns, which are affixed to nouns, postpositions (adverbs) and verbs. The use of these suffixes constitutes quite a peculiar feature of the Sindhī language and distinguishes it very advantageously from all the kindred idioms of India, which are destitute of pronominal suffixes; but at the same time the construction of the sentences is very frequently thereby rendered so intricate, that it presents great embarrasments to a beginner. In this respect the Sindhī quite agrees with the Paṣtō and the Persian, being the connecting link between the Indian and Iranian languages.

Here we shall describe the manner, in which the suffixes are attached to nouns and postpositions; the verbal suffixes will be treated in their proper place.

The pronominal suffixes, which are added to nouns and adverbs, are:

Singular. Plural.

I pers. فرن me. أزن أَنْ or فَوْن hū̃.

II pers. فه e. وَ va.

III pers. سِ se. به ne or نَ na.

The suffix of the I pers. Sing. me corresponds to the Prākrit Genitive Sing.  $\mathbf{\hat{H}}$  my; the Persian suffix is  $\mathbf{\hat{L}}$  am, Paṣtō me, as in Sindhī.

The suffix of the II pers. Sing. ĕ has sprung from the Sansk. Genitive Sing. त, thy, t being elided in Sindhī according to Prākrit rule (see Introd. §. 7). In Persian final e ( $t\bar{e}$ ) has been dropped and t preserved (= at), whereas the Paṣtō has retained the original form of this pronoun, only with transition of the tenuis into the media =  $\delta$  de.

The suffix of the III pers. Sing. se is to be referred to the Prākrit Genitive (shortened from 汉中), literally: hujus. In Persian it has become , whereas in Paṣtō s has been changed to h (Zend hē) and then altogether elided = ; ē.

The suffix of the I pers. Plur. ũ or hũ accedes to postpositions only, no suffix of the I pers. Plur. being in use with nouns. It is a contraction from the Prāk. Genitive Plur. The first syllable being dropped in Sindhī. The Persian form is to mā, Paṣtō or mū or um.

The suffix of the II pers. Plur. وَ va is derived from the Sansk.-Prāk. Genitive Plur. (Persian on the other hand مُنْ (pointing to the Sansk. Genit. Plur. युष्पाकम्) but Paṣṭō مُنْ mū (m = v).

The suffix of the III pers. Plur. ne or na has apparently sprung from an old pronominal base  $\overline{A}$  na, which is already in Pāli substituted for  $\overline{A}$ , that; the Prāk. Genit. Plur. would be  $\overline{uf}$  (cf. Lassen p. 325; Var. VI, 4), shortened ne, or na from  $\overline{u}$   $\overline{u}$ .

These suffixes, according to their etymology, supply, when attached to nouns, the place of possessive pronouns; but when joined with postpositions or adverbs, they may stand in lieu of any inflected personal pronoun. The suffix however, which properly belongs to the noun, may also be attached to the verb, as will be explained under the verbal suffixes.

§. 40.

I. Pronominal suffixes attached to nouns.

When a suffix accedes to a noun, its final vowel undergoes in some instances a change. But it is to be noticed, that the suffixes are not used promiscuously with nouns, but for the most part only with those referring to man, far less with those referring to animals or to inanimate objects.

In the Nominative Singular:

- 1) Nouns ending in 'u' undergo no change before the suffixes.
- 2) Nouns ending in ō generally shorten the same to 'u'; but ō may also keep its place before the suffixes.
- 3) Masc. nouns ending in ī change the same for euphony's sake either to yu or to ya.
- 4) Fem. nouns ending in ī change the same either to ya or shorten it to 'i'.
- 5) Nouns ending in 'e' (i) remain unaltered before the suffixes.

In the Formative Singular the suffixes accede to the final vowel without any further change, with the exception of nouns ending in ō, the Formative Singular of which terminates before suffixes in ă, and not in ē.

In the Nominative Plural a final long vowel is shortened respectively and final nasal n dropped before the suffixes; but final ī of masc. nouns is changed to ya, as in the Nom. Sing.

In the Formative Plural the suffixes accede to the termination ne without any further change.

Nouns ending in ū (ũ) and ā are hardly ever found with suffixes; of nouns ending in 'a' there are some instances, but they are very rare, and only found in poëtry. On the whole the suffixes are for the most part attached to nouns ending in 'u' and ō, far less to those ending in ī (masc. and fem.) and 'e'.

The way, in which the suffixes are attached to nouns, may best be learnt from the following examples.

1) Nouns ending in u (masc.)

Nom. Sing. نين nēṇu, eye; Format. نين nēṇa. Nominative.

I pers. نینْمِ nénume, my eye.

II pers. نینْمِ nénue, thy eye.

III pers. نینْسِ nénuse, his eye.

Sing. { I pers. نِينَهِ néṇame; نِينَهِ néṇahime. II pers. نِينَهِ néṇae; نِينَهِ néṇahe. III pers. نِينَهِ néṇase; سِنَهِ néṇahīse. Nominative.

Plur. { III pers. نینُو nénuva, your eye. { III pers. نینُو nénune, their eye.

Plur. { II pers. نِينُوِنْو néṇava; نِينُونِ néṇahĩva. الله pers. نِينُونِ néṇane; نِينُونِ néṇahine.

Nom. Plur. نينَ nēṇa; Form. نينَ nēṇane.

In the Formative Sing. there is instead of the suffix me, the form hime also in use, as: نِينْهِم néṇahime; and instead of se we find likewise the form hise, as: نينَهس nénahise. In the Format. Plur. the suffix of the II pers. ĕ is generally contracted with the final e of the termination ne to ē (ē) or even ī, or hĕ is affixed, to avoid a hiatus, as: نِينَنِي néṇanē, نِينَنِي néṇanī or: néṇanehe.

In poëtry final 'u' is frequently lengthened again to ō before the suffixes; but final 'a' may also be likewise lengthened, if required by the metre, as: نينًان nēṇāna, instead of نينَن nénana.

Some nouns of this class, which do not change final 'u' in the Formative Singular, are somewhat irregular in attaching the suffixes. These are: بني piu, father, bhāu, brother, مَاء māu, mother, جهاء bhāu, brother, بهاء nuhu, daughter-in-law.

2) Nouns ending in ō.

Nouns ending in  $\bar{o}$  do not differ essentially from those in 'u', as regards the annexion of the suffixes; they generally shorten final  $\bar{o}$  to 'u', but they may also retain the same in the Nom. Sing., which is frequently the case in poëtry. The Formative Sing. always terminates in 'a', not in  $\bar{e}$ , when followed by suffixes. In the Nomin. Plural final  $\bar{a}$  may be likewise preserved before suffixes, instead of being shortened to 'a'.

3) Nouns ending in ī (masc.)

Nouns ending in ī (m.) generally change the same to ya, far less to yu, before the accession of the suffixes; in the Formative Sing. ē must always be changed to ya. The same is the case in the Nom. Plur., so that only the context can decide, whether a noun is put in the Nominative or Formative Sing. or in the Nominative Plural.

§. 41.

II. PRONOMINAL SUFFIXES

attached to Postpositions and Adverbs.

The rules, according to which pronominal suffixes are attached to nouns, are also applicable in reference to postpositions and adverbs. Any pronominal suffix may be joined with a postposition, but with most of them only the suffix of the third person Singular and Plural is in use. It is however quite optional in Sindhī, either to subjoin a pronominal suffix to a postposition, or to put the absolute pronoun before it in the Formative, with or without the Genitive case-sign جاء بيان معنى بيان المعنى بيان بيان المعنى ب

1) The postposition سَنْدو sandō.

sandō is originally not a postposition, but an adjective, and therefore declinable, as well as جؤ, the Genitive case-sign, for which it is very frequently substituted (see §. 18). It corresponds to the Panjābī sandā, being (Sansk. part. pres. सन = सन) and signifies therefore: 'belonging to'. It is now used as a regular postposition, chiefly in connexion with suffixes, before such nouns, to which suffixes are not attached, either for the sake of the final vowel, or for perspicuity's sake, or, as in poëtry, for the sake of the metre.

<sup>1)</sup> Short 'a' may be lengthened to  $\bar{a}$  in poëtry for the sake of the rhyme.

During the rainy season, four months, rains have fallen upon thee. Maj. 646.

There is no reproach upon it; if thou wilt ask any thing, ask it. Sh. Khambh. I, 10.

To the postposition مِين mễ (in) the suffixes are attached in the following manner: مِينْسِ mễse, in him (her, it) or: مَيْنُون maĩse (in Sirō); مَيْنُون maĩnữ, in us; سَيْنُون mēne or مِينَ mēna (in Sirō: مِينَ maina) in them.

4) Postpositions ending in ā, ā, āū, ō.

Those, which terminate in ā, remain unaltered before a suffix, as: كِنَاسِ kēṇāse, to him, كِنَاسِ kēṇāne, to them. Similarly كَيَانِ khā, from, as: كَيَانِ khāse, from him, كَهَانِ khāse, from him, كَهَانِ khāse, from them (the final nasal being dropped before a following dental n); متهان mathā, from upon (properly the Ablative of مَتهانس mathā, the head), مَتهَانْس mathāse, from upon him; يُتهِمَّانُس puṭhiāse, from behind him, after him (properly the Ablat. of يُتهِمَّانُس puṭhe, the back).

Before the suffix of the third person Plural a euphonic 'i' is occasionally inserted, especially in poëtry, as: مُنجِهَانيَّن manjhāine, instead of: مُنجِهَانيً manjhāne, out of them.

Those ending in ãũ, ẫu, āu (termination of the Ablat. Sing.) remain likewise unchanged before suffixes, the final nasal only being dropped before them, as: مَتهَانتُس mathāuse, from upon it, مَتهَانتُو mathāuva, from upon you; كهَانتُس khāuse, from it, كهَانتُس

Those ending in  $\tilde{o}$  change it to  $\tilde{a}$  before suffixes, as: يُمَّانُس puãse, behind him (from يُمَّانُس puõ).

Then the mother asked Majnõ: what (matter) has happened to thee? Maj. 44.

Such days will come, that the bridegroom will be taken from them. Matth. 9, 15.

SECTION III. THE VERB.

The great deterioration, the modern Indian languages have undergone, is nowhere more apparent, than in their conjugational process. They have lost nearly all the Sanskrit tenses, especially those of the Past, which were too intricate for the conception of the vulgar, and have therefore been compelled to have recourse to compositions, in order to make up for the lost tenses. They differ very greatly as to the method, which they have followed in this respect, every one of them exhibiting some peculiar features, which are not to be met with in the other idioms.

Chapter XII.

Formation of the verbal themes, the Imperative and the Participles.

§. 42.

Formation of the verbal themes.

I. We have seen already (§. 7, 2) that the Infinitive of the Sindhī verbs, terminating in aṇu, corresponds to the verbal noun of the Sanskrit and Prākrit. The root of the Sindhī verb is therefore not to be sought in the Infinitive, but in the Imperative, which exhibits the crude form of the verb without an additional increment, except that of the final vowel, which is no part of the verbal root.

Properly speaking there is only one class of verbs in Sindhī, as all verbs, with a slight difference, are inflected alike. There are therefore no different conjugations, as in Sanskrit, but the same rules of inflection apply equally to all verbs.

In some tenses though there is a marked difference between neuter and active verbs, and we may therefore, for practical purposes, divide the Sindhī verbs into neuter and active ones.

1) The neuter or intransitive verb ends in the Infinitive in anu and in the Imperative in 'u', as:

hal-anu, to go, Imper. هُلَنْ hal-u, go.

var-anu, to return, " زَنْ var-u, return.

But in derivative verbs, where the termination of the Infinitive is preceded by ā, the Infinitive ends, for euphony's sake, in inu, as:

كَرَائِنُ kārā-iṇu, to be blackish, Imper. غَارَاكِ kārā-u.

When the verbal root ends in short 'a' or 'i', a euphonic v is inserted between it and the increment of the Infinitive, as:

بَوْنُ pa-v-anu, to fall, Imper. پَوْنُ pa-u. نِوْنُ ni-v-anu, to bow, " نُوْنُ ni-u.

2) The active or transitive verb ends in the Infinitive likewise in anu (in Sirō commonly in inu), and in the Imperative in 'e' (and partly in 'u'), as:

jhal-aṇu, to seize, Imper. جَهَلَنُ jhal-e. چَهَلِيُ phur-aṇu, to plunder, " پهُرَنُ phur-e.

But when the increment of the Infinitive is preceded by 'a', ā and ō, the Infinitive ends, for euphony's sake, in inu'), as:

ma-iṇu, to measure, Imper. مَتْنُ ma-e. مَتْنُ ma-e. مَتْنُ gālhā-iṇu, to speak, " قَالَهَائِنُ gālhā-e. تُعوْدِ بُنُ dhō-iṇu, to carry, " قعوْدِ dhō-e.

If a verbal root (active or neuter) end in  $\bar{\imath}$  and  $\bar{u}$ , these vowels are respectively shortened before the increment of the Infinitive, as:

pi-aṇu, to drink, Imper. پِمَّنُ pū-u. پُوَّنُ pu-aṇu, to string beads, " پُوَّنُ

In some instances radical ō is likewise shortened to 'u' in the Infinitive, as:

ى dhu-aṇu, to wash, Imper. ئۇن dhō-u. ئۇن ru-aṇu, to weep, " أَى rō.

A number of Sindhī verbs have a different form when used in a neuter or active sense, but it would be wrong to say, that such neuter verbs are changed into an active form; they recur to a different Sanskrit form, from which they are derived and must therefore be considered as independent verbs.

The most common of these are:

Neuter. Active. dhuanu. دهُوِّنَ . . . dhōpaṇu, to be washed رَّهُ وَنَ dَubhanu, to be milked. . . . وَ فَعَنْ dubhanu. قَعَنُ dajhaṇu, to be envious . . . ثُعَنُ dahaṇu. rajhanu, to be boiled . . . . زنهن randhanu. rahaṇu, to remain . . . . . . رکهَنُ rahaṇu, to remain رَهَنُ suṇaṇu. سُنَٰنُ sujaṇu, to be heard. . . . . . . سُجَٰنُ kuhanu. کُهَنْ . . . . . kusanu, to be killed. کَسَنْ khājanu, to be eaten . . . كَهَاتِنُ khājanu, to be eaten كهَاجِنُ khāinu. كهَانتُنْ khamanu, to burn . . . . كهامَنُ khajanu, to be raised . . . كَهَنَنُ khajanu, to be raised . . . gahanu. گَهَنُ gasanu, to be abraded. . . . گَسَنُ luṇaṇu. لُنَيْ . . . . . be reaped . . . . . لُنَيْ lahanu. لَهَنُ . . . labhanu, to be obtained لَبَهَرُ: lūhaņu. أُوهَنُ lūsaņu, to be scorched . . . . أَوْهَنُ māpaṇu, to be contained. . مَائِنُ māṇṇu. , mamanu مَامَرِي muhanu. مُهَنَى . . . musanu, to have ill luck visāiņu. وسَائِنُ visāmaṇu, to be extinguished . وسَامَنُ vikamaṇu, وِكَامَنُ vikamaṇu, to be sold . . . وَكَامَنُ vikaṇaṇu. . . . vehāmanu, to be passed وهَادِّنُ . . . vehāmanu, to be passed hapāiṇu. هَپَائِنُ hapāmaṇu, to be lessened هَپَامَنُ . . yahanu, to be copulated يَبَهَنُ yabhanu, to be copulated

II. Almost from every neuter or active verb a Causal may be derived. Those causals, which have sprung from a neuter verb, are, as regards their signification, active, whereas those, which are derived from an active verb, are doubly active.

The Causal is derived by adding to the root of a verb the long vowel  $\bar{a}$ , to which the increment of the Infinitive accedes as usual; e. g.:

- رُچَنُ virčaņu, v. n., to be tired; causal: وِرْچَائِنُ virčaņu, to cause to be tired or to tire.
- تَسَنُ dasaṇu, v. a., to show; causal: تُسَائِنُ dasā-iṇu, to cause to show.
- تَّهُوتِّنُ dhōiṇu, v. a., to carry, causal: قُهُوتِّنُ dhō-ā-iṇu, to cause to carry.

But when the verb ends in radical 'a', euphonic v is inserted between the final root-vowel and the causal increment, as:

ma-iṇn, v. a., to measure; causal: مَرَائِنُ ma-v-ā-iṇu, to cause to measure.

Exceptions to this rule:

- a) When a verb ends in radical r, r, rh, h, preceded by a short 'a', the causal increment may be inserted in the root itself, coalescing with the short radical 'a' to ā, as:
  - أَجُرُنُ baraṇu, v. n., to burn; caus.: بَارَنُ bāraṇu, to kindle.
  - gaṛaṇu, v. n., to drop; caus. گَاڙَنُ gāṛaṇu, to cause to drop.
  - paṛhaṇu, v. a., to read; caus.: پَارْهَنُ pāṛhaṇu, to cause to read, to teach.
  - قَهَنُ gahaṇu, v. n., to work hard; caus.: گَاهَنُ gā-hanu, to make work hard.

In a number of verbs, the final r (r) of which is preceded by the vowel 'i', ā is inserted before the final radical and 'i' dropped, as:

- سُمْ عَارَنُ sudhiraṇu, v. n., to be arranged; caus.: سُمْعَارَنُ sudhāraṇu, to arrange.
- visiraņu, v. n., to be forgotten; caus.; وَسَارَنُ visiraņu, to forget.
- كَهِنَدُّارَنُ kindiraṇu, v. n., to be spread; caus.: كَهِندُّارَنُ khindāraṇu, to spread.
- ujiraṇu, v. n., to be waste; caus.: اُجَازَىٰ ujā-raṇu, to lay waste.

But the regular mode of forming the causal is also in use, as:

- aṛaṇu, v. n., to be caught; caus.: اَزَّائِنُ aṛā-iṇu, to entangle.
- تَرَنُ taraṇu, v. a., to fry; caus.: تَرَائِنُ tarā-iṇu, to cause to fry.
- parhaṇu, v. a., to read; caus.: پَڙهَنُ parhā-iṇu, to cause to read.
- سَنبَهَارُنُ sambahaṇu, v. n., to be ready; caus.: سَنبَهَارُنُ sambahā-iṇu, to get ready.
- b) When final r or r of a verbal root be preceded by the short vowels 'i' or 'u', the causal increment ā coalesces with them to ē and ō respectively, as:
  - پهِرَنُ phiraṇu, v. n., to turn; caus.: پهِرَنُ phēraṇu, to cause to turn.
  - كَهِنَةٌ يِرَنُ khindiraṇu, v. n., to be spread; caus.: كَهِنَةٌ يِرَنُ khindēraṇu, to spread (besides كَهِنَةُ ارَنُ رِچهُوَّزُنُ vičhuranu, v. n., to be separated; caus.: وِچهُوَّنُ vičhōranu, to separate.

Those verbs, in which the root-vowel 'i' coalesces with the causal increment ā to ē, may add, besides the causal increment, ā to the end of the root, without altering the simple causal signification of the verb: as:

پهِرَنُ phiraṇu, v. n., to turn; caus.: پهِيرَنُ phēraṇu or: پهِيرَائِنُ phērā-iṇu.

Some verbs with radical 'u', form the causal in the common way, as:

كُوَّنُ kuṛaṇu, v. n., to be tired; caus.: كُوَّنُ kuṛā-iṇu, to tire.

A few verbs change in the causal the final cerebral  $\dot{t}$  ( $\dot{t}$ r) and  $\dot{\bar{d}}$  to  $\dot{r}$ , as:

بَدُنَ budaṇu, v. n., to be drowned, caus.: بِوْزَنُ bō-raṇu, to drown.

تْرَقْرُنُ ṭruṭraṇu, v. n., to be broken, caus: تْرُوَّرُنُ ṭrō-raṇu, to break.

c) If a verb end in radical 'i' or 'u', r is inserted after the causal increment ā, as:

َوْخَارَنُ d̄i-aṇu, v. a., to give; caus.: ثِمَّارَنُ d̄i-ā-r-aṇu, to cause to give.

ču-aṇu, v. n., to leak; caus.: چُتَّارَنُ ču-ā-r-aṇu, to cause to leak.

The same is the case, when final h is preceded by 'i', as:

veh-aṇu, v. n., to sit; caus.: وِهَارَنُ veh-a-r-aṇu, to cause to sit, but if final h be preceded by 'u', the common rule holds good, as:

كُهَادُّن kuh-aṇu, v. a., to kill; caus.: کُهَادِّن kuhā-iṇu, to cause to kill.

On the reverse a euphonic r is inserted before the causal increment in such verbs, the final radical of which ends in  $\bar{a}$ , as:

يَهَارُائِنُ ghā-iṇu, v. a., to wound; caus. گهَارُائِنُ ghā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause to wound.

There is a number of causal verbs, which cannot be brought under any of the foregoing rules; these are:

نَ uthaṇu, v. n., to rise; caus.: اُتَهَارَنُ uthāraṇu, to cause to rise.

تْرِجَنْ drijaṇu, v. n., to be afraid; caus.: تْرِجَارَنْ drējāraṇu, to frighten.

sikhaṇu, v. a., to learn; caus.: سِكَهَارَنُ sēkhā-raṇu, to instruct.

sumhaṇu, v. n., to fall asleep; caus.: سُبِهَارَنُ sumhāraṇu, to put to sleep.

vańanu, v. n., to be lost; caus.: وِنْجَادُنُ vińāinu, to loose.

vēhejaņu, v. n., to bathe; caus.: وِنْهِ جَارَنُ vēhejāraņu, to wash.

III. From most of the causal verbs a second causal may be derived, according to the rules laid down already, the first or simple causal being treated again as a theme by itself.

رُچَارَائِنُ: .virča-iṇu; double caus وِرْچَارَائِنُ: virč-ā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to weary.

Simple caus.: گَازَّنُ gāṛaṇu; double causal: گَازَّنُ gāṛ-ā-iṇu, to cause to shed (tears).

- وَچِهِوْزَائِنُ vičhōṛaṇu; double caus.: وِچِهِوْزَائِنُ vičhōṛ-ā-iṇu, to cause to separate.
- يهِيرَارَادِّنُ: phēr-ā-iṇu; double caus.: پهِيرَارَادِّنُ phēr-ā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to cause to turn.
- Simple caus.: گهَارَارِئِنُ ghā-r-ā-iṇu; double caus.: گهَارَارِئِنُ ghā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to cause to wound.

Annotation. The Prākrit forms the causal either by adding the increment ē (Sansk. ay) or āvē (Sansk. āpay = ābē = āvē, cf. Varar. VII, 26, 27). In the modern Indian idioms only the latter increment is in use, which has been shortened to ā in Sindhī, Hindūstānī and Bangālī, the syllable vē having been dropped. In Gujarātī the causal is formed by adding the increment āv (and vāḍ, when the verb ends in a vowel); in Panjābī by means of the increment āā. In Marāṭhī āv is generally shortened to av.

The insertion of euphonic r in Sindhī (in Hindūstānī and Panjābī l) has its precedent in the euphonic l, which is inserted in some Sanskrit causal themes.

The double causal is formed in Hindūstānī by inserting v before the simple causal increment  $\bar{a}$ ; the same is the case in Panjābī and Gujarātī.

IV. Almost from every neuter, active or causal verb a Passive may be derived by adding to the verbal root the increment غَنْ غَبْنِ jaṇu (j-aṇu). A few verbs, chiefly denominatives, are only found in the passive form, as: اَنَا الْعَالَةُ عَلَىٰ اللهُ الْعَالَةُ عَلَىٰ اللهُ الْعَالَةُ عَلَىٰ اللهُ الْعَالَةُ عَلَىٰ اللهُ اللهُ

The passive of neuter or intransitive verbs is mostly used impersonally (III pers. Sing.), whereas that of active and causal verbs is inflected through all persons.

The passive increment janu is joined to the verbal root, if it end in a consonant, with or without the conjunctive vowel 'i', as euphony may require it; but if the verbal root end in a vowel, the conjunctive vowel 'i' must always be employed, as:

پُورْنَ pūraṇu, v. a., to bury; pass.: پُورْجَنُ pūr-jaṇu, to be buried.

لَهَتَّنُ ghaṭaṇu, v. n., to lessen; pass.: گَهَتِّجَنُ ghaṭaṇu, to lessen.

vińāinu, v. caus., to loose; pass.: وِنَجَائِجَنُ vińāi-jaņu, to be lost.

Those verbs, which end in a radical 'a' and in the Imperative in 'u' (see §. 43), as: چَوْنُ ča-v-anu, Imper. ِ ča-u, to speak, drop before the increment of the passive the euphonic v of the Infinitive, as: چَجِّخِنْ ča-i-janu, to be spoken; پَوْنُ pa-v-anu, to fall, Imper. پَوْنُ pa-si-janu, to fall.

Those verbs, which shorten their final root-vowel  $(\bar{\imath}, \bar{u}, \bar{o})$  before the increment of the Infinitive (§. 42, 2), retain their long vowel before the passive termination j-anu, as:

پِیجَنُ pi-aṇu, v. a., to drink; Imper. پِیجَنُ pī-jaṇu, to be drunk.

pu-aṇu, v. a., to string beads; Imper. پُونَيْ pū-u; pass. پُونِيْ pū-ijaṇu, to be strung (as beads).

دهُوَّنُ dhu-aṇu, v. a., to wash; Imper. دهُوَّنُ dhō-u; pass. دهُوَّخَنُ dhō-ijaṇu, to be washed.

Exceptions to these rules are:

تعِمَّنُ thi-aṇu, v. n., to become; Imper. تعِمَّنُ thī-u; pass. تعِجَنُ thi-jaṇu, to become.

fication.

كَرَنُ karanu, v. a., to make; Imper. كَرَنُ kare (Prec. كِجِ kije); pass. كِجَنُ ki-janu, to be done.

Annotation. In Sanskrit the Passive is formed by adding y to the root of the verb; in Prāk. y is dissolved into īa or ijja, and in the Apabhranša dialect ija or ijja is employed for the formation of the Passive (Lassen, p. 467). The increment of the Passive is therefore in Sindhī j, joined to the affix of the verbal noun or the Infinitive = j-aņu. The Sindhī (and to some extent the Panjābī) is the only modern idiom of India, which has preserved a regular passive voice, all its sister languages being compelled to resort to compositions, in order to express a passive voice. The common way to form a passive voice in the kindred idioms is, to compound the past participle passive with the verb jānā, to go, as in Hindūstānī: مَنْ مَارَا جَاتًا هُون maï mārā jātā hū, I go being beaten = I am beaten. But the use of the passive voice, if it may be called so, is very limited in the cognate languages, and it is avoided wherever possible, which is greatly facilitated by a great number of verbs having a neuter or passive signi-

The Imperative.

The Imperative represents the root of a Sindhī verb, as stated already, and as the whole conjugational process depends a great deal upon it, its formation must be explained in the first place.

1) The Imperative of neuter and passive verbs always ends in 'u'i), as:

مَرَنُ mar-aṇu, to die; Imper.: مَرَنُ mar-u. مَرَنُ ač-aṇu, to come; Imper.: إَچَنُ ač-u.

pabūhaņu, v. n., to smile, which has in the Imperative, besides the regular پَابُوهُ pabūhu, also: پَابُوهِ pabūhe.

gaḍ-ij-aṇu, to meet; Imper.: كَثِيجَ gaḍ-ij-u.

Those verbs, which insert a euphonic v in the Infinitive, drop it again in the Imperative, as:

na-v-anu, v. n., to bow, Imper.: نَوْنُ na-u.

If a final vowel has been shortened in the Infinitive, it is restored again in the Imperative, as:

thi-anu, v. n., to become, Imper. تهِينُ thī-u.

čū-u. پځن ču-anu, v. n., to leak, Imper. چون čū-u.

رُونَ ru-aṇu, v. n., to weep, Imper. وَ رَوْنَ rō (= غَنَ). Similarly: وَهَنُ veh-aṇu, v. n., to sit down; Imper. وَهَنُ

The following verbs form their Imperative both regularly and irregularly:

ač-aņu, v. n., to come; Imper. أَجْ ač-u and عَا اللهُ a ā-u¹).

vań-aṇu, v. n., to go; Imper. وَجُنْ vań-u and وَجُنْ vań-u.

2) The Imperative of active and causal verbs ends in 'e', as:

pāle. پَالُنُ pal-aṇu, v. a., to foster; Imper. پَالُنُ pāle. گَهَتَائِنُ ghaṭā-iṇu, v. caus., to lessen; Imper. گَهَتَائِنُ ghațā-ē.

But there is a considerable number of active verbs, which end in the Imperative in 'u' and not in 'e'; some have both terminations. These are:

The following active verbs form their Imperative in an irregular way:

يُّ أَنْ diaṇu, to give; Imper. ذِي مَّ de (instead of: وُحَّىٰ diu).

<sup>1)</sup> Capt. Stack in his Sindhī Grammar has adduced the following verbs also as active and ending in the Imperative in 'u':

bakaṇu, to chatter, بَكُنُ bakaṇu, to forget,	ىنْھَنْ sũhaṇu, to suit, ئْھَارِّنْ sũhā-iṇu, čamburaņu, to stick close to,
jhakaņu, to prate,	visahaņu, to trust,
رچَنْ ručaņu, to please,	vananu, to please;

but all these are properly intransitive verbs and therefore quite regular in their Imperative.

niaṇu, to take away; Imper. نِعُنُ niu). فِي niaṇu, to take away; Imper. نِعُنْ

Verbs which end in the Imperative Sing. in 'u', form the Plural in ō (or yō, with euphonic y, if the verb end in any other vowel but 'a' and ū), and those, which end in the Imperative Sing. in ĕ, form their Plural in yō or iō, as:

أَچُوْ aču, come, Plur. اَچُوْ ač-ō. أَچُوْ ač-ō. اَچُوْ ač-ō. dhō-u, wash, " مُوْيُوْ dhō-yō. وَيُوْ pa-u, fall, " pa-ō. يَتُوْ pa-ō. أِنَّهُ أَنِّهُ أَلَةً أَنْ أَلَةً أَنْ أَلَةً أَنْ يَا لَمُ الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَيْهُ إِلَى إِلَمُ الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُأْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُؤْلِيوُ الْمُؤْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُؤْلِيوُ الْمُؤْلِيوُ إِلَى الْمُؤْلِيوُ اللَّهُ الْمُؤْلِيوُ اللَّهُ الْمُلْمُ الْمُؤْلِي الْمُلْكُولِيْنِ الْمُلْكُولِيْلُولِي الْمُؤْلِيْنِ الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُلْمُ الْمُؤْلِي الْمُلْمُ الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي الْمُؤْلِي لَلْم

An older form of the II. pers. Plur. is the termination hō, which is also in use, as; بَعْلِهِوْ jhal-ihō.

The other persons of the Imperative must be supplied from the Potential.

There is another from of the Imperative, ending in je<sup>1</sup>), which is added equally to the root of neuter and active verbs. This form of the Imperative is properly a Precative, implying exhortation, request or prayer, as:

موْتِي mōṭaṇu, to return; Imper. موْتِي mōṭu; Prec. موْتِي mōṭ-ije, please to return.

رِيتَّنُ vīṭaṇu, to scatter; Imper. وِيتَّنُ vīṭ-e; Prec. وِيتَّنُ vīṭ-ije, please to scatter.

If a verb end in 'i' or ī, the initial 'i' of ije is dropped, as:

<sup>1)</sup> In poëtry ije is now and then lengthened to ēje, as well in neuter as active verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'u' or 'e', as:

kar-ēje, from خَرَنُ karaņu, Imper. خَرَنُ kare.

yanaņu, to go, Imper. وَجُبَنُ vanaņu, to go, Imper.

khiaṇu, v. a., to eat, Imper. کھِئُ khi-u; Prec. کھِئُ

تهِمَّنُ thiaṇu, v. n., to become; Imper. تهِمَّنُ thī-u; Prec. تهِمِ thī-je or: تهِمِ

Quite irregular is کَرَنُ karaṇu, to do, in the Precative, as:

كُنِج karaṇu, Imper. كَرِ kare, Prec. كَبِي ki-je or: كَرِيْ

Neuter or such active verbs, as end in the Imperative in 'u', take frequently, especially in poëtry, the termination iju instead of ije, as:

سَنِّنُ suṇaṇu, to hear; Imper. سُنْنُ suṇu; Prec. سُنْنُ suṇaṇu.

This termination is also now and then found in active verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'e', as:

bhā-iṇu, to think; Imper. بهَانِيَّن bhā-e; Prec. بهَانِيِّن bhā-iju.

The Plural of the Precative ends in ijō (or ējō, as the case may be), as:

پُورِجِوْ pūr-ēje), shut up; Plur. پُورِجِوْ pūr-ējō). ijō (پُورِڃِوْ pūr-ējō).

Instead of ijō (ējō) the terminations ijā, ijāe (ijã-e), ijāhu (ijāu) ijāha are also in use, especially in a honorific sense, and are therefore also referred to a subject in the Nominative, as:

var-iju, return; Plur. وَرِجَاءَ vań-ijā. وَجِجَاءَ vań-ijā-e. وَجِجَاءَ suṇ-ijāha. سُخِبَاءَ parh-iju, read; " يَرْهِيجَاءَ parh-ējā-u. Annotation. In Prākrit the different (10) conjugations of the Sanskrit have already been discarded and only the first of them is in common use. The II pers. Sing. of the Imperative ends in Prākrit in 'a', which in Sindhī has been changed to 'u' and 'e' respectively; the II pers. Plur. ends in ha (Sansk. Udha), and in Sindhī in ō, h being commonly dropped. — In the cognate idioms the final vowel of the II pers. Sing. of the Imperative has been dropped altogether; in the Plural the Imperative ends in ō, as in Sindhī, with the exception of the Marāthī, the Plural Imperative of which ends in ā, and the Bangālī, the Plural Imperative of which is identical with the

Singular.

The Sindhī Precative is to be referred to the Prākrit increment ijā or ijjā, which is inserted between the root and the inflexional terminations in the Present, the definite Future and the Imperative (Varar. VII, 21). Lassen's conjecture (p. 357), that this increment has sprung from the Sanskrit Precative, is borne ont by the modern idioms. — The Gujarātī forms the Precative in the same way as the Sindhī by adding to the verbal root the increment ajē (Plur. ajō). — In Hindūstānī iyē is joined to the root of the verb for the III pers. Sing. (generally with āp etc.), it being considered more respectful to address a person in the III pers. Sing.; and iyō for the II or III pers. Plur.; jiē is only used, when the root ends in ī or ō. — In Panjābī the increment ī is added to the root for the II pers. Sing., and īō for the II pers. Plur. Similarly iō is joined to the root in Bangālī, as well for the II. pers. Sing. as Plur.

§. 44.

The participle present.

From the Imperative or the verbal root the Participle present is derived in the following way:

1) Neuter verbs ending in the Imperative in 'u', add to the root the affix andō (see §. 8, 11), as:

هَلَنْ halaṇu, to go; Imper. هُلَ hal-u; Part. pres. هَلَنْ hal-andō.

The same is the case with active verbs, the Imperative of which ends in 'u', as:

هَنْنُ haṇaṇu, to strike; Imper. هَنْ haṇu; Part. pres. هَنْنُدوْ haṇ-andō.

Some of these however use also the other form in īndō, as:

سُنُ suṇaṇu, to hear; Imper. سُنُ suṇu; Part. pers. مُنَنُ suṇandō or: سُنِينْدوْ suṇīndō.

Those verbs, which end in radical ā, and in the Imper. in 'u', form, for euphony's sake, their Participle present in īndō, and not in andō, as:

لَهُائِنُ khā-iṇu, v. a., to eat; Imper. كَهَائِنُ khā-u; Part. pres. كَهَائِينْدُو khā-īndō.

بُدَّهَاءُ bَudhā-iṇu, v. n., to become old; Imper. بُدَّهَاءُ تَاكِينُهُ لَهُ عَالِمُنَاهُ لَهُ عَالِمُنَاهُ لَعَالَمُ لَعَالَمُ لَعَالَمُ لَعَالَمُ لَعَالَمُ لَعَالَمُ لَع تَاكِينُهُ وَ budhā-u; Part. pres. بُدُّهَائِينُهُ وَ budhā-indō.

Those verbs, which shorten their final vowel in the Infinitive or insert a euphonic v (§. 42, 1. 2), do the same before the affix of the Participle present, as:

پَوَنْ pa-v-aṇu, to fall; Imper. پَوَ pa-u; Part. pres. پَوَنْ pa-v-andō.

pi-aṇu, to drink; Imper. پِينِّ pī-u; Part. pres. پِينِّ pi-andō.

دَهُوَّنُ dhu-aṇu, to wash; Imper. دَهُوَّنُ dhō-u; Part. pres. دُهُوَّنُدُو dhu-andō.

In some verbs, with euphonic v inserted, a contraction takes place, as:

ča-v-anu, to say; Imper. چُونُ ča-u; Part. pres. چُونُدُ ča-v-andō or: چُونْدُو čūndō.

هُونْد و hu-anu, to be; Imper. هُوءُ hō-u; Part. pres. هُونْد و hūndō (instead of هُنَّدُو hu-andō).

A similar contraction takes place in:

لَهِمَّنُ khi-aṇu, to eat; Imper. كَهِمَّ khi-u; Part. pres. كَهِمَّنُ khi-aṇu, to eat; Imper. كَهِمَّنُ ni-aṇu, to take away; Imper. نِيَّانُ nē; Part. pres. نِيْنُانُ nīndō.

زْينْدۇ di-aṇu, to give; Imper. چْيَ d̄ē; Part. pres. ۋِينْدۇ d̄ndō.

The following verbs form their Participle present in an irregular way:

ač-aņu, to come; Imper. أَجُنُ ač-u; Part. pres. أَجُنُ indō.

vańaṇu, to go; Imper. وَنَجَ vańu; Part. pres. وَنَجَ vańaṇu, vēndō or وَيَنْدُو vindō.

2) Active and causal verbs form the Participle present by adding the affix īndō to the root, as:

bharaṇu, v. a., to fill; Imper. بهَرِ bhar-e; Part. pres. بهَرِيْنُهُ bhar-īndō.

تَكَنَّدُهَاءِ ganḍhā-iṇu, to cause to connect; Imper. گَنَّدُهَاءِ قَائِنُ ganḍhā-e; Part. pres. كَنَدُّهَائِينِدُوْ ganḍhā-indō.

The verb کَرُنُ karaṇu, to do, forms its Part. pres. both regularly and irregularly, کَنْدُو kar-īndō or: کَنْدُو kandō, کِنْدُو

3) The participle present of the Passive voice is formed by adding the affix ibō to the root of the passive theme (cf. §. 8, 13), as:

pasaṇu, v. a., to see; pass. پَسِجَنُ pas-ijaṇu; Part. pres. يَسِبَ ča-v-aṇu, v. a., to say; pass. چَرَّخِينَ ca-ijaṇu; Part. pres. چَرِّبَهُ ča-ibō.

دهُوَّنُ dhu-aṇu, v. a., to wash; pass. دهُوِّجَنَن dhō-ijaṇu; Part. pres. دهوْئبو dhō-ibō.

pi-aṇu, v. a., to drink; pass. پِيَجَنُ pī-jaṇu; Part. pres. پِيجَنُ pī-bō.

thi-aṇu, v. n., to become; pass. تَعِبَّنُ thi-jaṇu; Part. pres. تَعِبُ thi-bō.

كَرَنُ karaṇu, v. a., to do; pass. كَرَنُ ki-jaṇu; Part. pres. كَبؤ ki-bō (also: كَبؤ ka-bō).

The Participle present is also used in the sense of a Future, as will be seen under the future tense.

§. 45.

The Participle past.

From all Sindhī verbs, be they neuter, active (causal) or passive, a past participle may be derived by adding the affix iō or yō (the latter always, when the root ends in a vowel) to the root of the verb (see §. 8, 14). The past participle of neuter verbs implies simply a praeterite sense, whereas that of active (causal) verbs always denotes a praeterite passive signification.

jāgaṇu, v. n., to be awake; p. p. جَاكِمُوْ jāḡ-iō, having been awake.

khaṭaṇu, v. a., to gain; p. p. كَهَتَّيْوُ khaṭ-yō, having been gained.

پَرْبِهَايِثِ parbhāiṇu, v. caus., to quiet; p. p. پَرْبِهَايِّنِ parbhāyō, having been quieted.

پَرُكِهِمَّوْ parkhijaṇu, v. p., to be tested; p. p. پَرُكِهِمَّوْ parkh-iō, having been tested.

Those verbs, which insert euphonic v in the Infinitive, drop it again before the affix of the past participle, as:

ča-yō. چَوْنُ ča-v-aṇu, to say; p. p. چَوْنُ na-v-aṇu, to bow; p. p. نَوْنُ na-yō.

If a verb end in 'i' or ī, the initial 'i' of the affix iō is dropped in the past participle; the same is commonly the case, when the root ends in one of the Palatals č, čh, j, jh.

ni-aṇu, to take away; p. p. نِتُوْ ni-aṇu, to take away; p. p. نِتُوْ ni-ō. تَهِمَّنُ thi-aṇu, to become; p. p. تَهِمَّنُ thi-ō. خِمَّنُ ji-aṇu, to live; p. p. خِمَّنُ kučhanu, to speak; p. p. پُهَنُ kučh-ō. غُهُوْ sōjhanu, to investigate; p. p. مُؤجهُوْ sōjhō.

If final ō and ī has been shortened in the Infinitive, it is restored again (with a few exceptions) in the past participles, as:

دهُوَّنُ dhu-aṇu, to wash (Imper. دهُوَّنُ dhō-u); p. p. هُوَنُ dhō-yō.

يَّتُوْ بَا-aṇu, to live (Imper. جِيئُوْ jī-u); p. p. جِيئُوْ jī-ō.

About the compound affixes ya-lu or ia-lu, ya-ṛō (ia-ṛō), which are attached to the past participle, in order to impart to it more the nature of an adjective, compare §. 9, 22.

A considerable number of verbs form their past participle in an irregular way, that is to say, they have retained the old Sanskrit-Prākrit form of the past participle, modified only according to the laws of transmutation of letters, as current in Prākrit and Sindhī. We subjoin here an alphabetical list of them.

§. 46.

The participle of the Future passive or the Gerundive 1).

The participle of the Future passive or the Gerundive is formed by adding to the verbal root the affix inō (or anō, if the verb end in 'i' (ī) and optionally inō and anō, if the verb end in 'u' (ō)). The Gerundive can only be derived from active verbs; neuter verbs form also a similar participial noun by means of the affix inō, but it is not to be confounded with the Gerundive; see §. 9, 12.

The final vowel of a verbal root undergoes the same changes before the affix of the Gerundive, as before the affix of the Infinitive (§. 42), so that for practical purposes the rule may thus be given, that the termination of the Infinitive and is simply changed to ano (ino), in order to form the participle of the Future passive. About the derivation of the affix ino see §. 8, 12.

vijhaṇu, v. a., to throw; Gerund. وجهنو vijhiṇō, what is to be thrown.

قِتَّنْ d̄iaṇu, v. a., to give; Gerund. قِتَّنْو d̄iaṇō, what is to be given.

<sup>1)</sup> A kind of participle of the Future active is formed by attaching the affix hāru to the Infinitive, as: عُلنَهَا halaṇa-hāru, one who is about to go; see §. 9, 33.

dhuaṇu, v. a., to wash; Gerund. دهُوَّنُو dhuaṇō or دهُوِّنُو dhuiṇō, what is to be washed.

كهَادِّنْ khāiṇu, v. a., to eat; Gerund. كهَادِّنْوُ khāiṇō, what is to be eaten.

§. 47.

Indeclinable past participles.

The Sindhī uses different past conjunctive or indeclinable participles.

- 1) The form most in use is that ending in  $\bar{\imath}$  ( $\bar{o}$ ) or  $\bar{e}$ .
- a) Neuter or such active verbs, as terminate in the Imperative in 'u', form the past conjunctive participle by joining to the verbal root the affix  $\bar{\imath}$ , as:
  - رَيْ var-aṇu, v. n., to return; past part. conj. وَرَيْ var-ī, having returned.
  - suṇaṇu, v. a., to hear; p. part. conj. سُنْي suṇ-ī, having heard.

Those verbs, which end in a radical  $\bar{\imath}$ , coalesce with the affix of the past part. conj. to  $\bar{\imath}$ , as:

تَهِمَّنُ thiaṇu, to become; Imper. تَهِمَّنُ thīu; p. p. conj. ثَهِمَ thī, having become.

Those verbs, which end in  $\bar{u}$ , shorten  $\bar{u}$  before the affix  $\bar{i}$  (as before the affix of the Infinitive), as:

پُون pu-aṇu, to string (beads); Imper. پُون pū-u; p. p. conj. پُون pu-ī.

But those verbs, which shorten radical final ō to 'u' in the Infinitive, restore the same again in the past participle conjunctive, as:

ru-anu, to weep; Imper. وَوَتَى rō; p. p. conj. رَوْتِي rō-ī.

If in the Infinitive euphonic v has been inserted between the verbal root and the affix of the Infinitive, it is dropped again in the past part. conj., as:

ča-v-aṇu, to speak; Imper. چُونْ ča-u; p. p. conj. چَوْنُ ča-ī, having spoken.

pa-v-aṇu, to fall, forms either regularly: پَئِي pa-ī, or irregularly پِيئِي pē-ī, having fallen.

The verb اَچِيَ ačaṇu, to come, makes in the p. p. conj. either regularly آچِي ač-ī, or irregularly مِنَّ ač-ē. The verbs نِئَنُ d̄iaṇu, to give (Imper. نِئَنُ d̄ē) and نِئَنُ niaṇu, to take away (Imper. نِئَنُ nē) make in the p. part. conj. نِئِي d̄ē-ī and نِئِي nē-i or نِئِي na-ī.

Passive verbs, be they derived from neuter or active themes, form the p. part. conj. quite in the same way, as verbs of the active voice, by adding the increment  $\bar{\imath}$  ( $\bar{o}$ ) to the passive base, as:

- الْوَتِجَنَىُ lō-ij-aṇu, v. p. to be moistened; p. part. conj. الْوَتِجِيَ lō-ij-ī or لُوتِجِي lō-ij-ō, having been moistened.
- b) Active and causal verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'e', form the past part. conj. by adding the affix ē to the root of the verb, as:
  - malaṇu, v. a., to polish; p. p. conj. مَلَيْ mal-ē, having polished.
  - lagāiṇu, v. caus., to apply; p. p. conj. لَكَائِين lagā-ē, having applied.
- 2) The second past participle conjunctive is formed by adding to the root of the verb, be it transitive or intransitive, the affix yō (or iō). This form is only used with a Present, Future or Imperative, and may therefore in most cases be translated by the present participle, as:

mōṭaṇu, v. n., to return; p. p. conj. مؤتَّىنُ mōṭ-yō (mōt-iō).

sith-iō. سِتَهِنُ sithaṇu, v. a., to compress; p. p. conj. سِتَهَنُ

If the verb end in 'i' (ī), it coalesces with the affix  $i\bar{o}\,,$  as:

قِدُو diaṇu, to give; p. p, conj. قِدَّنُ diō.

pi-aṇu, to dink (Imper. پِينْ pīu); p. p. conj. پِئْنُ piō.

Those verbs, which shorten original ō to 'u' in the Infinitive, restore the same again in the p. p. conj., as:

دُمُوَّنُ dhu-aṇu, to wash (Imper. دهُوَّنُ dhō-u); p. p. conj. دهوَيو dhō-yō.

رُوْنِ ru-aṇu, to weep (Imper. مُن rō); p. p. conj. رُوْنِهُ rō-yō.

The verbs کَهَنَنُ khaṇaṇu, to lift up, هَنَنُ haṇaṇu, to strike, كَرَنُ karaṇu, to do, drop, as in the past participle, their final radical before the affix yō, as:

كَهَنْ khaṇaṇu, p. p. conj. كَهَنْيُوْ khã-yō or: كَهَنْنُ khaṇaṇu, p. p. conj. هَنْنُ hā-yō or: هَيْوْ ha-yō. هَنْنُ karaṇu, p. p. conj. كَرَنُ karaṇu, p. p. conj. كَرَنُ

3) The third past participle conjunctive is formed by adding to the root of transitive verbs, irrespectively of their termination in the Imperative, the affix jē (i-jē), and jī (i-jī) to the root of neuter verbs.

This form is generally used with the Present and Past tenses.

كَهَنُ khaṇaṇu, v. a., to lift up (Imper. كَهَنُ khaṇa); p. p. conj. كَهَنِٰجِي khaṇ-ijē.

رْچَكِ virčaņu, v. n., to be tired; p. p. conj. وِرْچِكِي

4) The fourth past participle conjunctive is formed by putting ﴿ كُرُنُ karē, the p. p. conj. of ﴿ karaṇu, after the past partic. conj. ending in ī or ē. This compound form is used with the Present, the Future, the Past tenses and the Imperative, as:

varī karē, having returned; Inf. وَرَنُ varaṇu. وَرَنُ malē karē, having polished; Inf. مَلَنُ malaṇu. مَلَنُ loij-ī karē, having been moistened; Inf. الوثِحِي كَرِي loij-aṇu.

Annotation. The indeclinable past participles are formed in Sanskrit either by the affix  $tv\bar{a}$  or ya. In  $Pr\bar{a}krit$   $tv\bar{a}$  is changed to  $t\bar{u}na$  and (by elision of t) to  $\bar{u}na$ , and ya becomes ia. In Sindh $\bar{i}$  the first form of the past participle conjunctive ending in  $\bar{i}$  (or  $\bar{e}$ ) corresponds to the  $Pr\bar{a}krit$  affix ia. The second form of the p. p. conj., ending in  $y\bar{o}$ , is identical with the first, and the same must be said of the third form ending in  $j\bar{i}$  (or  $j\bar{e}$ ), the Sanskrit affix ya ( $Pr\bar{a}krit$  ia) having been changed in Sindh $\bar{i}$  to ja (=  $j\bar{e}$ ), as in the case of the Passive.

This is fully borne out by the kindred idioms. In Hindūstānī we find the following forms of the past part. conjunctive (Inf. mār-nā): mār, mār-ē, mār-kē, mār-karkē. In the first form mār the affix ia has apparently been dropped altogether, whereas in the second mar-ē the affix ia has been contracted to ē. The affix kē in mār-kē, corresponds to the Sindhī affix jē, j having been changed to a guttural, with transition of the Media into a Tenuis. Mār-kar and mār-karkē are compound past participles conj. like the Sindhī form. Similarly we find in Panjābī (Inf. ghall-nā, to send): ghall and ghall-kē.

The Gujarāti uses two forms of the past part. conj., one ending in  $\bar{\imath}$  (used especially in compound verbs), as lakh $\bar{\imath}$ , having written, and the other in  $\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}$ , as lakh $\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}$ . The first form is identical with the Sindh $\bar{\imath}$  affix  $\bar{\imath}$ , the latter,  $\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}$ , corresponds to the Prākrit affix uṇa,  $\bar{\imath}$  having been substituted for  $\bar{u}$ .

The Marāṭhī uses only one form of the past. part. conj., ending in ūn, as karūn, having done; this affix quite coincides with the Prākrit affix ūṇa. — The Bangālī uses either the affix yā (iyā), as dēkhiyā (dēk-ē or dēkh-ī also being employed), or the Locative of the past participle, dēkhitē, in the state of having seen.

Chapter XIII.

Formation of the Tenses and Persons.

§. 48.

In treating of the Tenses in Sindhī we must distinguish simple and compound Tenses.

I. Simple tenses.

In the Active and Passive Voice there are only three simple tenses, viz.: the Potential, the Aorist and the Future.

1) The Potential, which implies possibility, uncertainty or a wish, is formed by adding to the root of the verb the inflexional terminations. The absolute personal pronouns may also be put before the verb, where any stress is to be laid on the person, but they may also be omitted, where such is not the case, the respective person being sufficiently pointed out by the inflexional termination itself.

Neuter and such intransitive verbs, as end in the Imperative in 'u', and all passive verbs, receive the same personal terminations, whereas those transitive verbs, which end in the Imperative in 'e', differ from them in the I and partly in the II pers. Sing. and in all the persons of the Plural, by retaining their characteristic 'i' (e) before the inflexional terminations.

Personal terminations of the Potential.

Verbs ending in the in 'u'		Verbs ending in the Imper. in 'e'.
Singular. I persã II persĨ, ễ	Plural. -ữ -ō	Singular. -yã, -iã -iễ, yẽ; ῗ, ễ	Plural. -yū̃, iū̃ -yō, iō
III pers. ē	-ane	-ē	-īne, ine

In reference to verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'u', it is to be observed:

- a) A final long vowel is shortened before all the personal terminations in the same way, as before the affix of the Infinitive; e. g. رُقِّنُ ruaṇu, to weep, Imper. رُقِّنُ rō, Potential I pers. رُقَّن ru-ā, I may weep; يَقْن pi-ā, I may drink, Imper. پُوئ pu-aṇu, to string (beads), Imper. پُوئ pu-aṇu, to string (beads), Imper. پُوئ pu-aṇu, Potential I pers. يَقَى pu-ā, I may string (beads). In poëtry an original long vowel may be restored again in the III pers. Sing., the personal termination ē being at the same time shortened to 'e', as: وَجُعُن rū-ē, he may weep, instead of رُقِي ru-ē.
- b) The euphonic v, which is inserted between the root of a verb ending in 'a', and the affix of the Infinitive, is commonly retained in the Singular and the III pers. of the Plural, but dropped commonly in the I and II pers. Plural, as: Inf. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu, to fall, Potential, Sing. I pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu, to fall, Potential, Sing. I pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu; pa-v-e, III pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu; Plur. I pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu, I pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu; Plur. الله pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu, I pers. پَوْنِي pa-v-anu; Plur.

Sing. however v may be also dropped, as خَمْين ča-ē, thou mayst say; چَمْي ča-ē¹), he may say.

c) In the III pers. Plur. verbs, which end in 'u' (ū) or original ō) and 'a' (with euphonic v inserted) frequently contract the inflexional termination u-ane, a-v-ane, to ūne, as: رُبِي rūne, they may weep, instead of پُرِي pūne, they may fall, instead of پُرِي čavane; پُرِي čune, they may say, instead of پُرِي čavane.

A similar contraction takes place in the II pers. Sing. and in the III person Plur., if a verb end in 'i' (ī), as: وَيْنِي d̄ī, thou mayst give, instead of فِينِ d̄i-ē; وُنِينِ d̄īne, they may give, instead of فِينِ d̄iane; نِين n̄n, thou mayst take away, نِين n̄ne, they may take away; بِينِ p̄ne, they make drink; بِينِ p̄ne, they make drink; بِينِ p̄ne, they may eat; but the uncontracted form is equally in use.

d) Verbs, which end in a radical ā, and in the Imperative in 'u', insert in the I pers. Sing. and Plur. and in the II pers. Plur. a euphonic y before the flexional termination, as: لَهُ اَيْنَ لَهُ لَا لَهُ اللهُ لَهُ اللهُ لَا لَهُ اللهُ اللهُ

In reference to verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'e', it is to be observed:

1) The characteristic 'i' (e) of the Imperative may be contracted with the inflexional termination of the <sup>1)</sup> چَئِي ča-ē is even contracted to چچ čē, when used more in the sense of a particle, to quote the words of the speaker ('says he').

I and II pers. Sing. and the II and I pers. of the Plur. to yā, yē (yī), yū, yō, or not, if the verb end in a consonant; but the contraction must take place, if the verb end in a vowel, as: رَجَهُ دُمُورُ وَ دُمُورُورُ وَ دُورُورُ وَ دُمُورُورُ وَ دُورُورُ وَ دُورُ وَاللَّا لِمُعُلِقًا لِمُعُلِقًا لِهُ وَلِمُ لِمُعُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ لِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِمُ لِمُورُورُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُ وَلِمُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُ وَلِهُ وَلِمُورُورُورُ وَلِمُورُورُورُ وَلِم

In the III pers. Plural 'i' is generally lengthened to 'ī', and the initial 'a' of the inflexional termination āni dropped in order to distinguish the neuter and active verbs. But īne is again frequently pronounced and written ine, especially when the verb ends in a long ā, as:

gālhā-ine, they may speak.

2) The verb کُرَنُ karaṇu, to do, forms the III pers. Plural either regularly in کَرِينِ karīne, or irregularly in کَنِ kane or کِنِ kine.

Annotation. The Sanskrit Potential has already quite disappeared in Prākrit. But, abstracted from this significant circumstance, there can be no doubt, that the Sindhī Potential corresponds originally to the Prākrit Present tense. In Sindhī itself there are many reminiscences, that the Potential properly represents the old Present of the Prākrit; for it is very often, chiefly in poëtry, used without the characteristic 3,2,, in the sense of the Present. After the custom had gained ground, to express the Present by joining the 3,2, tho to the old Present, the old Present was reserved to denote a Potential mood. The inflexional terminations of the Sindhī Potential correspond very closely to those of the Prākrit Present, as: Prāk. I pers. Sing. āmi (Sansk. āmi), Sindhī ā; II pers. Sing. asi (Sansk. asi), Sindhī ē (or ī), 'a' being dropped (as a conjunctive vowel) and s being first changed to h and then dropped altogether; III pers. Sing. a-ti or a-di (Sansk. a-ti), and by elision of t or d: a-e. Sindhī ē. In the I pers. Plur. the Prākrit has different terminations, as ā-mō (Sansk. ā-mah), ā-mu, ā-ma, or a-mō, a-mū etc. These latter terminations have given rise to the Sindhī terminations u, m being elided and final 'u' lengthened to u and nasalized at the same time; II pers. Plur. a-ha (Sansk. a-tha), Sindhī ō, h having been dropped and 'a' lengthened to ō; III pers. Plur. a-nti (Sansk. a-nti), Sindhī ane, t having been elided in this conjunct letter. - The Hindustani, Panjabi and Gujarātī coincide in this respect with the Sindhī, forming the Potential in the same way, as the Sindhī, only with modified inflexional terminations. The proper Potential of the Marathi, which is now commonly called by the Grammarians the "Past Habitual" 1), exhibits likewise the signs of the old Prākrit Present. — The Bangālī alone has preserved the old Present tense, formed by joining the inflexional terminations to the root of the verb; the Present is in Bangālī also used in the sense of a Potential.

- 2) The Sindhī has a regular Aorist or Praeterite tense denoting, that an action once took place in time past.
- a) The Aorist is formed from neuter verbs, by joining to the past participle the terminations of the (now in Sindhī) obsolete substantive verb as, to be. This tense is therefore originally a compound, and the participle must be put, according to the gender referred to, either in the masc. or the feminine. The inflexional terminations are only affixed to the I and II pers. of the Sing. masc. and fem., to the I pers. of the Plur. masc. and fem. and to the II pers. of the Plur. masc., the III person of the Sing. and Plur. masc. and fem. being left without any inflexional terminations, as well as the II pers. of the Plur. fem.
- b) From transitive verbs, the participle past of which always has a passive signification, the Aorist is formed by joining to the past participle the same inflexional terminations, as to that of neuter verbs, the III pers. of the Sing. and Plur. masc. and fem. and the II person of the Plur. fem. being likewise left without inflexional terminations. If the Agent is to be expressed, this must be put in the Instrumental, the participle past agreeing throughout with its subject (expressed or only hinted at) in gender and number.

The inflexional terminations of the Aorist are:

Singular.		Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
I persse	-se	-s $\tilde{i}$ , s $\tilde{u}$	-sī, sū.
II persē	$-\tilde{a}$ $(\tilde{\tilde{e}})$	-u
III pers. —	_	_

Before the inflexional termination of the II person masc., ē, final ō is dropped altogether, as: مَلِمُين hali-ē, thou hast gone; وَقَهِين d̄iṭh-ē, thou wast seen; before the inflexional termination of the II person fem. ā, final ī is shortened to 'i' = i-ā (occasionally also as in the masc. to i-ē), as: عَلِمَن hali-ā; thou hast gone, وُتَعِمَّن d̄iṭhi-ā, thou wast seen.

In the first person Plural the inflexional termination sī (sē), sū is affixed to the masc. or fem. Plural of the past participle, as: هَلِتَّاسِين haliā-sī, we have gone, هَلِتَّاسِين haliū-sī (fem.); وُتَهَاسِين diṭhā-sī, we were seen, وُتَهِمَّونُسِين diṭhiū-sī (fem.).

In the II person masc. the final ā of the Plural (هَلِمَا) is shortened before the inflexional termination 'u' = a-u, as: غَلَيْهُ halya-u, you went; غُلَيْهُ أَنْتُهُ أَنْ أَنْهُمْ أَنْ أَلْهُ لَا اللهُ اللهُ

It is to be noticed, that in poëtry the inflexional terminations are frequently left out, in which case the subject, if it be not indicated otherwise (by an absolute personal pronoun etc.), must be gleaned from the context.

Annotation. The three praeterite tenses of the Sanskrit, with the exception of a few traces (Varar. VII, 23), have been already discarded in Prākrit, their formation being apparently too intricate for the conception of the vulgar. In their lieu the past participle has been substituted in the sense of an Aorist, either with or without inflexional terminations, the Perfect proper being denoted by a compound tense. The inflexional terminations, which are affixed in Sindhī to the past participle, are derived from the Sanskrit substantive verb 'as', to be, though they be now so much mutilated and differ so considerably from the forms used in Prākrit (Lassen, p. 345), that they are scarcely recognisable. The termination of the I person Sing. -s corresponds to the Sanskrit asmi (Prāk. amhi), 'm' having been thrown out in Sindhī.

In the II pers. (Sansk. and Prāk. asi) s=h, has been dropped and final i (e) lengthened in the masc. to  $\tilde{\tilde{e}}$ , whereas in the feminine the initial 'a' of asi has been retained, and the latter half of it dropped altogether. The masculine termination  $\tilde{\tilde{e}}$  is however also now and then applied to the feminine.

In the I person Plural the Sanskrit smāh (Prākrit amhō) has been changed to sī (sē) or sū; in the II person masc. the Sanskrit stha has been first changed to tha, thence to ha, and with the elision of 'h' to 'u'.

In Hindūstānī, Panjābī and Gujarātī the Aorist is made up by the past participle without the addition of inflexional terminations, but in Marāṭhī inflexional terminations are affixed to the past participle, as in Sindhī. The same is the case in Bangālī, but with this difference, that it can form an Aorist of the active voice not only from neuter verbs, but also from active verbs; in the Passive though it must have recourse to a composition.

3) The Future,

which implies in Sindhī not only the sense of futurity, but also of possibility, uncertainty, is formed

- a) In the Active Voice, by affixing to the present participle the same inflexional terminations as to the Aorist.
- b) In the Passive Voice, by affixing to the present participle passive the same inflexional terminations, as to the present participle of the Active.

Annotation. The Sindhī has quite left the traces of the Prākrit in forming the Future and fallen back to a composition, in order to make up for the lost future tense. It has approached in this respect again nearer to the Sanskrit, which likewise forms the I Future of the active voice by affixing the inflexional terminations of the substantive verb 'as', to be, to the participial noun ending in tā (tṛ). The modern Arian idioms differ very greatly from each other as to the method, in which they form the Future. The Hindūstānī and Panjābī express the Future by means of a compound verb; they add to the Potential of a verb the past participle gā (instead of the common giā), from the root gam, to go, the gender of which must agree with the subject in question. This is properly a Desiderative, and not a Future; but already in Sanskrit the Desiderative is now and then used in the sense of a Future. Thus we have in Hindū-stānī كُرُونگاي karūn-gā, masc., and كُرُونگاي karūn-gī, fem. I shall do, literally: I am gone (الله قَمَ), that I do (الله كُرُون), i. e. I will do or shall do; similarly in Panjābī: karāngā, masc., kārāngī, fem.

The Gujarātī on the other hand accedes again more closely to the Prākrit; the conjunctive vowel of the Prākrit (i) has been lengthened in the I person Sing. and Plur., in order to make up for the double ss, which has been reduced to a single one (cf. Introd. §. 19), as: lakh-īs, I shall write, Plur. lakh-īsũ, we shall write.

In the II and III person Sing. and Plur. the conjunctive vowel has been dropped altogether, as II pers. Sing. lakh-sē, thou wilt write etc.

The Future of the Marāṭhī is quite peculiar, and, as it seems, made up from the different terminations of the Future, used in Prākrit.

The termination of the I person Sing. In (en) seems to have arisen form the Prākrit termination himi (Varar. VII, 12), and that of the I person Plural u, from the Prakrit sisi (= hisi; Lassen, p. 352), the final 'i' of which has been dropped and in compensation thereof medial 'i' lengthened = sīs; final 's' has been hardened to 'r' and thence to 'l'. The II person Plur. ends in al, which I would refer to the Prakrit termination -ssaha, the latter half of which (aha) seems to have been dropped, and the conjunct ss reduced to 's' by lengthening the preceding (conjunctive) vowel = ās; 's' again seems to be hardened to r = l. A similar process appears in the III pers. Sing., ending in īl (ēl); the Prākrit termination is hidi (= sidi); the initial 'h' has been elided and id(i) lengthened to īd, final 'd' being changed at the same time (as it is usual in the past participle) to 'l'. The III person Plural, ending in tīl is quite perplexing. We would refer to the fact, that in Prākrit hittha is also used instead of hissa (tth = ss; Lassen, p. 353; Varar. VII, 15), though restricted to the I pers. Plural. In Marāṭhī it appears, that tth has also been used in the III pers. Plural, so that the III pers. Plural would properly terminate in hitthinti; of this initial hi has been elided and the aspirate conjunct tth reduced to tt = t; n is in Marāṭhī always dropped in the termination of the III pers. Plural and in consequence the preceding vowel (i) lengthened; thus we get tīt, of which final 't' must have been changed to l = tīl.

The Bangālī forms the Future by affixing to the root of the verb the inflexional termination iba; this is very remarkable and without any analogy in any of the Prākrit dialects. It reminds us very strongly of the Latin termination bo in the formation of the Active Future of the I and II conjugation, which Bopp (Comp. Gramm. II, §§. 526, 663) derives from the Sanskrit bhū. It would be near at hand, to compare this affix with the Sindhī affix bō, employed to form the present participle passive; but its origin will hardy allow of such a comparison.

II. Compound tenses.

1) The compound Potential.

The Potential may be compounded:

- a) with the present participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb هُوَّنُ huaṇu, to be, in order to denote an enduring action or state, as: آنتُون پَڙهَندو هُمَّان I may be reading.
- b) with the past participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb هُوَّنُ huaṇu, to be, as: آنتُون رُلِئوْ هُمَّان it may have been seen by me, i. e. I may have seen it.

2) The present tense.

The Sindhī has two forms for the Present tense:

a) The common or indefinite Present tense, which denotes, that an action is commenced or going on at the time being, is formed by putting after the Potential (and occasionally before it) the augment it though which must agree with the gender of the subject, as: آنتُون هَلَان تهوْ I go; fem. آنتُون هَلَان تهِي I go.

b) The definite Present, which implies habit, usage or that an action is still going on at the time of speaking, is formed by compounding the present participle with the Present of the auxiliary verb هُوَنُ أُنْ اللهُ الل

In poëtry the auxiliary verb is often left out and the participle used by itself, determined by a noun or pronoun as subject.

Annotation. The Potential, which, as stated already, represents the old Present tense, is no longer considered sufficient, to express the Present by itself; the augment عَنْ thō is therefore added, to render more prominent the sense of the Present. This augment عَنْ thō is derived from the Sanskrit adjective stha (as used at the end of compounds) and signifies 'standing', as: اَنْمُونَ يُسَانَ تَهُوْ I see, litterally: standing I see, I am in the state of seeing.

In Hindūstānī thā is used as an augment for forming the Imperfect, whereas the common or indefinite Present is expressed by the present participle alone, and the definite Present by the addition of the auxiliary verb hōnā. The same is the case in Panjābī, with the only difference, that the Sanskrit stha has been assimilated in Panjābī to sā. In Gujarātī the indefinite Present is formed by adding the auxiliary (defective) verb čhaū etc., I am etc. (derived from the Sansk. substantive verb 'as', to be) to the Potential, as: hū lakhū čhaū, I write, and the definite Present by joining the Present of the auxiliary verb hōvū, to be, to the present participle, as: hū lakhō hōū čhaū, I am writing.

The Marāṭhī forms the common or indefinite Present by affixing the inflexional terminations of the Sansk. substantive verb 'as', to be, to the present participle, ending (originally) in tā, with which the terminations coalesce, as tō, tōs etc. Besides this the Marāṭhī uses three other compound forms for the definite Present, the first of which is compounded with the present participle ending in 'at' or 'it', and the irregular form of the auxiliary verb asaṇē, viz: āhē, as: mī lihīt āhē, I am writing; the second adds the auxiliary verb ahe etc. to the indefinite Present ending in to etc., as: mī lihito āhē, I am writing. Both these forms of the definite Present, wich do not differ from each other as to their signification, denote an action going on or enduring at the time of speaking. The third form adds to the present participle ending in 'at' or 'it', the regular Present of the auxiliary verb asane to be, viz: asate etc., as: mī lihīt asato, I am in the habit of writing, and implies a habit, custom or natural disposition; it may therefore be termed the Present Habitual. - The Bangali has, as noticed already, a simple Present, formed by affixing the inflexional terminations to the root of the verb, and a definite Present formed by uniting the auxiliary verb āchi etc. with the present participle ending in ite, the initial a of which is dropped in this composition, as: āmi dēkhitēčhi, I am seeing.

3) The Habitual Aorist,

which implies, that an action was repeated in past time or went on at the time indicated, is formed by adding to the Aorist the indeclinable augment تهي thē, which may follow or precede it, as the augment of the Present; e. g.: غر آير تهي he came (repeatedly), or: was coming.

This tense is quite peculiar to the Sindhī, no analogy to it being met with in the kindred idioms. The indeclinable augment standings the is apparently the Locative of tho, and signifies: 'in standing', which agrees well with the import of this tense.

4) The Imperfect,

which denotes, that an action was progressing or repeated at a particular time past, is formed by adding to the present participle the Aorist of the auxiliary verb مُونَىٰ huaṇu, as: رُلَنْدوْ هُوسِ I was wandering about; لَوْدهِبوْ هُوسِ I was being driven out. The Imperfect may be rendered more emphatic by premising the past participle پِتُو يَا ثِسَنْدَا هُنًا عَسَاء piō (having fallen), as: هُو يِبًا ثِسَنْدَا هُنًا were in the habit of seeing.

Annotation. In Hindūstānī the Imperfect is formed, as already alluded to, by adding thā to the present participle; the same is the case in Panjabi, which adds sā; the Marāṭhī joins the Aorist of the auxiliary verb asanē, viz: hōtō etc. to the present participle ending in at or it. The same method is kept to in Gujarātī and Bangāli, in the latter language with the slight difference, that the Aorist of the auxiliary verb (viz: chilām etc.) is coalescing with the participle present.

5) The Perfect,

which implies an action, that has been completed in time past, is formed by adding the auxiliary verb آنهِيَان āhiyā etc. to the past participle, as: رِحُوْ آنهِيَان, I am gone, رِحُوْ آنهِيَان, I have been seized.

Annotation. All the kindred idioms form the Perfect in the same way as the Sindh $\bar{i}$ , by adding the Present of the auxiliary verb to the past participle.

6) The Pluperfect,

which implies an action, that has been completed in remote past time chiefly in relation to some other time, expressed or only understood, is formed by adding the Aorist of the auxiliary verb مُونَىٰ huanu to the past participle, as: دهتي هيس I had gone; دهتي هيس I had been enticed (fem.).

Annotation. In Hindūstānī and Panjābī the Pluperfect is formed by adding thā and sā respectively to the past participle. In Marāṭhī the Aorist hōtō etc. is joined to the past participle and similarly in Gujarātī hatō etc. In Bangālī (which must not resort to a passive construction in the case of transitive verbs, as the other idioms) the Aorist of the auxiliary verb, viz: čhilām etc. is united with the past participle ending in yā.

- 7) The compound Future tenses.

  There are two compound Future tenses in Sindhī:
- a) The one is compounded with the participle present and the Future of the auxiliary verb هُوَنُ huanu, which may be termed the Definite Future, as: يُسَنَّدُوْ هُونَدُسِ I shall be seeing.
- b) The other is compounded with the past participle and the Future of the auxiliary verb هُونُنُ huaṇu, and may be termed the Past Future, as: هَلِمْوْ هُونِدُوْ اللهِ I shall have gone; هُونِدُوْ هُونِدُوْ he will have been bound.

Both these tenses do not only denote futurity in its strict sense, but imply also possibility, uncertainty or doubt.

A. The auxiliary verb فرن huanu, to be.

Before we can fully develope the conjugational process of the Sindhī, we must first describe the inflexion of the auxiliary verb فَوْنَ huaṇu, to be, by means of which the compound tenses of other verbs are being made up.

Annotation. The root  $\hat{j}$   $\infty$  hō (Inf.  $\hat{k}$  hu-aṇu) corresponds to the Sansk. root  $\mathbf{H}$  bhū, to become, which is assimilated in Prākrit to hō or huva; the past participle of it is in Prākrit huō or hūō, thence the Sindhī huō. In reference to the Potential hujā etc., it is to be kept in mind, that Prākrit uses already for the Present (and Future) such forms as hojja, hojjā etc., which Lassen derives from the Sansk. Precative  $\mathbf{H}$   $\mathbf{H}$  (Lassen, p. 357).

The root ho is used in all the kindred idioms.

The old Present آنهيان āhiyā, I am, is derived from the Present of the Sansk. substantive verb र्भ 'as' to be, Prākrit amhi etc. The Marāṭhī form of it approaches very closely to that of the Sindhī, as: āhē etc. In Hindūstānī (hã, haī, hai etc.) initial 'a', which has been lengthened in Sindhī and Marāṭhī, has been dropped; the same is the case in Panjābī, as hã, haī, hai etc. In Gujarātī, where initial 'a' has been likewise thrown off, we find the forms čhaū, čhē, čhē etc., which correspond to the Prākrit form received aččhi etc. (Lassen, p. 266, 346). In Bangālī we meet with the still more primitive form āčhi etc.

Chapter XV.

Inflexion of the regular verb.

§. 51.

A. Inflexion of the neuter or intransitive verb.

All the neuter verbs end in the Imperative in 'u' (§. 43) and in the participle present in andō (§. 44).

But there is also a considerable number of transitive verbs ending in the Imperative in 'u' and in the participle present in andō, which take in consequence thereof the same inflexional terminations as the neuter verbs, with the only difference, that in the Past Tenses they must invariably resort to the passive construction.

We exhibit now the inflexion of a regular neuter verb.

Neuter verbs very often take in the Potential and in the Present tense the passive form, without altering in any way their signification, and are then inflected like other passive verbs (see the inflexion of the passive verb), as: پَهَنْ pharaṇu, v. n., to be fruitful, or پَهَنْ phar-j-aṇu; پَهَنْ v. n., luṛhaṇu, to float, or اَچَهْنُ kāviṛ-j-aṇu, كَاوِجَنْ v. n., to be angry or پَجَنْ kāviṛ-j-aṇu, اَچَهُنْ v. n. ačaṇu, to come, اَچَهُنْ pa-ij-aṇu, يَوَنْ v. n. pavaṇu, to fall, or پَجَنْ pa-ij-anu etc.

The III pers. Sing. of neuter verbs in the passive form is frequently employed impersonally throughout all the tenses with the exception of the Aorist and Perfect, as: halijē, it may be gone, هَلِيهُ halijē thō, it is gone, هَلِيهُ halibō ahē, it is being gone, هَلِيهُ halibō hō, it was being gone; هَلِيهُ halibō, it will be gone.

On the other hand there are also some active verbs Trumpp, Sindhī-Grammar.

(but ending in the Imperative in 'u'), which are constructed in the Past tenses like neuter verbs, and not passively, as: سِكْعِتْسِ sikhiuse, I learnt (not مُون سِكَعِتْشِ sikhanu, v. a., to learn; سِكَتْس sikiuse, I longed for, from سِكَتْس sikanu, v. a., to long for.

B) Inflexion of the transitive verb.

The inflexion of the transitive and causal verb agrees on the whole with that of the neuter verb in the Potential, the Present, the Imperfect and the Future; but it differs from the inflexion of the neuter verb by being destitute of the Past Tenses of the Active Voice, which must be circumscribed by the past tenses of the Passive Voice, the past participle of transitive verbs having always a passive signification. The agent must therefore in the past tenses be put in the Instrumental, or it may, if that be a pronoun, be affixed to the past participle in the shape of a Suffix. It is understood, that the past participle passive must agree with its substantive in gender and number, as well as the adjective.

From every transitive and causal verb (and partly also, as noted already, from the neuter verb) a passive theme may be derived, which is regularly inflected through all tenses.

We exhibit now the inflexion of a transitive verb, ending in the Imperative in 'e'.

Chapter XVI. Compound verbs.

§. 53.

The Sindhī possesses a great facility in giving different shadows of meaning to a verb by compounding it with another verb.

1) The most common way of compounding a verb with another is to put the past conjunctive participle of the active or passive mood, ending in  $\bar{\imath}$  or  $\bar{e}^{\,\imath}$ ), before it.<sup>2</sup>) The construction of a verb thus compounded depends entirely on the definite verb, not in any way on the past conjunctive participle. In this way are formed

a) So-called Intensitives, which impart to the definite verb a peculiar signification, arising out of the sense of the preceding past conjunctive participle, as: vaṭhī vańaṇu, to take off, literally: to go having taken; مَرِي رَنْجَنْ marī vańaņu, to be dead, lit.: to go having died; چَڙهِي وَجَهَنُ čaṛhī vańaṇu, to ascend, lit.: to go having ascended; کھلي پَوَنُ khulī pavaṇu, to be opened, lit.: to fall having been opened; جِي پَوَنُ jī pavanu, to become alive, literally: to fall having lived; vahī pavaṇu, to pour down (as rain), literally: وَهِي پَوَنُ to fall having flown. — وَقَهِي وِجِهَنُ vaḍhē vijhaṇu, to cut down, lit.: to throw having cut; سوْرِي كَذَّهَنُ sōrē kadhanu, to pull out, lit.: to pull having moved; čāṛhē āṇaṇu, to hang up, lit.: to bring having caused to ascend; لَوْرَهِي حِهَدُنُ lōṛhē čhaḍaṇu, to float off (act.), lit.: to give up having floated away; tāṇiō čhinaṇu, to pluck out, lit.: to pluck out having pulled; مؤتَّاتِي نِئِّنُ mōṭā-ē niaṇu, to bring back, lit.: to take away having caused to return, etc. etc. It is to be noted, that کَهَنِي khaṇī, the past conjunctive participle of کهنون khananu, to lift up, is used with all sorts of verbs, to intensify their signification, implying, that the action is done forthwith, as: كَهَنِي لِكَهَنْ khaṇī likhaṇu, to set to writing; كَهَنِي أُجَارَنُ khaṇī uyā-raṇu, to set to polish, كَهَنِي أُجَارَنُ khaṇī vajāiṇu, to set to play (an instrument); كَهَنِي وَجَائِنُ khaṇī vańaṇu, to be off.

<sup>1)</sup> The past conjunctive participle ending in  $i\bar{o}$  is also occasionally used to make up a compound verb.

In the same way the past conjunctive participle of بَوْنِ pavaṇu, to fall, viz.: پَوْنِ paī or پِيشِي pēī, is put before a verb, to intensify its signification, as پَرْبِي كُوِئْنُ paī khiaṇu, to eat on or up, literally: to eat having fallen upon it. The augment تهن thō of the Present tense is dropped, when the verb is thus compounded with پَرْبِي paī or پِيرْبِي pēī.

When he was grown up, he died. Abd-ul-Lat̄ı̄f's life, p. 2.

Take the advice of the pilots, that thou mayst pass the full tide. Sh. Sur $\bar{a}g$ . V, 7.

Buy those goods, which do not become old. Sh. Sur $\bar{a}\bar{g}$ . III, 2.

Then having taken out earth from this tank they built cells and a mosque. Abd-ul-Latīf's life, p. 22.

He who will eat (it) with pleasure, that is my friend. Maj. 319.

b) Compound verbs, implying possibility, and power are formed by putting a past conjunctive participle before the verbs سَكَهَنَ saghaṇu¹), to be able, and أَجُاذَنُ janaṇu, to know, as: كُرِي كُرِيو سَكَهَنُ karē, karyō saghaṇu, to be able to do; تُرِيعُ جَاذَنُ dēī jāṇaṇu, to know to give.

In what manner shall I weep for my friend? I do not know how to weep. Sh. Kōh. VI, 1.

Thou didst not understand to give sleeplessness to (thy) eyes. Sh. Kōh. I, 12.

c) The idea of completion is expressed by putting a past conjunctive participle before the verbs: رَهَنُ rahaṇu, to remain, وَتَهَنُ vaṭhaṇu, to take, نَحَنُ čukaṇu, to be at an end; نبهَنُ nibhaṇu or نبهَنُ nibaṇu, to be ended; similarly before بَس كَرَنُ base karaṇu, to leave off, to have done, as: بَهِي رَهَنُ vathī rahaṇu, to have taken; رَمِي رَهَنُ ramī rahaṇu, to be off; كَهَائِي وَتَهَنُ ramī rahaṇu, to be off; كَهَائِي وَتَهَنُ khāē vaṭhaṇu, to have done eating; كَهَائِي جَكَنُ karē čukaṇu, to have done speaking.

With him friendship has been already made. Maj. 196.

When Jesus had ended these sayings, then the people, having heard his doctrine, became astonished. Matth. 7, 28.

d) Duration or repetition is expressed by putting before the definite verb the past conjunctive participle ending in iō, to which also the emphatic ī may be affixed, als: پَرْهِمُوْ پَرْهِمُنْ وَالْهُوْنُ paṛhiō paṛhaṇu, to read over again, to keep on reading.

Read over again the lesson of this very pain. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 31.

Even that, that letter I read over and over again Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 33.

2) Another kind of Intensitives is formed by putting the past participle of پَوْن pavaṇu, to fall, viz.: piō, before the Imperative, Present¹) or Imperfect of a definite verb, as: پِتَا وْسَنْدُا هُنَّا وَمَالْجَانْسِ piō māṇijāse, enjoy her; پِنَّا وْسَنْدُا هُنَّا وَمَالْجَانْسِ they were seeing.

When she comes to the couch, then pull out her feathers; afterwards enjoy her. Amulu Māṇ. p. 147.

Chapter XVII.

The Verb with the Pronominal Suffixes.

§. 54.

The Sindhī uses the pronominal suffixes far more extensively with the verbs, than with the nouns (cf. §. 30). The suffixes attached to the verbs express, strictly speaking, only the Dative and Accusative (the object), and, with the past participle passive, also the Instrumental, though we may translate them by any case, save the Nominative.

The pronominal suffixes attached to verbs are identical with those attached to nouns, with this difference, that the suffix of the I person Plural,  $\tilde{u}$ , which is not in use with nouns (but with adverbs and postpositions), is used throughout the verb. There is further a peculiar Instrumental affix, attached to the past participle passive, which is never used with nouns or adverbs, viz.:  $\tilde{1}$  for the Singular, and  $\tilde{u}$  for the Plural.

It appears, that the suffix  $\tilde{i}$  is originally the Instrumental Sing. إِنَ ina, by him (from هِي hī, this), and  $\tilde{u}$  the Instrumental Plural أن une, by them (from مُعْرِ hū or أَن une, that).

To the first person Sing. and Plur. the suffix of the same person is never attached, as in this case the reflexive pronoun غان pāṇa, self, must be employed.

In the compound tenses and in compound verbs the suffix always accedes to the latter part of the compound, though it properly belongs to the first member of the compound. Similarly the suffix is never attached to the augment though it is those or the compound. Similarly the suffix is never attached to the augment those or the compound that the compound is the compound that the compound that the compound that the compound tenses and in compound tenses are the latter part of the compound, though it properly belongs to the first member of the compound. Similarly the suffix is never attached to the augment to the compound tenses and in compound tenses are the compound.

To the past participle passive even two suffixes may accede, the first expressing the Instrumental and the second the Dative or Accusative, as will be shown afterwards.

The way, in which the several suffixes are attached to the inflexional terminations of the verb, will be best seen from the following survey.

§. 55.

I. The pronominal suffixes attached to the auxiliary verbs تَجِمَّنُ and تَجِمَّنُ

Plur. be to them. be to them.

In the same way the suffixes are attached to تَعِبَانْمِ. thiju, as: تعِبَانْمِ thij-ā-me, become to me, تعِبَانْمِ thij-ā-se, become to him.

Then if those are in front, be thou in their back. Amulu Māṇ. p. 144.

<sup>3)</sup> When a nasalized vowel ( $\tilde{e}$ ) is followed by a dental nasal, the sign of nasalisation ( $\omega$  in Arabic characters) is generally dropped as superfluous; thus مُرِنِي huē̃-ne, instead of هُونِي huē̃-ne, instead of هُونِي hū̃-ne, instead of هُونِي hū̃-ne.

In the same way the suffixes are attached to the Potential تهنان thiã, I may become, and to the Indefinite Present مُنَّان تهرُ huā thō and ثَنَّان تهرُ thiā thō, as: هُبُينُم تهو huễ-me thō, thou art to me etc.

Instead of آنهن āhē and آنهن āhine the form atha is also in use, but only when joined by suffixes. It corresponds to the old Prākrit form হালিখ athi (the III pers. Sing. of the substantive verb asmi, I am, see Lassen, p. 345), which in Sindhī has also been transferred to the Plural.

The suffixes are attached to it in the following manner:

In the Present Definite: هُونْدُوْ آنهِيَان the suffixes accede, as noted already, to the latter part of the compound.

That to عُرِي hō, عُرِي huī etc., when forming with the past participle passive the Pluperfect, also a suffix, denoting the Instrumental, may be attached, will be shown in §. 56, 5.

It is to be observed, that the inflexional termination of the I pers. Sing. masc. and fem., se, becomes sã before the accession of the suffixes; the fem. termination سُيسَ huyase is at the same time reduced to its original form هُمُيسَانِيَّ huī-sã-e. The suffix of the I pers. Plur. is in the Aorist sũ or sĩ, and not ũ, as in the Imperative, Potential and Present. In the II pers. fem. Sing. the form هُمِيسَ huyễ or هُمِيسَ huyễ semployed, when followed by the heavy suffix sũ or sĩ, the accent being then thrown on the last syllable of the verb, as: huyễ-sũ or huyễ-sũ.

In the same way as to هُيَسِ hōse and شُيَسِ huyase the suffixes accede to تَعِنِّس thiuse and تَعِنِّس thiase, and to every other neuter verb in the Aorist, for which تعِنْس thiuse may serve as paradigm.

In the same way the suffixes accede to the Potential of the passive voice. The Potential and Present of the regular passive is however very rarely found with a suffix, more frequently that of intransitive verbs in the passive form, as: كَنْ جَانِي تهن gaḍijā-e thō, I meet with thee.

In the Imperfect the suffixes accede, as stated already, to the auxiliary verb  $\hat{n}$  hōse.

Lord, give leave of absence to the prince, that I may come having laid him at the feet of the Faqīr. Amulu Māṇ., p. 1.

Though their wounds flow, yet do they not their sigh divulge to the people. Sh. Kal. II, 23.

3) The past participle. (The III pers. of the Aorist.)

The way, in which the pronominal suffixes accede to the Aorist of neuter verbs, may be seen from the paradigm of thiuse. In the Aorist of the passive voice the suffixes are only attached to the III pers. Sing. and Plur. or to the past participle passive. The suffixes thus attached imply either a Dative-Accusative (the object in general) or an Instrumental. The suffixes of the I and II pers. of the Sing. and Plur. may at the same time denote the object or the agent, but in the III pers. Sing. and Plur. different suffixes are employed to express the object or the agent, se and ne denoting the object, and  $\tilde{1}$  and  $\tilde{u}$  the agent (see §. 54). Both  $\tilde{1}$  and  $\tilde{u}$  are considered as heavy suffixes, which draw the accent from the first to the last syllable of the verb; final  $\bar{0}$  of the past participle must therefore be changed to  $\bar{a}$  before them (and for euphony's sake with an additional nasal to  $\bar{a}$ ), to give a support to the following heavy suffix. In the fem. Sing. an  $\bar{a}$  must likewise be inserted between the final  $\bar{1}$  and the suffixes  $\tilde{1}$  and  $\tilde{u}$ , to which even the feminine Plural termination  $\tilde{u}$  must give way, so that the Singular and Plural of both genders become alike, if joined by the instrumental suffixes  $\tilde{1}$  and  $\tilde{u}$ .

b) The past participle with two suffixes.

To the past participle passive two suffixes may be attached, the first denoting the agent and the latter the object (Dative-Accusative), as:

thou wast given up by me, literally: by me it was given up in reference to thee.

To suffixes of the II pers. Sing. and Plur. no further suffix is added, joint suffixes of this kind being mostly found in the III pers. Sing and Plur., very seldom in the I pers. Sing. and Plur.

The suffix used for the I person Singular is in this case not me, but mã (the Instrumental of ãu), as 'me' would not be strong enough to support the following suffix. The Instrumental suffix of the III pers. Singular î is either contracted with the preceding ā to ã, or is retained before a following suffix; the suffix of the III. person Plural keeps its place before another acceding suffix, but is frequently shortened to ũ (u).

No change of gender and number can take place in the participle, when joined by the suffix of the III person Singular or Plural; but when the participle is provided with a suffix of the I person Singular or Plural, it must agree with its subject in gender and number.

(The Perfect.)

The single suffixes, be they referring to the agent or the object, are joined to آهي āhē and آنهي, but chiefly to the form atha (§. 55), and not to the participle itself.

But to the form it atha a double suffix may be joined, the first implying the agent and the latter the object, as: ڎٚۏ ٱتۿ۪ڽمَانى, I have given to thee, literally: it has been given by me in reference to thee. suffix of the III. person Singular and of the II. person Plural does not admit of a second suffix.

5) The past participle with the auxiliary هو etc.

(The Pluperfect.)

The single suffixes are joined to هُوْ hō etc., which see. But to هُ الله hō etc. a double suffix may also be attached, the first denoting the agent and the latter the object, as: چَهَنْدُوْ هُوْمَانِيَ čhaḍiō hō-mã-e, thou hadst been given up by me, literally: it had been given up by me in reference to thee. These double suffixes however are of rare occurence; in the II person Singular and Plural they are not in use.

Adverbs.

§. 57.

The Sindhī has only a limited number of original adverbs.¹) Adverbs are not derived from adjectives by any change of the adjectival termination, but the adjective as such (in the masc. Sing.) is either used in an adverbial sense, or the adjective, agreeing in gender and number with the subject referred to, is employed, where we would use an adverb as a complement to the verb, as:

$\frac{2}{2} \frac{2}{2} \fra

A number of substantives are at the same time also used adverbially, either in the Nominative, the Instrumental, the Locative or the Ablative case, similarly some adjectives in the Locative and Ablative have received an adverbial signification.

<sup>1)</sup> Adverbs borrowed from the Arabic or Persian are here only so far taken into consideration, as they are commonly used in Sindbī.

I. Original adverbs. 1)

The most common of them are:

apāka, accidentally. apare, excessively. ate, very.

II. Peculiar use of Adjectives.

The following adjectives may be either used as (indecl.) adverbs or they may agree with their subject in gender and number even in such constructions, where in English an adverb would be used.

<sup>2)</sup> نجيلي is substantive, after which خري karē is to be supplied; i. e. having made a favour thou art come = thou art welcome!

رَّا مَرِّارَةُ اَنْ أَوْ مِتْرَارُةُ اَنْ أَوْ مِتْرَارُةُ اَنْ أَوْ مِتْرَارُةُ الْمُحْرُدُ مَا لِمُحْرُدُ مُا لِمِيْرُدُ مَا لِمِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ مَا لِمِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ مَا لِمُعْرَدُ لِمِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ مِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرُدُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرُونُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرِيْرُ لِمِيْرِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِيْنِيْنِ لِمِيْنِيْنِيْ vējhō, رڃيءَ vējhirō, dim, near; close to.

mahandiyỗ, in front; before.

In the same way the Adjectives, implying time or place, derived from adverbs by the affixes  $\bar{a}h\tilde{o}$  or  $\bar{a}r\bar{o}$  are either used adverbially or they may agree with their subject in gender and number, as:

جي may be constructed with ويجهو، سَامُهوَن، اوْتُوْ، آتُوْو (î) or مَامُهوَد .كهي

<sup>2)</sup> سُوںھو is probably derived from the Sansk. साईम्, with; from मंहित, joined by.

أَوْرَاهِوْن ōrāhō, somewhat on this side; from اوْرَاهِوْن ōre, on this side.

agāhō, somewhat in front; from الكياهون agē, before, in front.

poëtāhō, a little behind; from پوْتِتَاهُوْں poëtē, in the rear.

مَتهاهوْن mathāhō, somewhat higher up; from مَتهاهوْن mathē, on; upon.

manjhārō, somewhat inside; from مَنجِهَاروْ manjhāhō, jhe, in.

When used adverbially (which is commonly the case), they take also the fem. termination, as:

َعَلِين agāhī, in front; in advance.

mathāhī, on the top; above.

The Adjectives, ending in āitō (§. 10, 20) may at the same time be used adverbially, as:

sũhāitō, suitable and suitably.

vasāitō, optional and optionally.

etc. etc. etc.

The Adjectives of one ending, which are not inflected, may all be used as adverbs; as:

barābare, right and rightly.

jara, جَارَ much; very. جَالَ

jaldu, quick and quickly.

sōḍītu, true and truly.

غَبَثُ abasu, vain and vainly. etc. etc. etc.

V. Adverbs derived from the Pronominal bases.

From the pronominal bases a number of adverbs is derived by means of certain affixes, which coalesce with the pronominal base. We exhibit them in the following survey.

Pron. base.	Manner.	Place.	Direction.	Time.
i, ī, ē hē.	(آā¹ اِينتَ	(ite² اِتِ	ايڭي ēḍē³)	(-sī̃ 4 إيسِين

	ki-ē	ka-te		kā-sĩ
	in what	where?		how long.	when?
	wise?		direction?

Some of these adverbs are again compounded with adverbial postfixes (and partly prefixes): as: يَانِكِيتَان ȳã-kī or كَانِكِيتَان ȳã-kī-tā, so long as; ȳaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳaḍ̄eh-ō-kō, ȳaḍ̄eh-ā-kura (ā-kara), from such a time as, since. تانْكِيتَان tā-kī or تانْكِيتَان tā-kī-tā, as long as; تَانْكِي taḍ̄eh-ā-kō, تَانْكِيتَان taḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-tāḥ̄, a little in this direction; ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-kō, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-haḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-haḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh-ā-haḍ̄eh-ā-ko, ȳchaḍ̄eh

The adverbs implying 'place' and 'direction' may also be put in the Ablative, as: اِتَاتُونِ it-ā, اِتَامُونِ it-ān, اِتَامُونِ it-āhū, from this place, hence; ut-ā, اُتُونِ ut-ā, اُتُونِ ut-ā, اُتَانِ ut-ā, اُتَانِ

thence; تِتَانِ tit-ā, تِتَانُونِ tit-ā, تِتَانِ tit-ā, from that place; لا لا kith-ā, كِتهُونِ kith-ā, كِتهُانِ kith-āhū etc. from what place, whence? اِيثَانُ ēd̄-āhū, اِيثَانُونِ ēd̄-ahū, اِيثَاهُونِ ēd̄-ahū, اِيثَاهُونِ ēd̄-ahū, اِيثَاهُونِ ēd̄-ahū, اِيثَاهُونِ

The emphatic ī (ī) or hī (hē) very frequently accedes to these adverbs, as: إِنْمِنتِي iē-ī, in this very wise; ita-ī or اِتَانتِي ita-hī¹), even here; اِتَانتِي itā-ī, itā-ī, even hence; اِتَانتِي ēḍa-ī, اِتَانْهِي ēḍa-hī, in this very direction; اِيْدُانِيْ ēḍ-ā-ī, from this very direction etc.

The eyes of my body are there, where the side (country) of my companions is. Sh. Um. Mār. I, 12.

Thence a camelman has come; this information is correct. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 6.

As thou wilt, even so it shall be unto thee. Matth. 15, 28.

<sup>1)</sup> The final ĕ o these adverbs is changed to 'a' before the emphatic ī, for the sake of euphony; but ē keeps its place also, as: رُبُيتُونِي utē-ī, in that very place.

آنتُون تهو پُچهَان گهوتهِيَا كِيسِتَنْ قَصْلُ كِتُوء

I ask, o gallant young man! how far did your purpose go?

Then he says: I dwell in the city of Mekka, my purpose went up to this place. Maj. 168, 169.

The mountaineer is gone off, having torn (my) body;

I am also from that time (only) half (and) afflicted. Sh. Dēsī, Čhāṭ. 6.

VI. Compound adverbs.

The Sindhī uses a considerable number of compound adverbs 1), which are formed either by reduplicating the adverb (or noun), or adding a similar adverb (or noun), or by adding an adverbial affix or postposition.

<sup>1)</sup> Such compound adverbs may be written in one word or separately. When joined by a conjunctive vowel it is usual to join them also in writing.

1) Reduplicated adverbs,

(with or without a conjunctive vowel; cf. §. 12,  $\Pi$ , 2).

بهيري بهيري bhērē bhērē, constantly.

پل پَل pale pale, every moment.

Chapter XIX. POSTPOSITIONS.

§. 58.

The Sindhī has no prepositions, but only post-positions, as all adverbs or particles, which influence in any way the noun, are placed after the noun and not before it. Only (2) rē, (2) ria may be optionally used as preposition or postposition.1)

There is only a small number of original post-positions in Sindhī, which require the noun in the Formative; far the greatest part of the postpositions now in use are originally adverbs (i. e. substantives and adjectives used adverbially; cf. §. 57, II. III. IV.), which either retain their original adverbial signification and are consequently constructed with  $\bar{z}$   $\bar{z}$ , or which are already treated as postpositions and require the Formative of the noun governed by them; the greater part of them may therefore be constructed with or without  $\bar{z}$   $\bar{z}$ , and be put before or after the noun, they govern.

I. Postpositions proper, requiring the Formative of the noun governed by them.

<sup>1)</sup> je bhar has already in Hindustānī a signification bordering on that of a postposition. In Sindhī the substantive je bharu, prop, support, is also in use, of which je bhare is the Locative.

Chapter XX.

CONJUNCTIONS.

§. 59.

The conjunctions serve to express the relation, in which either the single words of a sentence or two or more sentences stand to one another. According to their signification the conjunctions may be divided into:

1) Copulative.

تنځ — تنځ tĩa-tĩa, as well-as.

He also, after he was grown up, died. Abd-ul-Latīf's life, p. 2.

<sup>1)</sup> Generally written, for the sake of abbreviation s.

Therefore they are often also beaten. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 50.

I am very longing as well for the spinning place as for the country. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 1.

2) Concessive.

ta, then (as apodosis in a conditional sentence generally not translated).

تہ بِہ ta bi, nevertheless; then also; even then.

تَوْرِّي tōṇē,

tōṇē,

although; notwithstanding.

jētōṇē¹),

jētōṇē,

جى jē, although; if.

تَنْهِن جِي لِنْگَنِ تؤن جِي كَپِڙو لَهِئُو وَنَجِي تَه تَجِلُو وِ جُ

Then he says: (if) I die, I obtain honor; I if return, it is, to say so, a shame. Maj. 408.

Though their wounds flow, nevertheless they divulge not (their) sighing to the vulgar. Sh. Kal. II, 23.

The heart also shall be given to one, though hundreds covet (it). Sh. Barvō Sindhī III, 7.

Change thou that company, although the profit of a thousand would accrue to thee. Sh. Ram. Kal. VIII, 25.

3) Adversative.

hathā, هَتهَان but rather; on the contrary (Panjābī). hathō̃-ī̄, emphat.,

Either they go to the bank or (they go) with them in the stream. Sh. Suh. VIII, 1.

Do men pluck grapes from thorns or figs from a thistle? Matth. 7, 16.

No man can do the service of two masters; for either he will keep enmity with the one and make friendship with the other; or he will seize the skirt of the one and not at all mind the other. Matth. 6, 24.

Art thou he, wo was coming, or shall we look out for another? Matth. 11, 3.

kane is postposition and not the III pers. Plur. of the Present (کُرین = کُن) as Stack supposed; see Stack's Gramm. p. 101, Note. The verse quoted there does not quite agree with the Risālō.

پَاتِشَاهْزَادِي اَسِين كِي تَوْ كَهِي مَنَعَ تَهِيُون كَرْيُون O princess, do we dissuade you? Amul. Māṇ. p. 145.

Chapter XXI. INTERJECTIONS.

§. 60.

In treating of the Interjections we abstract form such nouns or phrases, as are or may be used in the sense of Interjections, e. g. مَاتَعُ māṭhe, silence! (s. f.), cǎnō, good! مَاتَعُ مَعْدُرُ allāhu aṣlamu, God knows! (lit. God is wiser, scil. than I), and only adduce such particles, as have now become strictly interjectional.

Besides the Vocative signs, mentioned already in §. 16, 8, the following are the most common; they imply:

The Devs will say to thee: wilt thou recognise her? Then say: yes. Amulu Mān., p. 150.

Well, show me those things. Ibid. p. 147.

Abate too high acrimony; if they say to thee: b̄ōd̄u (pooh), say thou: j̃u (very well). Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, 22.

They, who have love to God, they, indeed, boast. Maj. 778.

THE SYNTAX.

We divide the Syntax into two parts, the analytical and synthetical. In the analytical part the chief constituent parts of speech, which have been described in the elementary grammar, are to be considered according to their exact signification, their intrinsic value and their special application. In the synthetical part it will be shown, how the different parts of speech are linked together in order to form a sentence and how two or more sentences are joined together.

I. THE ANALYTICAL PART.

SECTION I.
THE NOUN.

Chapter I.

On the absence of the article in Sindhī.

§. 61.

The Sindhī possesses no article definite, as little as the Sanskrit and the modern Ārian tongues of India. The noun may therefore be definite or indefinite, as:

15 the woman or: a woman.

There are no fixed rules, by which a noun may be known as definite or indefinite, the only safe guide is attention to the context. On the whole it may be remarked:

- 1) A certain number of nouns have by themselves a definite meaning, as: هِنتُون hio, the mind, مِن siju, the sun, سُرِيُّ ubhirando, the east, سُرِيُّ surgu, the heaven, اُبِهِرَ ubhu, the sky etc. Similarly all proper nouns.
- 2) If a noun stands in apposition to a proper name, it is thereby rendered definite, as: چِينَ وِلَايَتَ the country of China, حُسِن پَرِي the fairy Husine.

If for any reason a noun is to be pointed out as indefinite, the numeral adjective معرفة one, or the indefinite pronoun ومراقع one, any one, is used. There is some slight difference in the use of معرفة and one person or thing is unterstood, the latter generalizing the same, by implying, that some one out of many, or something, which is not further described, is intended. معرفة may also be used in the Plural, especially before another numeral, to render the number somewhat doubtful, as: معرفة معرفة معرفة ومعرفة ومعرفة

The donkey, having become jolly, began to say to the stag. (Both the donkey and the stag having been mentioned before.) Sindhī Read. Book, p. 68.

He asked from them a vessel of (magic) power; at length they gave him the vessel and its (magic) power. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 67.

Whatever milk and scum of butter there will be, that I will give to foreigners. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 60.

Some villager had put some quantity of grain in (his) garner. Ibid. p. 54.

Chapter II.

On the gender of nouns.

§. 62.

The Sindhī possesses only two genders, the masculine and feminine, the neuter having been lost in the course of time. As to the special use of the genders it is to be remarked:

- 1) The masculine gender is the next and refers either to male beings, or to things and abstract ideas.
- a) The masculine gender denotes living beings in general (the females being included therein) as: مَارِّهُونِ jānvaru, an animal; جَائُورُ jānvāru, a horse (generally). But in some nouns, implying inferior animals, the feminine includes both genders, as: اَلَى balā, a snake (generally); makhe, a fly; جُونِ jū; a louse etc. But if the gender of a noun is to be expressly mentioned, مَادِي naru, a male, and مَادِي mādī, a female, must be put before it.

The people of the city of Mekka assembling form crowds. Maj. 38.

God said: the earth bring forth living beings after their own kind, cattle and creeping animals. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 14.

They do not allow a male bird to sit down. Amulu Māṇ. p. 141.

It is an anomaly, that the nouns بَازُ bāzu, اللهُ bāšō, أَازُ bāzu, بَاشُو bāšō, غَرَلُ šikirō, چَرَكُ čaragu, sīčāṇō, سِيجَانُو baīsirō, lagaṛu, denoting different kinds of female hawks, are masculine, whereas the nouns بَشِينَ bašīna and چَپَکَ čipaka, denoting male hawks, are feminine.

b) If a neuter idea is to be expressed, the masculine must be employed, the masculine generally supplying the place of the neuter, as: خون چَيرُ it is good; نوب چَيرُ it is good; نوب چَيرُ it was said by one. But this is only the case in the Singular, the masc. Plural of an adjective (or participle) never being used in a neuter sense. It must not be lost sight of, that the masc. form of an adjective cannot be employed in Sindhī in the sense of an abstract substantive ') (as in Latin, Greek or German), but that the corresponding substantive must be used (cf. §. 9, I. 1, 2) or the adjective must be accompanied by a substantive denoting 'thing' or 'matter'?); only the masc. Singular of the past participle passive may be used in the sense of a neuter substantive.

Ye will become like God, knowing good and evil. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 19.

Will he not give to them good things? Matth. 7, 12.

Surely, what is written (in fate), will be fulfilled; from that, which is written, no one will escape. Maj. 258.

She does not, what I said, go thou and subdue her. Maj. 285.

- c) In such nouns, in which a distinction between a larger or smaller size is admissible, the masc termination is used to express the idea of relative largeness, as: مَاكَوْةُوْ mākōrō, a large ant, مَاكُوْةُوْ mākōrō, a big fly; مُاكَوْةُوْ bhungō, a house (large hut); كُوْتُهُوْ kō-thō, a large room; مُوْتُهُوْ kāṭhu, a beam (a big stick) etc.
- 2) The feminine gender refers either to female beings, or to things and abstract ideas.
- a) The feminine being considered the weaker sex, the idea of relative smallness, littleness or weakness is expressed by the fem. termination in all such nouns, which admit of such a variation of meaning, as: ماكوْرِّي makhe, a small fly; بهنگي bhungī, a small hut etc.

stantive, as: تَجُوْ كَهَبُوْ right (and) left, scil. يَاسُوْ, which is to be supplied.

- b) A number of adjectives are only found in the fem. form مَنْدُهِ sandhe, barren (said of women); يَجْهَرُ garbhina, barren (said of cattle; كَرْبِهِنِ garbhina, pregnant (said of women); مَنْ suā, milch (said of animals); كَبْهُورُاتِي gabhōrārī, having a child (said of a mother): رَبِيْتِي varētī, having a husband (said of a married woman), وَثُورُرُ vadavara, fit to be married etc. etc.
- c) Adjectives or pronouns in the feminine are frequently used eliptically, the noun عَالِيهُ gālhe, word, matter, being unterstood. The noun تَارِيحَ tārīχa, date, day, is also occasionally omitted.

Then the mother asks Majnõ: what has happened to thee? Maj. 44.

O fair husband of Sōraṭhe! do some (word) of mine! Sh. Sōr. I, 11.

On the fourteenth (day) the moon rose; on the twenty-ninth the vulgar sees it. Sh. Kambh. II, 10.

Chapter III.

Number.

§. 63.

The Sindhī has only two numbers the Singular and the Plural, the Dual having been dropped already in Prākrit (cf. §. 15). As to their special use it may be remarked:

1) Arabic nouns in the so-called broken Plural are (according to their original signification) treated as collective nouns, and consequently constructed with the Singular of a verb (or adjective). The Arabic fem. Plural in of is likewise treated as a Singular. But now and then the Arabic Plur. is constructed with the Plural of a verb etc., or it is put in the Sindhī Plural form and treated accordingly.

Ask, if some children are destined for me from the threshold of God. Amulu Māṇ., p. 139.

Blessed are those, who are peace-makers; for they shall be called children of God. Matth. 5, 9.

Then the Lord gives thee a meadow, where the gardens of Eden are. Sh. Sōr. I, 9.

Do ye not see, that the Lord of the world with all companions, and all prophets are come. Life of Abdul-Latif, p. 37.

- 2) With numerals the Singular form of a noun may be used, though the Plural is more common (cf. §. 23).
- 3) The Plural is frequently used in a honorific sense, when speaking with respect of any person. A noun in the Singular may therefore be constructed with the Plural of a verb (adjective etc.), or the noun itself may be put in the Plural, though implying only a Singular. This is frequently the case with the nouns مُوْنُ , دُوْسُ etc.

For the same reason the II pers. Plural of a verb is used, when addressing politely a person, but not so frequently as in Hindūstānī, the common people being as yet in the habit of addressing each other by the II pers. Singular.

Abd-ul-Latīf used to play in his youth with boys of his age the play lika likōṭī (hide and seek). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 9.

Woe, o sisters, I shall then not live without the Jat (i. e. Punhū). Sh. Dēsī VI, Epil. 2.

By the discourse of (= about) my beloved, by the recollection of my friend my crippled life has been revived. Sh. Jam. Kal. III, Epil.

Having come to the Shāh he said: Sir, give me also to drink. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 32.

4) The following nouns modify their signification in the Plural:

SINGULAR.

أمير Āmīru, s. m., Lord; Amīr.

pēkō, Adj., belonging or relating to one's father.

خَانُورُ čāvaru, s. m. a grain of cleansed rice. كَانَةِ dāṇō, s. m., a grain.

vāpambā, s. m., the capsules of the Coreya arborea (a medicinal plant).

hathōriyū, s. f., handcuffs.

Chapter IV.

The cases of the noun.

§. 64.

I. The Nominative.

As to the special use of the Nominative it may be noted:

1) Nouns or proper names standing in apposition to another noun are generally coordinated to the same, as: كَرَاحِي بَنْكَرُ the harbour Karāčī; لِكَ لِكُوتِي رَانِكِ the play lika likōṭī; شَنْسُ پَاتِشَاهُ the king Shamsu etc.; but the noun in apposition may also be subordinated by means of the Genitive; cf. §. 67, 4.

Well! smiles the queen-mother of the king D̄iāču; i. e. saying: well! she smiles etc. Sh. Sōr. III, 6.

Lailā is the name of a woman, who (is) the daughter of the Qāzī Qamar. Maj. 33.

The month (= moon) (of) Muharram was seen; anxiety befell the princes. Sh.  $K\bar{e}\bar{d}$ . I, 1.

2) Substantives implying a number or quantity may be likewise coordinated to another noun, instead of governing it in the Genitive (cf. §. 23), as: قُاتَرُ دَلَ of liberal persons.

There are throughout lakhs (of) tale-bearers and scouts upon lovers. Maj. 254.

Having cut with (their) swords they made heaps (of) carcasses. Sh. Kēḍ. III, 4.

Having taken buckets (of) heart-pleasing gifts be content! Sh. Sör. III, 4.

3) The duration of time is expressed by the Nominative (or by the uninflected case generally).

The (whole) eight watches (i. e. day and night) the hook of the Great (= God) is in my skull. Sh. Sōr. I, 20.

Those, who watch during the nights, I shall make (my) friends. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, Epil. 2.

Stay for my sake this night, o darling! Sh. Sam. I, 20.

4) The Nominative is frequently used absolutely to avoid two or more nouns following each other in the inflected case, which is contrary to the Sindhī idiom; the case, in which the nouns should properly stand, must then be taken up by a pronoun or pronominal adjective. If the stress be laid upon some part of a sentence, it may be put quite absolutely, its relation or subordination being taken up by a pronoun. This is especially the case, when a noun is nearer defined by a relative pronoun in the Nominative, the noun being then attracted by the following relative.

مِيوًا مَنْجَرَ مَاكهِيُون سَبهِنِي چَكهَنِ چَسَ

Fruits, clusters of flowers, (kinds of) honey, they try the taste of all. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 9.

(As to) the entering of a rich one into the kingdom of God, the passing of a camel through the ear of a needle is easier. Matth. 19, 14.

She remembering the Lord, trembling, shaking, fearing, lifted up (her) neck and made: Māu. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 64.

Then ye will become children of your father, who is in heaven. Matth. 5, 45.

§. 65,

II. The Vocative.

By the Vocative a person or thing taken personally is addressed; the Vocative stands therefore in no connexion with other nouns or with a verb, and is generally put at the beginning of a sentence.

1) The Vocative is used without any interjectional particle, if no particular stress is laid upon the address; but if the attention of the person spoken to is to be roused, the interjectional particles يَ yā, إِ قَ عَلَى ai, أَ قَ عَلَى are used promiscuously with masc. and fem. nouns, وَ اَ عَلَى aī only with fem. nouns.

In addressing an inferior person, or when speaking very affectionately to a person, the interjectional particles چ بَة بَة (چ بَة عَبَة عَبْق عَبْة عَبْق ع also used independently of a noun, in addressing an inferior female (or intimate friend).

I have been quickened, companions, come in my Punhų̃! Sh. Dēsī Π, Epil.

For God's sake, camelmen, do not drive on the camels!

Friend! thou art the protector of my crippled life!

Do not extinguish (my) affection, o sweetheart! Sh.

Dēsī III, 1.

O 3Alī, 3Alī, misfortune is on the orphans!

The order of God has come, o Imāms. Sh. Kēḍ. V, Epil.

Hallo! son of man, doest thou go having beaten our mother? Amulu Māṇ. p. 148.

Hallo! cook, bring bread! Ibid. p. 144.

2) Adjectives preceding or following a noun in the Vocative are likewise put in the Vocative. But if an adjective defines another adjective in the sense of an adverb, it remains uninflected.

Sweet, charming friend! mayst thou fertilize the whole world! Sh. Sār. IV, 12.

O very kind friend! they (= she, Sing.) have given me up with difficulty (i. e. unwillingly). Maj. 664.

3) The Nominative Plural is occasionally used instead of the Vocative, especially with nouns terminating in 'u' (masc.).

Who are ye? whence do ye come from? ye men of foreign appearance? Nānga jō Qissō, v. 23.

Ye, that labour and are heavy laden, come unto me. Matth. 11, 28.

4) A number of nouns are commonly found in the Vocative only, as: إَيَلِ amaṇe (اَيَلِ amaṇe), اَيَلِ ā ā ā, اَيَلِ amaṇe, اَعَلِي amī, o mother! an affectionate term for a female; مَا عَلَى dādī, o sister! جِيجًا dādī, o sister! وَيَ adī مَا كَانِ dādā (Nom. عَلَى dādā (Nom. عَلَى o brother! أَنَا عَلَى bābā (from اَبَابُ abā and اَبَا abā and اَبَابُ bābā (from مَيَالَى), o father! a term, which may be applied even to a child (male or female); مِيَالَى miyā (Sing. and Plur.) o friend! a respectful address.

O mother! hope is fulfilled, Punhū has arrived at Kēč. Sh. Dēsī, Chōṭ. 4.

O child (o father!) I make thy espousals with the son of the king Lālu. Amulu Mān. p. 142.

Fathers! what reason have you to ask after this very (thing?) Ibid. p. 140.

Having come, o darling, o friend! cover with dust the tomb of the deceased one in the mountain-passes. Sh. Ma;8. VI, Epil.

§. 66.

III. The Instrumental.

1) The Instrumental either denotes the agent, by whom an action is performed, or the instrument, by means of which any thing is done. 1) The Instrumental in Sindhī is not only used with the past tenses of transitive or causal verbs (which always have a passive meaning), but also with any tense of neuter verbs implying a passive signification. 2)

By the people of the caravān the loads have been bound up; in thy eyes there is sloth. Sh. Surā\(\bar{g}\). III, Epil.

<sup>1)</sup> The sense is different, if the postposition be used with a noun denoting an instrument. In this case it is implied, that some one was accompanied or armed with any thing, but not, that he has performed any thing by a certain instrument.

<sup>2)</sup> Independently of a verb the Instrumental of مُقَالَةُ nālō, name, is used quite in an adverbial sense, as: هِكِرْدُ فَتَيْرُ نُحَمَّدِ عَالِمُ فَالِيمُ فَالِيمُ وَالْمِينَامِةُ وَعَالِمُ عَالِمُ عَالِمُ مَا يَعَالِمُ مَا يَعَالِمُ عَالِمُ عَالْمُ عَالِمُ عَالْمُ عَلَيْهُ عَالِمُ عَالِمُ عَلَيْهُ عِلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلِيهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَي

Sũhiṇī was killed, says the Sayyid, by (her) relationship. Sh. Suh. V, 17.

By the lovers (God) is never forgotten. Sh. Jam. Kal. VII, 1.

By means of (my) feet I cannot arrive (there); the country of (my) friend (Pl.) is far off. Sh. Khambh. I, Epil.

By drops they are not reconciled; they have espied the jars of the heroes. Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 9.

2) The Instrumental expresses causality<sup>1</sup>) (by reason of, by dint of):

On the seventh in the month the blood went out of the veins by reason of dryness;

On the eigth in the month the eyes of the lover die of thirst. Maj. 478, 477.

3) The Instrumental expresses the way and manner, in which any thing is done.

He kept the custom (good breeding) in a good manner before the Qāzī. Maj. 173.

'There is no purpose in both mansions', in this wise they spoke. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 23.

To both helpless ones (there is) pleasant talk in many ways. Maj. 198.

4) The Instrumental expresses the price, for which any thing is bought or sold. 1)

Are not two sparrow sold for a piece? Matth. 10, 29.

Fine black woollen blankets come there to hand for a paltry (sum). Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 8.

§. 67.

IV. The Genitive.

1) It must be remembered, that the Genitive in Sindhī is originally an adjective, formed by the affix , which always requires the Formative of the noun, to which it accedes; the Genitive admits therefore of gender, inflection and number, like other adjectives. Instead of its diminutive form is jarō is also found in poëtry, and especially in sandō (cf. §. 16, 6) and its dim. form is andirō. The Genitive case-sign etc. may also accede to a noun with suffixes; in poëtry it is frequently dropped altogether, to be supplied from the context. in may also be separated from the noun, to which it belongs.

<sup>1)</sup> But the postposition with may also be used in this sense.

The understanding of the duties of a faqīr is not easy. Mēngho 37.

O friend, into my soul falls the desire after thee! Sh. Barv $\bar{o}$  Sindh $\bar{i}$  II, 2.

By means of the magic power of the bucket he became wealthy. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 67.

The masters of the house having got up what do they see? that a thief, having collected all things of the house, having bound a bundle, having drunk wine (and) having become intoxicated, dances. Ibid. p. 69.

Having stolen daily from the houses of men all sorts of food they were bringing it to him. Ibid. p. 62.

To the forest with that thy son, who will cut off the head of my brother! Story of Rāe Diāču, p. 1.

The grass of (my) fatherland I consider as musk. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 1.

2) As regards the position of the Genitive, it generally precedes the noun, by which it is governed, like other adjectives; but if the stress be laid on the governing noun, or if the euphony of the sentence should require it, the Genitive follows the same. In poëtry the Genitive precedes or follows the noun, on which it is dependent, either immediately or separated by one or more intervening nouns, as it may be required by the metre or the rhyme.

Whoever flees from the trouble of labour, his state will become like that of the dogs. Sindhī Read. B., p. 61.

Escort, for God's sake, the boat of the helpless one! Sh. Barvō Sindhī  $\Pi$ , Epil.

3) The Genitive has a double signification in Sindhī; it refers either to the subject or to the object of the sentence. The Genitive is called subjective, if the attribute expressed by the Genitive refers to the governing noun (or subject) as to its owner or author, and it is called objective, if it refers to the object, to which the action of the subject is directed.

I have borne the taunts of (my) companions for thy sake. Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō I, Epil.

Those, whose I am, will not abandon me. Sh. Kōh.  $\Pi$ , Epil.

Beneath the feet of (my) friend I spread (my) hair. Maj. 231.

In my heart there is a thirst after the Jam Ārī. Sh. Hus. VIII, Epil.

Complaints about the separation I shall utter to dear Punhū, o friend! Sh. Hus. VIII, Epil.

4) One noun is often made dependant on the other by means of the Genitive, where we should properly expect an apposition.¹) In this way in alō, name and similar nouns subordinate the appellation in the Genitive. The same subordination in the Genitive takes place, when the genus is nearer defined by the species, as: a fig-tree, or when a geographical appellation, as: town, mountain, river etc. is followed by a proper name, as: the river Indus. In some instances the English idiom resorts to the same construction, as the Sindhī, e. g. the city of London.

From whom hast thou learnt the word (of) 'separation', dear friend! Sh. Barvō Sindhī II, 8.

The woman uttered the word (of) 'money' slowly. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 68.

That very dry post stood as a green tamarisk tree, having become big and thick. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 23.

There was a very respectable inhabitant of the town of Thatā. Ibid. p. 45.

5) The Genitive describes the material, of which something is made or composed; in this case the Genitive quite supplies the place of an adjective.

The garment of John was of camel's hair and round his waist a girdle of leather. Matth. 3, 4.

She, having put on bracelets and buttons, will cause to bring (call for) a garment of pearls and rubies. Amulu Māṇ. p. 144.

6) The Genitive describes the nature or quality of the noun, on which it is dependent (Genitivus qualitatis). But in this case the Genitive must always be accompanied by an attribute, be that an adjective, pronoun or another noun in the Genitive; the repetition of a noun may also serve as an attribute. In poëtry, and even in prose, the Genitive case-sign is frequently dropped, so that constructions of this kind can hardly be distinguished from those with the Locative, see §. 70, 4.

One of them was nine years old, the other eight years. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 50.

Without understanding science is of no use. Ib. p. 54.

From Kēč came a caravan, camels of a fine kind. Sh. Dēsī III., 8.

Having given clothes of different kinds he started them off. Amulu Mān. p. 140. 7) When the Genitive is dependent on nouns, implying a part, quantity or measure, it expresses the whole of that, of which the governing noun forms a part. But if no such noun precede and a part is to be singled out, a postposition must be used (as: مَنْجَهَان etc.).

Which a woman took (and) hid in three measures of flour. Matth. 13, 33.

A jar of wine fell into his hands. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 62.

In one of those (houses) my beadstead shall be, in the other that of the king. Amulu Māṇ. p. 142.

If two persons of you become one-hearted respecting a petition. Matth. 18, 19.

8) A certain number of adjectives and appellatives, which have partly taken the signification of substantives, may subordinate another noun in the Genitive. Of this kind are the nouns formed by the affix  $\bar{a}ku$ ,  $\bar{a}\bar{u}$  (see §. 8, 9) and others.

Lovers, drinkers of poison, are verry happy when seeing poison;

They are always used to the chain and the execucutioner. Sh. Kal. II, 33.

Thou art a resident of the waste and desert. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 69.

A vagabond, accustomed to bits, no breeding and good behaviour. Maj. 304.

Which lustre is upon thee, for that head I am longing. Sh. Sōr. II, 7.

The Sayyid, by name Shāh Habīb, was originally an inhabitant of the village Vangō Vilāsō. Life of Abdul-Latīf, p. 1.

9) The Genitive is used, without being dependent on a governing noun, to express a space of time, as:

وَ يِنْهُ جِوْ by night, وَيِنْهُ جِوْ by day etc., the noun, by which the Genitive is governed and which is idiomatically left out, being ويلوْ vēlō, time.

This construction is therefore identical with that mentioned in §. 64, 3. In Hindūstānī كَوْ is used in the same sense.

Sitting at (the time of) evening prayer I spread out my skirt on the water. Sh. Sōr. V, 14.

The bard sang the first night at the side of the castle. Sh. Sōr.  $\Pi$ , 1.

By day they used to sit in its shade. Life of Abdul-Latīf, p. 23.

10) A number of adjectives require idiomatically the inflected case of the Genitive (i. e. جَي), when a noun is made dependent on them. The most common of them are: وَقَ مَا وَقَ مَا وَقَ وَ وَاللهُ وَ وَاللهُ وَاللّهُ وَلّهُ وَاللّهُ وَاللّهُ

When they came near to Jerusalem. Matth. 21, 1. أَبْهَرُ چَنْدَرَ پَسُ پرين تَوْ اوْثَا مُون ثُور

Look at the rising of the moon; the friend is near to thee, far from me. Sh. Kambh.  $\Pi$ , 7.

The eyes are opposite the eyes the whole day and night. Maj. 219.

11) The relative adjectives جِهْرُ jehō, jeharō, such as, like as, fit to, سَنْدُو sandō, like as, jē-tirō, as much as, and بَيْنُو jē-ðē, as large as, are always constructed with the simple Formative of the noun, that depends upon them.

Majnõ, the son of Mahmūd, is then not such as to come, i. e. is not likely to come. Maj. 719.

Teeths like Jasinum flowers the Bountiful has given her. Maj. 54.

Which is blessed in all ways, like thou, o wise one. Maj. 825.

In that (there is) even thou, thou; (there is) no other sound (as much as the twinkling of an eye =) for a moment. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 19.

Then no mote, as large as a sesamum seed, came into thy body, o friend? Ajāib v. 21.

12) When a noun is subordinated by means of the Genitive to the Infinitive of a neuter or active verb, the case-sign of the Genitive may be optionally dropped.

The villager occupied himself in (the) removing of that little grain. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 56.

The Mughals, having taken (their) swords came for the killing of the Shāh, i. e. 'in order to kill him'. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

After the seeing of this affluence she offered up dutiful thanks. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 55.

Till the passing away of heaven and earth not one jot of the law shall in any way pass off. Matth. 5, 18.

§. 68.

V. The Dative.

1) The Dative denotes the more distant object, in reference to which the subject is acting. This is already indicated by the postposition khē (§. 16, 4), by means of which the Dative case is made up¹), and which originally signifies: 'on account of, for the sake of, in reference to'. In prose the postposition is always put after the Formative of a noun, but in poëtry it may precede the noun, or it may be dropped altogether.

When a Genitive, depending on a noun in the Dative, follows the same immediately, the postposition is put after the Genitive case-sign.

Come near, dear friend, do not give pain to the distressed. Sh.  $\bar{A}$ bir $\bar{i}$  X, 4.

Then Maste Nāze came and said thus to the elegant. Ajāib, v. 90.

<sup>1)</sup> In poëtry the postpositions کُنِ kane, کُنِ gare are used in the same sense as

May no sunshine apply to the camelmen, may no hot wind apply to the camels!

O God, may no hot wind blow to the sons of Ārī! Sh. Dēsī I, 25.

Having bound (him) they delivered him to the police-officer of the town. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 69.

2) The Dative with the auxiliary verbs هُوَّنُ to be, and تَعِمَّنُ to become, to be, expresses the idea of possession.

I have hope in God. Sh. Sōr. I, Epil.

I have no lack whatever of wealth, but children are not at all born to me. Amulu Māṇ. p. 139.

3) The Dative denotes the remote object, in reference to which the action takes place. In this case the postposition was be translated by: for, for the sake of.

(My) heart (and) mind burns for my sweetheart in intoxication. Maj. 728.

In Kēč there is a call for those, under whose armpit there is nothing (i. e. who have nothing). Sh. Mass. II, 11.

They sent men for food, water (and) grass. Sh.  $K\bar{e}\bar{d}$ . I, 5.

O hero! thou diest for the sake of victory, forget then the apprehensions of the heart! Sh. Kēḍ. VI, 9.

4) The Dative expresses the idea of motion to a place.

Having driven on I came to Kēč, where Punhū himself (is). Sh. Ābirī V, 1.

O fair Lady, after death thou wilt come to Punhū. Sh. Ma¿ð. IV, 5.

The work of a messenger (i. e. travelling) does not at all bring to  $K\bar{e}\check{c}$ . Sh.  $\bar{A}bir\bar{\imath}$  IV, 10.

5) The Dative is used to express time, when only an indefinite space of time is spoken of, whereas the postpositon مين or مين, in, is employed, if the time, during which any thing is done, is to be noted.

Qaisare says: arrive that very night in Kelāt. Sh. Sār. IV, 3.

Go to (thy) friend at day-break, in clear day. Sh. Suh. Čhōt. 11.

Immediately at that time an order was given to the chamberlains. Ajāib, v. 15.

§. 69.

VI. The Accusative.

The Accusative has two forms in Sindhī, it is either identical with the Nominative or with the Dative, i. e. the idea of the Accusative may be expressed also by means of the postposition .

1) The Accusative is commonly expressed by the form of the Nominative, whenever the verb governs only an Accusative, and not at the same time a Dative.

When he shall keep his own horses, boats, soldiers and make his own judgements and thoughts. Amul. Mān. p. 139.

If I shall marry, I shall marry this very fairy Husine. Ibid. p. 141.

2) But when the subject of the sentence is an animate noun (in the Nominative) the object (Accusative) must be marked out by means of the postposition (i.e., and the object inanimate, the object (Accusative) generally remains in the uninflected form (i. e. without the Postposition), if there be no danger of misapprehension. If both, subject and object, imply inanimate things, the object may likewise remain uninflected.

Shāh Sāhib, having taken that very faqīr with him, came. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 40.

The father of the Shāh continued seeking the Shāh Sāhib. Ibid. p. 44.

When Maxdūm Hāshim heard, that the Shāh Sāhib causes to make music in the mosque. Ibid. p. 35.

If ever this word the king of the mice will hear. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 62.

If that (treasure) some man finds, he keeps it concealed. Matth. 13, 14.

The (black) marks (from blows) cause pains; the bones also are aching on account of the (= my) sweetheart. Sh. Ābirī, Čhōṭ. 2.

3) When the object (Accus.) of an active verb is for any reason to be rendered more prominent, the post-position is used for this purpose. This is especially the case, when the object implies living beings, whose mention has been made already, or when two or more persons or things are in any way compared or set against each other. But much scope is left in this respect to individual judgement. In poëtry is occasionally dropped, but then the contracted form of the Formative must be used in the Plural.

That disciple, having called (that) girl, said. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 48.

The devs said: wilt thou recognise that very one? Amulu Māṇ. p. 151.

In that way money will be got; having brought (something) from that let us feed (our) guests. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 41.

Sisters, says Abd-ul-Laṭīf, praise ye the (well-known) friend. Sh. Ābirī Čhōṭ., Epil. 3.

Having gathered first the tares, having bound bundles to burn (them), gather (and) put afterwards the wheat in the garner. Matth. 13, 30.

Whatever longing there is, learn (it); otherwise look at the longing ones. Sh. Jam. Kal. VII, 7.

4) Whenever an active verb is constructed impersonally in the past tenses (§. 94, 5) the object must be pointed out by the postposition ركهي, signifying: as regards.

Then it was abandoned by the caravan as regards her, while being asleep, i. e. she was abandoned by the caravan while being asleep. Sh. Kōh. I, 8.

Having taken his bundle he started him off. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 53.

5) When a verb governs a double Accusative, both objects remain in the uninflected state, if they imply things; but if the first object be a person or a living being in general, it is rendered more definite¹) by the accession of the postposition (**), whereas the second object, be it a person or thing, remains in the uninflected state of the Singular, though it refer to a Plural. If the stress is on the second object (compare §. 94, 3), it may be placed first.

I shall give (my) flesh to the wild beasts, having made atoms (my) life. Sh. Ābirī IX, Epil.

That one was in the habit of causing the guests to eat bread, i. e. he was in the habit of entertaining the guests. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 40.

Make the weak one pass the Hāṛhō, says Lat̄īf. Sh. Dēsī IV, 4.

<sup>1)</sup> But both objects may also remain in the uninflected state, though implying persons; see §.  $94_{\tau}$  3.

6) When an active verb subordinates at the same time a near and a more distant object (i. e. an Accusative and a Dative), the Accusative (in the uninflected state) generally follows the Dative, except a particular stress be laid on the Accusative, in which case it precedes the Dative.

The accomplished one causes daily nice blandishments to be made to Qais. Maj. 223.

The hands the little daughter shall wash us. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 48.

But one (grain) thou doest not give to another with thy hand, having thrown in an obstacle, o brother! Mēnghō 11.

§. 70.

VII. The Locative.

The Locative, as noted already, can only be expressed in the Singular of masculine nouns terminating in 'u'; in all other nouns and throughout the Plural the Locative must be circumscribed by the postpositions and and and and and and throughout the Plural the Locative must be circumscribed by the postpositions are commonly dropped and only the Formative of a noun is used to express the idea of the Locative, in the Plural the contracted form of the Formative (ending in ē or ā) must in this case always be employed. But also in prose the postpositions منجه and منجه are frequently left out idiomatically, especially after nouns implying time.

When a substantive in the Locative is accompanied by an adjective ending in 'u', the adjective must be likewise put in the Locative; but adjectives of other terminations, pronouns or numerals are only put in the Formative.

1) The Locative expresses in Sindhī not only the place, in which an action is going on, but also direction and motion to a place. The Locative is therefore used after verbs of motion, such as: رَجَنَ va-nanu, to go, اَچَنَ ačanu, to come etc.

No crows were sitting on a tree; evening tide has set in; she seizes the opportunity.

She stepped in, having taken the jar into the hand, having heard the call (to prayer) of the evening. Sh. Suh. I, 14.

In the caldrons the limbs boil, where not a grain does descend in the eddies. Sh. Kal.  $\Pi$ , 27.

In deep, very great love are hares and jackals. Maj. 548.

May not any one, o friend! trust in a Baluchī promise! Sh. Dēsī, Čhōṭ. 7.

I go to the forest; I have seen the footstep of Punhū. Sh. Hus. V, 4.

Having given (left) the other doors to others, I came to thy door. Sh. Sōr. I, 11.

2) The Locative is used with nouns implying time, to express the point of time, at which an action takes place.

One day, making a journey, they arrived at (lit.: came out of) Jesalmēr. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 40.

At some time in a village one mouse, having reflected in its mind, said. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 61.

(My) beautiful friend came at day-break to (my) house. Sh. Khambh. I, 9.

(My) body weeps in the nights (and) in the days, in the chains (i. e. in prison). Sh. Um. Mār. V, 7.

3) The Locative is used also in the sense of the Latin Ablative absolute, to express a state or circumstance. In this way either an adjective may be used absolutely (i. e. substantively, so that an attribute may be joined to it) or a substantive with an adjective; in either case the participle present in being, being, should be supplied, but is idiomatically left out. 1)

Grant me that favour, that I may meet, whilst living (lit. in the state of being alive) my sweetheart. Sh. Ābirī I, 1.

Whilst we live no one shall take even the name of thy hair. Amulu Māṇ. p. 151.

Do not take down the load; depart, that thou mayst meet with (thy) object, whilst the sun is (yet) red. Sh. Hus. I, 2.

4) The Locative describes the attributes or qualities, in which the subject is, to say so, immersed. In the English idiom such a Locative must be translated by the postposition 'of' or 'with'.

Of slender waist, of straight nose, with lamp-black their eyes (are) filled. Sh. Sām. I, 35.

In the adornment of the head (and) body he is a hero of great boldness. Ajāib, v. 156.

With great udder they came, having behind their young ones. Sh. Sār. IV, 14.

Hast thou seen any where one by name Shāh Abdul-Latīf, of such marks and signs, my son? Life of Abdul-Latīf, p. 9.

An orphan, of torn clothes, to look upon like a basil leaf. Maj. 303.

Of deer-eyes, of ears of a wild goose, of a Kōvil's speech. Ibid. 52.

Of a neck (and) breast like a pigeon, amiable. Ibid. 60.

5) The Locative is used also in computations, the sum or price, at which something is computed, being put in the Locative (cf. also §. 66, 4).

Thy step I do not balance with ten billions, if thou become comforted. Sh. Sōr. II, 4.

That heart, which is not at all obtained for a price, thou hast asked. Sh. Sōr. II, 15.

§. 71.

VIII. The Ablative.

The idea of the Ablative is expressed either by the Ablative case (cf. §. 16, 5) or by postpositions, as: کَهَا، کَهَا، from-in, مَتهَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتْنَا، بَتْنَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتْنَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَاء بَتَنَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَانَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَنَا، بَتَالَا بَتَنَا، بَتَنَاء

1) The Ablative denotes in the first instance separation, removal, distance from a place or thing; it is therefore commonly used with such verbs, postpositions and adverbs, as imply a distance or separation from any thing (place, time etc.).

This one came, having made a journey from a foreign country. S. Sōr. I, 5.

When I fled from Bhambhōru, then all pains became delights;

Having descended from the mountain-pass I became in my own person Punhū. Sh. Ābirī V, 2.

I will scoop out of (my) shoulders something, o bard, and give it thee with the body. Sh. Sōr. II, 22.

Before death, o Sasuī, o fair Lady! die whilst living! Turn not aside from that company, by which the soul has been lost on the road. Sh. Ma¿ð. IV, 6.

2) The Ablative is therefore used in comparisons, the object, with which a noun is compared, being put in the Ablative, to state the distance or difference of one noun from another (cf. §. 21).

If thou desirest to meet thy friend, then esteem virtue more than vices; (literally: esteem virtue before vices.) Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, 22.

<sup>1)</sup> Let the same as I, the latter having been, after a poëtical license, aspirated, for the sake of the rhyme.

Having built a dwelling better than all other faqīrs (lit. good from), he lived at Bhiṭa (i. e. on the sandhill). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 21.

3) The Ablative expresses the ground, reason or feeling, out of which or with which an action is done.

Respect Muhammad, the intercessor, out of understanding (and) love. Sh. Kal. I, 2.

Go, ye scholars, that she may eat with pleasure. Maj. 117.

4) The Ablative denotes also instrumentality and accompaniment; but this use is restricted to inanimate nouns and to poëtry; in prose either the Instrumental or the postposition would be employed for this purpose.

Those say to thee: do thou not return a word with (thy) mouth. Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, 17.

Give thou praise to the wise one publicly with (thy) tongue. Sh. Surāg. I, Epil. 1.

The mouthfuls, which thou, o camel! hast obtained (and) plucked with the mouth. Sh. Kambh. II, 29.

Go with the gold to the banker, (but) do not at all take down the load! Sh. Surāg. IV, 9.

5) With neuter verbs the Ablative (especially with the postposition کهای) denotes the agent. The same is the case with passive verbs, if the agent be an inanimate noun.

Master, I have done wrong, forgive me that! Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 20.

I shall become a candle in the night, being burnt by that delight. Sh. Khambh. I, Epil. 3.

By the beauty of (his) face I was made mad in (my) mind. Sh. Suh. IX, 8.

Chapter V.

Pronouns.

I. Personal pronouns.

§. 72.

1) The personal pronouns are generally not expressed, being implied in the inflexional terminations of the verb. They are therefore only used either for the sake of perspicuity or for the sake of emphasis¹) or contrast. In poëtry a personal pronoun is often omitted, where we should expect one, and must then be supplied from the context.

On the whole the personal pronouns precede the verb, to which they belong, but they may also follow it, especially in poëtry.

I am alone on the Hab, I have no friend nor brother. Sh. Suh. II, Epil. 2.

Ye married women also return! I shall not return without (my) husband. Sh. Ābirī IV, 9.

Go again ye all, who have husbands! Ibid. IV, 9.

Even me kill my own pains.

2) The Genitives عَنْهُن جَوْ and تَنْهُن جَوْ my, thy, are possessive adjectives in the Nominative and inflected accordingly. In poëtry the case-sign عَوْ is frequently dropped, but then the forms عَوْ and يَ must be employed. Instead of the possessive adjectives the pronominal suffixes attached to nouns (verbs and postpositions) or to سَنْدُو (cf. §. 40, 2) may also be used, and in certain cases يَنْهُن جَوْ see §. 77.

The Genitive of the personal pronoun of the I and II pers. Sing. and Plur. (Lat. mei, tui etc.) is expressed by the Formative يَنْهُن جِي مُنْهُن فِي وَيْ فَدُد., which is also used before such postpositions, as require جِي, cf. §. 58, II.

My heart is fixed there, here is (only) earth and flesh. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 16.

It is my friend's turn to come to my house. Sh. Kambh. I, 9.

Thy companions, thy friends have been carried down the river by the waves. Sh. Surāg. VI, 6.

Whoever loves son or daughter more than me, is not worthy of me. Matth. 10, 37.

Come, walk after me, i. e. follow me. Ibid. 19, 21.

3) ثنيْن جو and ثنيْن عبر are also used substantively, especially in the Plural, in the sense of: my, thy people or friends.

I have a very great longing; would that my (friends) had returned! Sh. Sām. II, 17.

4) The Accusative of the personal pronouns must always be marked by the postposition ركبي, which in poëtry however is frequently dropped. But if in a sentence a Dative and Accusative of a personal pronoun (or pronoun of the III pers.) should occur, the Dative takes the postposition على المعادية المعادية على المعادية على المعادية المعادية على المعادية الم constructions of this kind are however avoided, whenever possible. 1)

(To =) Upon me (is) thy reproach, o my friend! Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō II, 14.

Go not away from Kāk anywhere, o Rāṇō, it is not right for thee. Sh. Mūm. Raṇō I, Epil.

Bhita does not give you up, and thou do not run away! Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 21.

3) When the personal pronouns are accompanied by an attribute in the inflected case, they must precede it in the Formative.

Make some turn, o husband, to the hut of me, the lowly one! Sh.  $\overline{D}$ āharu III, 1.

Woe, by me the humble one nothing was then said! Sh. Dēsī IV, Epil.

They will give to me the afflicted a sign, for God's sake. Sh. Kōh. III, Epil.

I have presented you into his hands, i. e. made a present of you to him. Amulu Man. p. 148.

<sup>1)</sup> This may be done easily by a passive construction, as:

§. 73.

II. Demonstrative pronouns.

1) There is no personal pronoun of the III pers. (Singular and Plural) in Sindhī, its place being generally supplied by the demonstrative that, he, she; but if a distinction between a nearer and a more distant object is to be made, the demonstrative pronoun this i), is referred to the object near at hand, and to the more distant one. When the subject (or object) of the sentence immediately preceding is to be taken up again by a pronoun, the demonstrative pronoun is used.

When the groan of her dying came upon her ear. Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

Thou art a man, she a woman. Amulu Mān., p. 147.

That one has in his mind (the word) 'night', these ones think this. Maj. 34.

1) (50 is also used idiomatically in the following way:

Otherwise this is the kingdom, this thou, i. e. I will have nothing to do with the kingdom nor with thee. Amulu Mān. p. 141.

2) The demonstrative pronoun joined to a personal pronoun, signifies 'therefore'; as:

O Umar of the Sūmirō clan, therefore how shall I put on silk? Sh. Um. Māruī VII, 6.

The Dev has given thee a necklace of nine lakhs; that also I snatched away and took to hands. Amulu Man. p. 147.

All these buffaloes have come out of it (= were born); take them as thy own. Sindhī Read. B. p. 61.

2) The demonstrative pronoun ; this very, refers emphatically either to an object near at hand, or just mentioned or immediately following, and it that very to a more remote or afore mentioned one. jet this here, and jet that there, are only used in a local sense.

If ever this very (just mentioned) word the king of the mice shall hear. Sindhī Read. B. p. 63.

That very one then is my sister. Amulu Māṇ. p. 149.

3) In the Accusative the demonstrative pronouns commonly take the postposition (if they refer to persons (or animate beings generally) which are to be rendered more prominent; but if there be no stress laid on the demonstrative, the uninflected form of it is used. If the demonstratives refer to things or if they precede adjectively another noun in the uninflected form, they remain uninflected in the Accusative, if the postposition where the postposition is a position where the postposition is a position to the postposition where the postposition is a position to the postposition where the postposition is a position where the postposition is a postposition where the postposition where the postposition where the postp

She, having seen these, locked the door. Amulu Mān. p. 149.

When you find it, come and give me intelligence. Matth. 2, 8.

Then I shall see that, (and) then send to you a slave-girl. Amulu Māṇ. p. 150.

These trees you will not obtain; those trees there (are) many.

§. 74.

III. The relative and correlative pronoun.

1) The relative pronoun in Sindhī is جؤ, who, which, and the correlative شر that, which usually takes up the relative. Besides the relative جيكؤ, the indefinite pronouns whosoever, جيكؤ whatsoever may also correspond to the following correlative .... The place of the relative pronoun may also be taken up by a relative adverb. Instead of the correlative a demonstrative may be used, if the stress be laid upon it.

The sentence headed by the relative pronoun may either precede or follow that commenced by the correlative, according to the emphasis laid on either

حَيْفُ مُنْهُن جِي حَالَ كهِي جَا يُجِهِي آنتُون بِيكَارِ Woe to my state, as I am bad and useless! Maj. 756.

pronoun; for the sake of emphasis the correlatives may be repeated.

When the relative (and correlative) refers to a pronoun of the I or II person, the verb of the relative sentence is usually in the III person, and not in the I or II person.

In poëtry either pronoun may be dropped.

That, which shouted: a coward (is) the cat, ran also away. Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

Those, which thou considerest as verses, are signs. Sh. Suh. IX, 6.

That will be a companion to thee, whatever thou prayest to the Lord of the world. Mēnghō 8.

That is my native country, where my sweetheart (is). Maj. 86.

May I not be forgotten by them, whom I do not drop out of (my) mind. Sh. Sām. II, 4.

Those trees, which give no good fruit, are cut off (and) thrown into the fire. Matth. 7, 19.

I, who is (= am) given up in the mountains, how shall she (= I) arrive at Kēč? Sh. Dēsī, III, Epil.

2) The relative pronoun (and, as the case may be, the correlative) usually precedes the substantive, to which it refers, but the relative may also follow, if the substantive has one or more attributes. The subject of a sentence is frequently first expressed by a demonstrative pronoun, and then taken up by the relative and correlative, to render it more prominent.

Which cat (= a cat that) eats her own young one, will that ever give up a mouse? Sindhī Read. B. p. 53.

Give up that traffic, in which there is no jewel. Sh. Surāg. IV, 8.

The faqīr, who was powerful (in magic), to him information was brought. Amulu Māṇ. p. 147.

A mad, strange thief, a foreigner, who reads (studies), Shakes laughing hands with thy daughter. Maj. 240, 241.

Those, who were great men (and) warriors, went destitute out of the world. Menghō 4.

4) The relative and correlative pronoun may in the same sentence be subject and object, so that the sentence is doubly correlative, the object, if a pronoun of the III person, being likewise expressed by the relative and correlative.

For whom they are longing, with them join them. Maj. 203.

That kindness they bestow, which is bestowed on them. Sh. Sur $\bar{a}\bar{g}$ . IV, 4.

5) In the first member of a correlative sentence (or, as it may be, in the second) is occasionally used instead of the simple relative, which is then taken up again by a following correlative.

Those friends, who are wanted, have gone on a journey. Sh. Sam. I, 24.

- O Almighty, will those ever come, of whom the discourse is? Maj. 457.
- 6) With the correlative adverbs the correlative pronouns and adjectives may be joined in the same sentence.

When those, who said: he is alone (God), he has no partner,

Respect Muhammad, the intercessor, out of love with their hearts,

Then (none) out of them was entangled in a place, where there is no landing. Sh. Kal. I, 3.

Where so many hours are written in fate, There so many have come to pass. Sh. Mass. V, 9.

7) The correlative adjectives and adverbs (cf. §. 38, 2), when placed after each other, imply an indefinite sense. The same is the case, if a relative be joined with an interrogative.

The cat, having eaten some (a number) of the mice with delight, went off. Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

The princess, having enticed him somehow, having gained (his) heart, drew him out (i. e. got the secret from him). Amulu Māṇ. p. 147.

§. 75.

IV. The interrogative pronouns.

1) کوف who? is applied to persons and المن and کوف and بین what? to things only; these three pronouns are used absolutely and not joined adjectively to another noun¹); in which case the interrogative adjectives کیهرو , کیهو of what kind? are to be employed.

<sup>1)</sup> کیر is occasionally joined adjectively to a noun in poëtry, as: کیر مُنْجُوں کَرَهِ تهی بَانکو بَاک جِی

Which here shall we send to the combat of the snake? Story of the snake v. 59.

The interrogative pronouns are not only used in direct interrogatory sentences but also in indirect interrogatory ones, when the governing sentence contains a negation; but if the governing sentence be positive, the relative is preferred. The same rule applies to the interrogative adjectives and adverbs.

I do not know exactly, who it is. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 13.

I also do not tell you, by what order I do this. Matth. 21, 26.

I shall also tell you, by what order I do this. Matth. 21, 24.

2) The interrogative pronouns (adjectives and adverbs) are frequently used, where a negative answer is expected.

By fate I have been put into prison; otherwise who would come into this fort? Sh. Um. Mār. I, 8.

§. 76.

V. The indefinite pronouns.

some one, any one, when standing by itself, is applied to animate beings and to things only; but when is used adjectively, it may be joined to any noun; similarly also may be put before nouns, when a part or quantity is to be expressed, cf. §. 61, 3.

Nothing else will be of use to thee, except what thou hast sown thyself. Mēnghō 10.

is now and then added to a personal pronoun (expressed or only implied in the inflexional termination of the verb) in an interrogative or negative sentence, for the sake of emphasis, with nearly the same sense as كي.

Wilt thou, having forsaken (me) go at all to the mountains? O lover, I did not think thus. Sh. Dēsī,  $\Pi I$ , Epil.

3) When is repeated in the next sentence, it signifies: one—another.

One says: a demon has fallen into (his) body; another says: his understanding is upset. Maj. 40.

§. 77.

The reflexive pronoun.

1) The reflexive pronoun يَانَى (Sing. and Plur.) 'self', always refers to the subject of the sentence (expressed or only understood); somewhat intricate is the use of its Genitive, the reflexive pronominal adjective يَنْهَن جَرْ (which its application is clear enough; but when the subject is of the III person (or any noun), the question arises, whether the possessive pronouns 'his', 'her' etc. refer to the chief subject of the sentence (Lat. suus), or to some other subject (Lat. ejus etc.); in the first case the reflexive pronoun must be employed, in the latter a demonstrative.

Having risen (and) greeted (and) having met with great respect (and) politeness they sat amongst themselves. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 36.

O pure friend, show thy face! Sh. Sor. I, 10.

Having come with his (own) servants to the service of Shāh Sāhib, he was present. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 31.

That wealthy one, marvelling at his (the other's) recognising her, asked him. Sindhī Read. B. p. 61.

2) In addressing a person the reflexive pronominal adjective بَنْهِن جَوْ is now and then used (like the Hindūstānī آپ كَا etc.), instead of the peculiar pronoun, that would be required, as: سَانئِين هِي پَنْهَن جَوْ مَالُ آهِي, master, this is your property, which under certain circumstances could also be translated: master, this is our property, when the spaker includes himself, as:

Send forth some mice of our country and land. Story of the mice and the cat, v. 35.

3) The reflexive pronominal adjective بَنْهَن جو may also refer to the object (noun with postp., or Dat. and Acc.) immediately following.

I am come to make quarrel the son with his father, the daughter with her mother. Matth. 10, 35.

4) When the subject of a sentence is a noun with a possessive pronoun, the peculiar possessive pronoun (if such occur with a noun) must be used and not would give quite a different sense. Similarly when the subject of a sentence is a personal pronoun and when in the next sentence, joined to the preceding by a conjunctive particle, a noun with a possessive pronoun occurs, the peculiar pronoun must be used for the reasons stated above.

(If) there would be in my kingdom some hero of mine. Story of Shamsādu, v. 40.

I am a man under authority and under my hands are soldiers. Matth. 8, 9.

5) The subject, to which يَنْهُن جَوْ refers, must occasionally be gathered from the context; but when thus used without a clear subject, to which it may be referred, it generally implies the I person (Singular or Plural).

Having removed far from our country may our lot be made any where! Story of the cat and mice, v. 20.

6) يَنْهُن جَوْ is also used substantively, signifying my, thy etc. property, friends or people.

Take what is thine and go. Matth. 20, 14.

SECTION II.

THE VERB.

Chapter VI.

§. 78.

The Infinitive.

1) The Infinitive as well of neuter as of active (causative) verbs is treated in Sindhī as a regular substantive. The complement (object), which is required by an active verb, is subordinated to the Infinitive either by the Genitive or by the Accusative in its uninflected form, or governed by the postposition .

The living (= life) of the disappointed one gets on with difficulty without the Jat. Sh. Ābirī V, 9.

The Mughals, having taken their swords, came to kill the Shāh. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

To ascent the impaling stake, to see the (nuptial) bed, this is the business of the lovers. Sh. Kal. II, 8.

It is by no means proper to put that into the house. Sindhī Read. B. p. 65.

2) The Infinitive is added as an expletive object to the verbs فَتَّنَ to give leave, نَعْمَنُ to let go or allow, to desire, and partly also to عَمُرَنُ to be able. But when the verb, which subordinates an Infinitive, requires an object (Accus.), it puts the same in the Accusative, according to the signification of the finite verb.

Tears don't let me write (lit. give no writing); dropping they fall upon the pen. Sh. Um. Mār.  $\Pi$ , 9.

The Mughals did not allow the Shāh Sāhib to come (lit. gave him no coming). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

They do not allow a male bird to sit down. Amulu Mān. p. 141.

Many prophets and pious people had wished to see this very (sight). Matth. 13, 17.

3) The Infinitive may also be turned into an adjective by the accession of the Genitive case-sign ;. In this case the Infinitive itself is strictly treated as a substantive, as regards its government, and is nearly used in the same sense as is or is nearly e. f. §. 67, 11.

But he was not of the eating of the crocodiles, i. e. he was not destined to be eaten by the crocodiles. Story of Rāe Diāču p. 1.

Chapter VII.

§. 79.

The Gerundive.

1) The Sindhī derives from the Infinitive of active verbs a regular Gerundive or participle future passive (cf. §. 8, 12, b; §. 46), which agrees with its subject in gender and number, except the construction be rendered impersonal by the use of the postposition cf. §. 94, 5. The agent is put in the Dative (like in Latin) or expressed by a pronominal suffix.

If by thee some complaint is to be made, come and make it. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

Whatever thou hast to get from me, that is alms (i. e. given in alms). Matth. 15, 5.

Now, whatever thou hast to say, say. Amulu Mān. p. 143.

2) But when the construction is rendered impersonal by the use of کهي or when a Dative occurs in a sentence, the agent must be expressed by the Instrumental, to avoid the double use of Thou shouldst have seized this horse.

What is to be got by me as regards thee (i. e. from thee), give that to me. Matth. 18, 28.

Chapter VIII. The Participles.

§. 80.

I. The participle present.

1) The participle present agrees as a regular adjective with the subject of the finite verb (expressed or implied).

Is it used, when an action is to be described as lasting or continuing, for which purpose it may be repeated.

Having made the tour of the whole city they came, wandering, wandering to the lanes of the king. Amulu Māṇ. p. 140.

Upon them (i. e. on their heads) are (large) baskets and (small) baskets; groaning they come. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 12.

2) The participle present is very frequently used in the Locative Sing., terminating in ē, or with the emphatie ī or hī, in ēī and ēhī¹), to express an action coinciding with what the finite verb declares.

As regards the subject of the present participle, Loc., it is either the same, as that of the finite verb, or it may refer to another noun in the sentence (Genitive, Dative, Accusative etc., usually expressed by a pronominal suffix), or it may not be expressed at all, to be gathered from the context.

When the subject of the present participle Loc. differs from that of the finite verb, it is added in the Formative; the same is the case, if an attribute be joined to the subject (expressed or only understood) of the present participle. But if the Locative of the present participle requires a complement (an object), it is constructed according to the common rules.

In coming and going he used to say these words. Life of Abd-ul-Lātīf, p. 47.

Dying of hunger they ask not from any one alms. Sh. Ramak. VII, 7.

Whilst searching about in the mountains some man met him. Maj. 122.

Then whilst eating her mind became drunk (and) mad. Maj. 178.

The wife and children of a gambler, (although) being in the house, do not consider as in the house. Sindhī Read. B. p. 52.

In seeing the friend all (their) pains are removed. Maj. 818.

Turn thou back the camel; pass the night, whilst I am weeping. Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō I, Epil.

§. 81.

II. The participle past.

- 1) The past participle of neuter verbs agrees with its subject in gender, number and case; the form in 'alu' is used, when the participle passes more into an adjective. The past participle of active and causal verbs (implying always a passive sense) agrees likewise with its subject in gender, number and case, except the construction be rendered impersonal by the use of the post-position (cf. §. 94, 5).
- 2) The past participle of active (and partly also of neuter) verbs with a passive signification, is used also substantively, cf. §. 62, 2, and may therefore be constructed with a postposition.

The Qāzī, having done the word (= what was said) of the scouts, became a tyrant. Maj. 296.

After being broken it became beyond (= more) a thousand billions. Sh. Sur $\bar{a}\bar{g}$ . IV, 17.

3) The past participle of neuter and active verbs is frequently used in the Locative Singular (cf. §. 80, 2); if the subject of the past participle do not differ from that of the finite verb, it is not expressed, but if it do differ, it is added in the Formative. But the subject of the past participle may also refer to a more distant object, or it may not be expressed at all, in which case the Locative is used absolutely. The impersonal construction of the past participle by means of the post-position is also retained, though the participle be put in the Locative.

The past participle in the Locative is used substantively, but nouns, depending thereupon, are idiomatically only put in the Formative, and not subordinated by the inflected Genitive case-sign

By Azrāīl having come, Sasuī was awakened whilst sleeping, i. e. in the state of being asleep. Sh. Ābirī VIII, 5.

O God, may those come, by whose coming (my) heart becomes glad. Sh. Dēsī III, 5.

Whilst I stood upright, they went to the landingplaces of the harbour. Sh. Sām. II, 2.

Whilst the physicians were seated (lit. in the state of the physicians being seated), the friend entering came to (my) door. Sh. Jam. Kal. II, 10.

Those, who do not understand much, after one letter has been touched. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 29.

Sitting near whom the pain becomes intense. Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, 25.

Which being eaten coughing arises, vomiting comes on. Golden Alphab. XVIII, 10.

§. 82.

III. The past conjunctive participles.

The past conjunctive participles (cf. §. 47) very greatly facilitate the conjunction of the different members of a compound sentence and are therefore very extensively in use. They are translated according to the tense of the finite verb.

1) The past conjunctive participles commonly refer to the subject of the finite verb, and in a passive construction, to the agent (Instrumental); but when to the past conjunctive participle of an attribute is added, it must remain in the Nominative, though the subject (agent) referred to be in the Instrumental.

Having thrown (them) into the jar, having secured (them) take care (of them). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 11.

Thou wilt go to die, Majnō, being dried up by thirst. Maj. 407.

The Dēv Ahriman having taken me from the country carried me off. Ajāib v. 119.

Then having heard the call, having become glad in (her) heart, she said. Maj. 702.

2) The past conjunctive participles may refer also to the object (Dative, Accusative) in a sentence, and in a passive construction one past conj. participle may refer to the agent (Instrumental) and another to the subject.

To them, who remember (their) friends, the night passes in weeping. Sh. Jam. Kal. I, 18.

Having tarried they would possibly have been cured by the physicians having applied plaster. Sh. Jam. Kal.  $\Pi$ , 5.

3) In an impersonal (neuter) or passive construction the past conjunctive participles may be used absolutely, without any reference to a subject, which must be gathered from the context.

The night was passed (by her) in the desert, having come to that very place. Maj. 745.

Having collected the remnant of the grain, it is good (for me) to carry it to another place. Sindhī Read. B. p. 56.

Having sold him and his wife and his children and whatever he has, the debt shall be paid (scil. by you). Matth. 18, 24.

What shall be done to them, having made them hear the whole matter? Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 29.

4) The past conj. participles are also now and then used in the sense of the Latin Ablative absolute, when the subject of the finite verb differs from that of the past conj. participle. But constructions of this kind are rather exceptions.

After all cats had died in this very manner, two cats in the whole town were left alive. Sindhī Read. Book p. 63.

5) Some past conj. participles are used quite adverbially, as: مؤتِّي ; وَرَائِي , وَرِي `again' (lit. having returned or caused to return); مؤتَّاء with the postposition وَتَهِي بُخِهِي from (lit. taking from); کهان intentionally (lit. having known, understood), or جَاذِي وِيذِي or جَاذِي وَاذِي وَينِي being alliterations.

Friend, do not go to a foreign country, his mother said again to him. Maj. 83.

From that hour her daughter was made whole. Matth. 15, 28.

Chapter IX.

The tenses of the verb.

§. 83.

I. The Present.

1) The Sindhī has two forms for the present tense, one identical with the Potential, to which the inflexional increment تهي etc. is added, the Present indefinite, and the other being compounded with the present participle and the auxiliary verb آنهيكان etc., the Present definite.

The present tense of the passive voice is formed in the same way as that of the active voice, but its use is very restricted, neuter verbs being substituted wherever possible.

There is also a simple and compound Potential, as well of the active as of the passive voice, to express the idea of the present tense (cf. §. 90).

2) The first form of the Present tense, the Present indefinite, expresses our common Present, i. e. an action begun and still continuing in the present.

The increment : may optionally follow or precede the verb¹), but when the verb commences a sentence, it is put after it (poëtry excepted). In poëtry is often separated from the verb by some other words, either preceding or following it.

When the negative adverb ذَ, 'not', accedes to the verb, نَهُ immediately precedes ثَهُ, and both the verb'); but in an interrogative sentence, or when a particular stress be laid on the verb, they may as well follow it.

In poëtry تهؤ is very frequently omitted and the Present indefinite then coincides with the Potential, so that only the context can decide, whether the Present indefinite or Potential is intended. In prose also تهؤ is dropped, when the interrogative pronoun خارن what? and the adverb خارن when, precede the verb.

Instead of the increment تهو the past participle وَبَوْنَ the fall) is also used, but with this difference, that a more enduring action is thereby implied.

Remembering (her) guardians she gives a thousand blows. Story of the cat and mice v. 11.

The king, the Lord of the kingdom, executes his own orders. Ajāib v. 5.

Hearing they do not hear nor do they understand. Matth. 13, 13.

<sup>1)</sup> When an interrogative pronoun or adverb, as لَحِيَّ , عُجُو etc., occurs in a sentence, it generally attracts عُدِي .

<sup>2)</sup> But when in a sentence i neither — nor, occurs, the adverb is put before that noun, on which the stress is laid.

For those rich inhabitants of the jungle I weep nights and days. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 11.

When they see, one big black snake is seated (there). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 16.

3) When occurrences are related, as the narrator or person, he speaks of, saw them, the Present is frequently used, in order to transfer the hearer to the scene of action. The same is the case, when the thoughts are given, which somebody had at a time.

When the Mughals saw the Shāh Sāhib, that he is (= was) sitting in the house. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

What does he see? that his children (and) his wife go night and day about in begging. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 62.

Having there built a shrine of the Shāh Sāhib in that very place they sat down: 'because the Shāh Sāhib is here'. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 26.

4) The Present is also now and then used for the Future, to signify thereby, that the action will be done forthwith.

Take thou now rest; we see (i. e. shall see). Amulu Mān. p. 149.

5) The second form of the Present, the Present definite, denotes a lasting or habitual action. The auxiliary is occasionally dropped, especially in sentences of general import.

Whoever is walking according to his will, that is my brother and sister and mother. Matth. 12, 40.

Why are the people giving me reproaches? Sh. Mass. V, 14.

§. 84.

II. The Imperfect.

The Imperfect denotes a past action, which is incomplete in reference to some other past action. It implies therefore duration, habit or frequent occurrence.

Whenever the Shāh Sāhib was going to that very village, the Mughals were quarrelling with him. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf p. 15.

§. 85.

III. The Aorist.

I. The simple Aorist.

The Aorist implies indefinitely, that an action took place in past time. It is therefore commonly used in narrations, where past events are reported irrespectively of their duration. We may therefore translate the Sindhī Aorist either by the Imperfect or Perfect.

The Aorist of neuter verbs has an active meaning; some neuter verbs though (implying a passive sense) may also be constructed with the agent in the Instrumental.

Active verbs are constructed passively in the Aorist (Perfect and Pluperfect), the agent (subject) being put in the Instrumental and the past participle agreeing with the subject (properly the object) in gender, number and case (cf. §. 92, 2), or being constructed impersonally by the use of the postposition (cf. §. 94, 5). It is understood, that the Aorist (Perfect and Pluperfect) of the passive voice is also used personally, agreeing with its subject (expressed or implied in the inflexional terminations) in gender and number.

I was asleep, those went off, they drove away the young camels. Sh. Hus. VI, Epil.

Perhaps I have been forgotten by the dear Mārūs. Sh. Um. Mār. V, 13.

The bard sang the first night at the side of the castle. Sh. Sōr. II, 1.

Who, having remained the night in the deserts, looked out for the mountains. Sh. Khāhōrī I, 3.

Those, who were made tawny by the Kāk (river), the redness does not leave. Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō II, 4.

2) The compound or habitual Aorist.

The compound Aorist with the indeclinable increment denotes in the first instance, that an action was done repeatedly in past time or for any length of time; it is therefore chiefly used, when an occupation, habit or manner is to be described. In the second instance it implies, that an action had been commenced in past time and was still going on at the time mentioned, and in this respect it nearly coincides with the Imperfect, with the only difference, that generally a simple Aorist corresponds to it.

The increment تهي is usually put before the verb, but is may also follow it; it may be also separated from the verb by some intervening words, in the same way as يَعْنَى. Instead of يِبْنِينِي (the Locative of يِبْنِينِي with emphatic ī, instead of يِبْنِينِي piēī), is also used, which more strictly points out commencement and continuation.

Where the night used to befall him, there he used to sleep. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 21.

On account of her food she used to make lakhs of jumps. Story of the cat and mice v. 13.

كَكِرَا كَوْبَلَا جَا مَادَرِ تهي مِيڙِيَاسِ پهَتَنِ تَان رَتَ پهُڙَا عَلِيَ تهي ٱگهَتْهَاسِ

The pebbles of Karbalā his mother was gathering, Alī was wiping him away from the wounds the drops of blood. Sh. Kēd. V, 2.

The drums in the cells went on sounding by themselves as they pleased, and from them this tune was coming. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 36.

When Shāh Jamāl was (as yet) going to his village, the Shāh Sāhib died on the second day. Then when Shāh Jamāl heard the message of the removal of the Shāh Sāhib, he was coming again behind (the messenger). Ibid. p. 6.

§. 86.

IV. The Perfect.

1) The Perfect denotes an action, that is completed and finished in the past, so that it extends to the Present.

I do not live at all, nor am I at all dead. Sh. Hus. IX, 16.

Do not bring near the camels, I have been tormented by the camels. Sh. Dēsī I, 14.

2) The Perfect is occasionally used to represent an action as done already, whereas it is intended or expected, that it will be done forthwith.

The fairy saw, that he is (has been) now done for. Amulu Mān. p. 151.

§. 87.

IV. The Pluperfect.

1) The Pluperfect denotes remote past action, which has taken place previous to some other past event mentioned or understood. But in this connexion its use is not strict (as in Latin), the Aorist commonly being employed, where we would expect a Pluperfect.

In some town there had fallen in a dearth of grass; Those people drove off their cattle and went away at (with) some opportunity. Story of the cat and mice, v. 5. 6.

As the fairy had told, so she threw that very nosering into the jar of the slave-girl. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

Had you seen (when you were there) some one at the side of (her) sweetheart, o Dothīs? Sh. Hus. VI, Epil. 2.

2) The Pluperfect is frequently used in Sindhī, where we would use an Imperfect or Perfect. When an action is represented, from the point of the speaker, as completely past some time hence, so that its results were already clear at the time mentioned, or when it is implied, that since an action has taken place, something else has happened, that could be said about it, the Pluperfect is used and not the Aorist nor the Perfect. The Sindhī idiom is much more accurate in discerning the different shades of meaning, than the English, and the correct use of this tense requires therefore a careful attention.

One day Shāh Jamāl sat with the Shāh Sāhib, and also many other faqīrs were sitting (i. e. had seated themselves before). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 5.

Maxdūm Sāhib received the intelligence, that Miã Nūr Muhammad had gone (but was no longer there) to have an interview with the Shāh Sāhib. Life of Abdul-Latīf, p. 29.

§. 88.

V. The Future and Future Past.

1) The Sindhī has two forms for the Future, the simple or indefinite Future and the Future definite.

The first form corresponds to our common Future and denotes a future action in general, the latter form implies, that the future action will last or endure for some time.

I shall graze their camels, having seized the bridle of the camels. Sh. Hus. IX, Epil.

At that very time an hundred fairies will be dancing near the Dēv Sufēd. Amulu Mān. p. 144.

2) The simple or indefinite Future is used also to denote possibility, inclination or doubt.

O king, I will speak one word to thee. Amulu Mān. p. 143.

O boy, wilt thou give us a ram? Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 17.

3) The Future indefinite is also used for the Imperative, when an order is not strictly given, but when it is expected, that it will be done spontaneously; it may therefore alternate with the Imperative.

Honour thy father and thy mother, and love thy neighbour as thyself. Matth. 19, 19.

4) The past Future is seldom to be met with in the sense of a strict past future action, which should have taken place, before another action will be possible, but it generally implies uncertainty, doubt or possibility in reference to a past action, as: عَوْ آيَوْ صُونِكُوْ, he may have come. Instead of the past Future the Aorist is commonly used in Sindhī, especially in conditional sentences; see §. 98, 6.

Chapter X.

The Moods.

§. 89.

I. The Indicative.

The Indicative represents an action or thought as real, and is therefore used, not only when matters of fact are related, but also when suppositions (in conditional sentences) are considered as really taking place (cf. §. 98b, 3). The Sindhī uses consequently the Indicative in such sentences, in which the speaker makes a subjective assertion, which he considers as true and real, whereas in the English idiom the Subjunctive would be used in such cases.

It would be better for him, that he were drowned in the depth of the sea. Matth. 18, 6.

§. 90.

II. The Potential.

The Potential is, as stated already, the old Present and expresses therefore only present time; but by means of the present and past participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb , a Potential of the Present definite and Perfect may be formed; these compound forms however are of very rare occurrence.

1) The Potential, in its widest sense, denotes indefiniteness, possibility, uncertainty or doubt.

Then, think I, I eat together with thee bread. Amulu Mān. p. 146.

Companions, how shall I act with (= towards) them? Sh. Ābirī VIII, Epil.

Wilt thou not pull me out this wood? Amulu Mān. p. 148.

He delivered him into the hand of the tormentors, as long as he shall not repay all, what is due unto me. Matth. 18, 34.

2) The Potential serves also to express a usual or habitual action.

Drinking the water it makes (it, i. e. the river) bare ground, it dries up the whole world. Nānga jō Quissō, v. 40.

A kingdom I do not compare with (my) needle, o companions! Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 18.

That one shall go with me, who does not make (= consider) her life sweet. Sh. Ābiri VI, 2.

3) The Potential is frequently used in the sense of an Optative or polite Imperative, especially for the I. and III. person Singular and Plural.

O friend, may the lovers obtain (their) sweethearts as guides! Maj. 817.

May there be blessing to all! that our business (and) affair has succeeded. Story of the cat and mice v. 52.

O God, mayst thou bring camelmen, who take off messages of love. Sh. Um. Mār.  $\Pi$ , 9.

Quickly, with speed, they shall bring this information and intelligence. Story of the cat and mice v. 38.

4) The Potential is used with the Interjections مَانَ would that, with the conjunctions شَالَ bitive), اجْمَ بَعْجُهْنِ بَعْتَان may it not be, that, lest; تَوْرِي may it not be, that, lest; جَمْن بَجَان بجث بخان بجث بخان بجث بخان بجث المعالى المعالى

O physican, do not give a powder! o God, may I not become well! Sh. Jam. Kal. II, 13.

Would to God, that thou, o beggar, wouldst not come any more. Sh. Sōr.  $\Pi$ , 9.

Cut off, that thou mayst be approved, lest loss befall thee. Sh. Kal.  $\Pi$ , 17.

Thus, o camel, lift up (thy pace), that I may meet there (the friend) in the coming night. Sh. Khamb.  $\Pi$ , 15.

Make some such jump, that ye fall upon that garment. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

Having given (thy) soul to the omnipotent, thou mayst possibly be put into the track of (thy) friend. Sh. Surāg. III, Epil.

§. 91.

III. The Imperative.

1) The Imperative is restricted to the II. person Singular and Plural; for the other persons the Potential must be used.

The Imperative has two forms, the Imperative strictly speaking and the Precative (cf. §. 44). The Imperative expresses a command, whereas the Precative implies an exhortation, request or haste.

When a negation accedes to the Imperative, is used to express a strict negation, whereas is used in a prohibitive sense. With the Precative is commonly joined, but is may also be employed, if the injunction be more strict.

The lions said: be thou not anxious. Amulu Mān. p. 151.

O Sūmarō, do not throw and tighten chains upon the chaste one! Sh. Um. Mār. III, 9.

Come near, good friend, do not apply a funeral pyre to the afflicted one! Sh. Ābirī X, 5.

What is pure do not give to the dogs. Matth. 7, 6.

2) When two Imperatives are joined together by the conjunction  $\ddot{z}$  or  $\ddot{z}$ , the first Imperative is hypothetical.

Return quickly, o dear friend, if you mean to go, then return. Maj. 439.

II. THE SYNTHETICAL PART.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE SENTENCE AND CONJUNCTION OF SENTENCES.

SECTION III.

THE SIMPLE SENTENCE.

Chapter XI.

Subject and Predicate.

§. 61.

In every sentence there must be a subject and a predicate; subject is called that person or thing, of which something is said and predicate that which is said about it.

- 1) The subject may be expressed either by a substantive or adjective or pronoun or numeral. It is not expressed, if it be a personal pronoun and its predicate a verb, except a stress be laid upon it, as: آنتُون تهو قُسَان آ see, but آنتُون تهو قُسَان آ see (not you). The subject must always be in the Nominative.
- 2) The Predicate may be expressed either by a verb, or adjective (participle), or substantive, or numeral with the auxiliary verbs تُعِمَّنُ to be and تَعِمَّنُ to become, to be.

The predicate may be joined to the subject in a threefold manner:

a) by way of asssertion, as: نِينگُرِ تَهِي رُبِّي the girl weeps.

- b) by way of interrogation, as: کیڑ آیو who is come?
- c) by way of command (or desire), as: go (thou).
- 3) The subject and predicate, if they be substantives or pronouns, may be nearer defined by an attribute. The attribute is commonly an adjective, but it may also be a substantive in the Genitive (with or without an adjective, pronoun etc.), on which another noun in the Genitive may depend again, as:

a great man came وَدُو مَارِّهُوں آیُو a great man came وَدُو مَارِّهُوں آیُو or: this is a great man هِی وَدُو مَارِّهُوں آهِي the Lord of the kingdom died مُلکَ جو دَهَلِي مَرِي وِدُو مُلکَ جِي دَهَلِيَ جَوْ يُقرُ مَرِي وِدُو the son of the Lord of the kingdom died.

All the people of the kingdom (of) Maghrib will go to die. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 51.

4) The subject and predicate, if they be proper names, substantives or pronouns, may also be nearer defined by a noun in apposition, as:

the country (of) China is far off; چین وَلایَت ثُورِ آهِي this is the city (of) Karāčī.

Chapter XII.

Concord of the subject and predicate.

§. 93.

1) If the predicate be a verb, it must agree with its subject in person, gender and number. This rule is strictly adhered to in Sindhī, even in such cases, where the subject in the Singular implies plurality, cf. §. 63, 1. 2. A subject in the Singular however may be constructed with the Plural of the predicate, when spoken of politely or honorifically, cf. §. 63, 3.

I do not reject the word of mother and father. Amul. Mān. p. 142.

Standing the strangers ask: where is Muhammad, the intercessor? Nānga jō Qissō, p. 15.

2) If the predicate be an adjective, participle, pronoun or substantive, from which a feminine may be derived (cf. §. 14), it must agree with its subject in gender, number and case. (In the same way every attribute must agree with its substantive in gender, number and case, whenever possible.)

What is thy pleasure? Amulu Mān. p. 140.

From above descended a slave-girl. Ibid. p. 140.

By all the companions they were seen, those maimed young men. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 17.

كَا بِلِي بَارَنِ سَانةَهِي هُئِي كَنْهِن رَنگُ وَدي سِين رَسَ

Some cat was tending her young ones with some great love (and) pleasure. Story of the cat and mice v. 8.

Chapter XIII.

Enlargement of the sentence by a near and remote object.

§. 94.

1) The verb, which refers to the subject as its predicate, has a double form; it is either of the active voice, if the subject be active, or of the passive voice, if the subject be passive.

The active voice of a verb has a treble signification; it is either neuter (intransitive), or active (transitive), or causal. The verb is called neuter, if the action be restricted to the subject, as: هُوْ تَهُوْ وَجِي اللهِ he goes; active, if the verb necessarily requires a (near) object or Accusative, as: هُنَ كَهِي تُهُوْ جَهَلِي he seizes him; and causal, if it requires one or two Accusatives.

2) Neuter verbs commonly subordinate only a remote object or Dative, as: مُرِن كَهِي نَـ تَهُوْ رَبْي it does not please me; but some neuter verbs may also subordinate a near object (Accus.), as:

He went that way. Ajāib v. 44.

3) Active verbs subordinate a near object (Accus.), and, as the case may be, a remote one (Dative), as:

give him bread. Active verbs may also subordinate a double Accusative, one implying the near object and the other its attribute. In this case the first object is generally defined by the postposition by means of which the construction is rendered impersonal and the concord between the object and its attribute dissolved, so that the attribute remains in the uninflected form of the Singular, though the object, to which it refers, may be a Plural. But both may also remain in the uninflected state (Singular or Plural). Some verbs govern a double Accusative, one of a person, and one of a thing, as is to ask somebody a thing, though it may also be constructed with the postposition is rendered by the postposition in the uninflected state (Singular or Plural). Some verbs govern a double Accusative, one of a person, and one of a thing, as is to ask somebody a thing, though it may also be constructed with

Make the lepers clean. Matth. 10, 3.

As long, as I live, I shall not make any other (my) husband. Sh. Um. Mar. VII, 6.

Keep the fasts of Ramazān, give (thy) wealth as alms. Golden Alphabet 4, 7.

4) Causals, derived from neuter verbs, subordinate a near, and as the case may be, a remote object (§. 69, 6); and causals, derived from active verbs, may subordinate two near objects (a double Accusative), the first generally being defined by the postposition ($\scrt{x}$), and the second remaining in the uninflected state (§. 69, 5).

Having made drink the travellers a bowl try (it). Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 7.

5) Regular passive verbs can only be derived from active or causal verbs; for the passive form, which neuter verbs occasionally assume, does not essentially alter their signification.

Of the passive voice only the past tenses (past participle passive) are in common use, the other tenses being expressed, wherever possible, by a neuter verb.

The past participle (passive) agrees either with its subject in gender, number and case (§. 93, 2), or the construction may be rendered impersonal, the past participle containing at the same time subject and predicate, in which case the (proper) subject of the passive sentence must be subordinated as a remote object by means of the postposition services. 'as regards', 'in reference to'.

This impersonal construction must always take place in the passive, when an active verb governs a double Accusative, one implying the near object and the other its attribute. The near object must in this case be subordinated by the postposition whereas the other object, as the predicate, remains in the uninflected form of the Singular, referring to the (neuter) past participle.

<sup>1)</sup> In a longer sentence, when the agent is separated by a series of words from the verb, the agent is frequently repeated for the sake of perspicuity, by adding a pronominal suffix, corresponding to the agent, to the verb.

But when a causal verb governs two near objects, the first (implying a person) must be subordinated as remote object by the postposition , whereas the second is made the subject, with which the past participle agrees in gender and number.

Thus also the son of man shall be afflicted by them. Matth. 17, 12.

Death was agreed to by those, who saw the afflicted one (lit. by whom it was seen as regards the afflicted one). Sh. Majð. VII, 16.

By what reason (and) disorder have you been made ill? (lit. by what reason and disorder has it been made ill as regards you.) Nānga jō Quissō, v. 24.

The king, having come, related this whole matter to the Vazīr Saifal. Amulu Māṇ. p. 142.

Chapter XIV.

Enlargement of the sentence by a nearer definition of the verb as predicate.

§. 95.

The simple sentence may be enlarged to a considerable extent by a nearer definition of the verb as predicate.

1) The verb may be nearer defined by one or more cases, on which again another case may depend, viz.: the Instrumental (agent etc.), the Accusative (of time etc.), the Ablative and the Locative, and by nouns with postpositions generally.

At some time one man sat on the bank of the river with his wealth (of buffaloes). Sindhī Reading Book p. 59.

That one began to go to school one year later than (from) his elder brother. Ibid. p. 50.

2) The verb may be nearer defined by adverbs generally, especially by adverbs of time, place and manner, and by postpositions with pronouns.

Give me now some advise. Amulu Māņ. p. 147.

Thus they talked amongst each other four goodly months. Maj. 235.

This also is with me. Amulu Māṇ. p. 147.

Chapter XV.

Omission of the verb as predicate.

§. 96.

1) The auxiliary verb آنهِيَان etc., forming the predicate with or without an adjective etc., is occasionally omitted, especially in poëtry and in short proverbial sentences.

Let me hear that matter, which (is) in thy heart. Maj. 45.

There (is) a deep well there; no bottom of that is found. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 38.

Where (is) the cowardly cat? where (is) the cowardly cat? Sindhī Read. B. p. 62.

2) In sentences, which contain an imprecation or curse, the verb as predicate is generally omitted. In such like sentences the Potential of , to fall, should be supplied, which occasionally is met with.

May the courtyard (fall) into the well, the companions into the forest, the sisters-in-law into disease! Sh. Suh. IX, Epil. 1.

(May fall) into the well those days of life, which are apart from the friend! Sh. Dēsī VII, Epil.

SECTION IV.

THE COMPOUND SENTENCE.

Two or more sentences may be so joined together, that a compound sentence arises. This is done either by way of coordination or subordination.

Chapter XVI.

I. Coordination of sentences.

§. 97.

1) Two or more sentences may be so joined, that each one remains independent of the other. This is done without or by the copulative, adversative, disjunctive and conclusive particles (cf. §. 59) and by the negative adverb  $\dot{\omega}$  neither — nor.

The lover was joined to her by pain, the sweetheart was not joined to her by pleasure (= by dint of). Sh. Ābirī VII, 13.

Fasten the horses below and go ye up. Amulu Mān. p. 149.

Either they bring them across, says Latīf, or they make a cry from that very spot. Sh. Suh.  $\overline{VIII}$ , 2.

I know it, but the Shāh Sāhib has forbidden (me) to tell it. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 44.

2) Sentences are also coordinated by joining together a disjunctive question. In the first member the interrogation is generally not expressed by a particle, but only by the voice of the speaker; in the second (or third) the interrogation is pointed out by the particle  $k\bar{l}$  or  $k\bar{l}$  ke.

Is it thou or shall we look to the way of another? Matth. 11, 3.

Chapter XVII.

Contraction of coordinate sentences into one; concord of two and more subjects and predicates.

§. 98.

1) When two or more sentences have either the same subject or the same predicate or the same object or any other common member of speech, they are contracted into one sentence, with or without a conjunctive particle.

O Lord, may (our) dear friends (and) lovers meet (us) again! Nānga jō Qissō v. 81.

I am not a jinn, demon, fairy, I am a man. Maj. 639.

Which then is greater, the sacrifice or the altar? Matth. 23, 19.

But this discourse fell into the ear of Mīr Hasan (and) Husain. Nānga jō Qissō v. 75.

2) When there are two or more subjects in a sentence, denoting animate beings, the verb or adjective (with the auxiliary verbs عُونَ and تَعِمُنُ and نَعِمُنُ) as predicate is put in the Plural; if the subjects have the same gender, the predicate agrees with them, being put in the Plural, but if they be of various gender, the masculine has the precedence.

When two or more subjects imply things (or ideas), the predicate is either put in the Singular, agreeing commonly with the last subject, or in the Plural. If they be of various gender, the Plural of the masculine or feminine is employed, according as one or the other subject is considered more important.

The same rule holds good, when an attribute (adjective etc.) is referring to nouns of different gender.

A male and female was created by him. Sindhi Read. Book, p. 15.

Thy mother and thy brothers stand outside. Matth. 12, 47.

In this pond there will be water and fish. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 27.

But for an able army there is no delay (nor) pause. Nānga jō Quissō, v. 154.

When I saw from afar the places, houses, cells. Ajāib, v. 72.

By the lightenings dresses of rain (i. e. clouds) have been made; reeds and herbs have become green; oh! Sh. Sār. IV, Epil.

By whom eyes (and) face have been turned towards the buffalo-keeper. Sh. Suh. V, 9.

The farms and ferries of the world (people) are upon that water. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 36.

3) When two or more subjects of different persons occur in a sentence, the first person precedes the second (or third), and the second the third, the verb being put in the Plural.

We and the Pharisees keep many fasts. Matth. 9, 14.

Chapter XVIII.

II. Subordination of sentences.

§. 99.

Two or more sentences may be so joined together, that one is not independent of the other, but is only making up for the deficiency of the other. A sentence thus depending on another, is called a subordinate sentence, and the other, that is completed thereby, is called the main sentence.

A subordinate sentence may have another sentence coordinated either with or without conjunctive particles; or it may again subordinate another sentence.

A subordinate sentence may be linked to the main sentence either by subjunctive particles, or by relative pronouns and adverbs or by interrogative pronouns and adverbs.

1) Subordination of a sentence by subjunctive particles.

§. 100.

Particles, by which a sentence is subordinated to the main sentence are the concessive, the consecutive, the causal, the final and the conditional, cf. §. 59.

a) With the three first particles the Indicative is used, if the assertion be positive, and the Potential, if the assertion be more vague or uncertain; with final particles the Potential is always used.

Though they be killed by the knife, they do not at all divulge any thing. Sh. Kal.  $\Pi$ , 8.

It threw the head of dejection so much on the ground, that its brain was confused. Sindhī Reading Book p. 58.

O God, take away the covers, that we may know the truth. Maj. 205.

b) In conditional sentences the subordinate sentence generally precedes the main sentence, but the conditional part of the sentence may also follow that, which is conditioned thereby.

The subordinate sentence is introduced by the particles جِيكُر بَجِي if, and جِيكُرُ بَجِي if (at any time), and the main sentence by the concessive particle تَان , تَان , تَد , then, which is generally not translated.

1) If the condition and that, which is conditioned thereby, be indefinite, possible, doubtful or uncertain, the Potential is used in both members of the sentence; in the main sentence the Imperative may also be employed.

Be not seated here; if thou go, thou mayst obtain (thy) sweetheart. Sh. Ābirī VII, 6.

Then thou mayst enjoy it at all, if thou perform this very advise. Sh.  $\bar{A}$ birī  $V\Pi$ , 14.

If they may have been seen by you, then, for God's sake, speak! Sh. Hus. X, 22.

2) If the condition be uncertain, possible or only expected, but if that, which is conditioned thereby, be represented as certain and positive, the Potential is used in the subordinate, and the Indicative (commonly the Future) in the main sentence.

O mother, o mother, I live, o God, if my dear friends remember me! Sh. Suh. VII, Epil. 2.

If thou construct us here a mosque, then we shall let thee daily make the pilgrimage of the Ka; aba of God. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 4.

3) If the condition and that, which is conditioned thereby, be taken as certain and positive, the Indicative is used in both members of the sentence.

If thou castest us out, allow us to go into the herd of swine. Matth. 8, 31.

If thou shalt divulge it, thou wilt become a leper. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 44.

4) If the condition as well as that, which is conditioned thereby, is represented as such, that could have happened under certain circumstances, but which has not happened, because the condition was not fulfilled, the Imperfect, Aorist or Pluperfect is used in the subordinate, and the Aorist in the main sentence, or, under certain circumstances, the Pluperfect (cf. §. 87, 2).

If he had not kept on drinking liquor, he would not have died.

I have written a letter to thee; but if I were a bird I would likely have come before the letter, having flown quickly.

If the pen would be aware of the heart, it would weep blood out of affection. Sh. Barvō Sindhī, Čhōt. 6.

If those (cries) had been heard by (my) sweetheart, he would likely not have gone off. Sh. Hus. III, 2.

If the master of the house had known, (that) the thief will come at a certain watch (of the night), he would likely have remained on his guard. Matth. 24, 43.

If those (works) had been done at Sodom, it would have likely remained until this day. Matth. 11, 23.

Instead of the Aorist or Pluperfect the Potential (of the Present) may be used (but very rarely) in both members of a conditional sentence, followed by the particle &; but more commonly & is added to a past tense, for the sake of emphasis.

If she had not gone, she would not have obtained (her) friend.

If you had ever understood this word, you would not have condemned the guiltless. Matth. 12, 7.

5) If the condition must have been fulfilled in past future time (Futurum exactum), before that, which is conditioned thereby, shall happen, the Aorist is used in the subordinate, and the Future in the main sentence.

If ever Maxdūm Sāhib should have died before Shāh Sāhib, then Shāh Sāhib will come and be present with the bier of Maxdūm Sāhib. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 37.

If one shall have come and recognised her, I will give her to him. Sindhī Read. B. p. 59.

6) The conditional particle is often omitted in the subordinate sentence, and is used without a main sentence, it being passed over in silence, so that is assumes quite the sense of the interjectional particle would that!

O my friend, (if) I die of thy wound, I (may) obtain honour. Sh. Jam. Kal. I, 6.

جِيكَرَ الكؤتهِ هَلُون

If we would go to (our) village, (it would be well) = We should like to go to (our) village. Amulu Mān. p. 151.

2) Subordination of a sentence by the relative pronoun (also the indefinite pronouns جَوْكُو , جِيكُو ) and relative adverbs, corresponding generally to a correlative. (§. 74 sqq.)

§. 101.

The subordinate sentence may either precede or follow the main sentence.

Come back, o louse of the blanket, which was given to me by the grandfather's family. Sh. Um. Mar. VII, 3.

Whoever is given to gambling, in his house property does not remain. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 52.

As the day gets hot, so I push on in the journey. Sh. Hus.  $\Pi$ , 14.

Where there is not a footprint of a bird, there glimmers a small fire. Sh. Khāh.  $\Pi$ , 11.

When there are some reeds of the shore, pull them out and bind together a raft. Sh. Hus. VIII, 3.

3) Subordination of a sentence by an interrogative pronoun or particle.

§. 102.

The dependant sentence is generally introduced by the particles  $\dot{z}$ ,  $\dot{z}$ , and  $\dot{z}$ , that, which are not translated.

How do I know, how the calculation of the Amīr has been made? Sh. Um. Mār. II.

Give me an answer about the marriage, how thou hast arranged it? Amulu Māṇ. p. 142.

Take no thought of your life, (saying) what shall we eat, what shall we drink? nor of your body, what we shall put on? Matth. 6, 24.

Chapter XIX.

Abbreviation of subordinate sentences.

§. 103.

A subordinate sentence may be abbreviated:

1) by using the present and past participle (cf. §. 80, 81), either adjectively, or in the Locative Singular, which is more common. The participle supplies the place of a relative or conjunctional subordinate sentence, into which it may be dissolved, when necessary, as:

Pass the night weeping, distilling glasses of liquor; i. e. whilst weeping, or as one who weeps etc. Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 25.

Having been seized = after or when or as she was seized by a violent pain, she fell down near some bank. Story of the cat and mice, v. 29.

2) By using the past conjunctive participles.

They carry off (my) sweetheart Punhū, speaking Baluchī, i. e. whilst they speak Baluchī. Sh. Dēsī II, 13.

Chapter XX.

On the indirect oration.

§. 104.

When the words or thoughts of a person are given with the very same expressions, as used originally, the oration is called a direct one; but when they are only represented according to their general contents or purport, the oration is called an indirect one. In Sindhī the indirect oration is never made use of, but the words or thoughts of a person are always represented in the direct oration and generally introduced by the particle  $\tilde{z}$ .

He was thinking: 'in some way having sneaked off I will get away'; i. e. that he would sneak off etc. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 20.

When he sees: I am sitting near Bhiṭa. Ibid. p. 21.

If thou likest: I will meet (my) friend = to meet (thy) friend, then learn the mimicking sound of the thieves. Sh. Jam. Kal. II, 8.

APPENDIX I.

ON THE SINDHI CALENDAR.

The Muhammadans of Sindh reckon by lunar months after the common Muhammadan aera, called in the flight of Muhammad from Mekka to Medīnah, the years of this aera are therefore called the lates, according to the best accounts from the 18th of July 622 p. Chr. Their months commence with the appearance of each new moon and consist of 30 and 29 days alternately, amounting to 354 days and about nine hours; in consequence thereof New-year's-day falls every year about eleven days earlier than in the previous year.

To keep pace with the seasons the Sindhīs interpose every third year an intercalary month (نُتُنُّ lunḍu), repeating that month, in which the sun enters no new sign of the Zodiac.

In naming the lunar months the learned Muhammadans follow the nomenclature of the Arabs; but among the common people the names of those Arabian months only are known, which are noted by some special religious observance, the other months being called by the names of the Hindū months then being.

<sup>1)</sup> Another aera, which is also in use amongst the Muhammadans of Upper India, is called فَصْلِي, or revenue aera; it dates, according to Prinsep, from the year 5923/4 p. Chr.

Trumpp, Sindhī-Grammar.

Lunar months of the Arabians.

The Hindūs reckon by solar years, and lunisolar months. They follow either the Vikramāditya (كُرَمَاجِيتُ) aera, called sambatu (Sansk. संवत् year), dating from the year 57 a. Chr., and commencing with the month of katī, or that of Shālivāhana, called šāku (Sansk. शक), dating from the year 78 p. Chr., and commencing with the month of Čēṭru.

The Hindū year is divided into 12 equal portions, which nearly correspond to our solar months. Each month is divided again (by Hindūs as well as Muhammadans) into two parts (پَکهُ or پَکهُ lunar fortnight), the first from new to full moon (پُنهُ sudī), and the second from full to new moon (پُنهُ badī). The dates of these two divisions (پُنهُ lunar date), fifteen each, are reckoned separately.

Solar months of the Hindus.

čēṭru, from the middle of March to the middle of April.

ريسًاكه vēsākhu, from the middle of April to the middle of May.

jēṭhu, from the middle of May to the middle of June.

ākhāru, from the middle of June to the middle of July.

sāvaṇu, ) from the middle of July to the middle of August.

baḍrō, from the middle of August to the middle of September.

asū, from the middle of September to the middle of October.

katī, from the middle of October to the middle of November.

nāharī, أَعْرِي nāharī, from the middle of November to the middle of December.

pōhu, from the middle of December to the middle of January.

māghu, from the middle of January to the middle of February.

phāgu, إيضَاكُ phaguņu, from the middle of February to the middle of March.

The Hindūs commence the day at midnight, as we do, but the Muhammadans at the previous evening. In the mouth of a Muhammadan therefore the night of a certain day always signifies the night of the previous day, as: جني جي راب Friday night = Thursday night, according to our way of reckoning. There is some difference between the Hindū and Musalmān names of the days of the week, as subjoined.
