Did you know?

You can leverage FCC certification to access markets worldwide with your connected products

When it comes to global market access, each country or region has its own rules and regulations that dictate not only what requirements may apply to specific products, but also how product compliance must be demonstrated. The key to success is to have a clear understanding of the unique characteristics of each compliance system and the practical interpretation and implementation of the rules as they apply to your products.

Consumer technology devices, as well as lighting devices, appliances, industrial devices, and wireless products with Bluetooth®, Wi-Fi, Zigbee® and/or cellular connectivity, need to get FCC certification before being able to access the U.S. market.

But did you know that FCC certification is also a prerequisite to access other countries worldwide?

Here are some examples:
- Asia: Hong Kong, Singapore
- Africa: Zimbabwe, Mozambique
- Caribbean: Bahamas, Dominican Republic
- Latin America: Uruguay, Bolivia

Please note the examples above are subject to change so it's important to contact our experts to understand the final or additional requirements for each country.
